

Black History Week offers something to all

Adrienne Higgins, Percilla Rountree, and Billetha Rountree observe African art.

The celebration of Black History Week by the black students at Central began Monday, February 14th. On that day several black students wore either African garb, black clothing, or green, black, and red clothes (the colors of the black flag).

On the Saturday preceding Black History Week, a group of black students and teachers decorated certain parts of the building in recognition of the holiday. Included in the decorations were display tables by the "C" and in Mrs. Mary Harvey's room (140). On these tables were black sculptures and other works of creativity, and books by and about black persons. The purpose of these was to promote awareness of black culture and literature.

Wednesday, February 16th, films were shown during school in room 245, for students in study halls. The films dealt with black people in general, a particular black person, or minority groups in general.

Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 3:30, there was a black poetry reading session. The participants were: Mark Anderson, Karen Clark, Tyrone Eure, Cynthia Fleming, Adrian Higgins, Ron Rivers, Billetha Rountree, Steven Scott, Joletta Woodruff, and guest speaker Patricia Karuma.

Thursday after school an African Fashion Show was held in room 145. Some of the models (male and female) were: Melany Adams, Jo Allen, Irish Everette, Kimberly Hayes, Sharon Pope, Judy Thomas, Tony Walker, Martin Johnson, Steven Scott.

During the intermission of the fashion show, entertainment was provided by a dance group, Soul Illustrated. Members of the group are Kimberly Hayes, Michele Bonner, and Kristie Hayes. They did an African dance to the music of Santana.

On Friday, seven black speakers from the community came to school and spoke to students who had study halls in room 245. The speakers were:

- 2nd hour - Mr. Leonard Scott on "Drug Abuse and Blacks"
- 3rd hour - Mr. Roger Sayers on "Human Relations: A Perspective"
- 4th hour - Mr. Tom Norwood on "Black Colleges — Their Potential and Contribution"
- 6th hour - Mr. Harry Eure on "The Black Theater"
- 7th hour - Mr. Alvin Gilmore on "The Role of the Black Media"
- 8th hour - Mr. Wilbur Phillips on "Black Capitalism in Omaha"

Four new courses to be enacted

Last week, the new courses that will be offered at Central next year, were announced. These courses are Project Physics, Comparative Political Systems, Description World Study, and Introduction to Foreign Languages. All of these are one credit courses.

Project Physics, a two semester course, will be offered in addition to PSSC Physics, which is currently the only physics course being taught at Central.

This course is designed to reach those students who previously have avoided physics because it was too math and engineering oriented. Project Physics is a lab course with its stress on the history of physics, the people in physics, and on the relation and importance of physics to the rest of the world.

The Comparative Political Systems is a one semester course which involves a new method of teaching social studies.

The overall objective of this course is to help the student develop into an independent thinker. This objective can be subdivided into four parts, the development of the student's inquiry skills, attitude, values, and knowledge.

The Description Word Study course will give the student a chance to learn the Greek and Latin roots that make up the foundation of over sixty percent of the words in the English language, thus increasing vocabulary and comprehension. In addition stories concerning the history of words will be explored.

The Introduction to Foreign Languages course is designed for students who have not studied a foreign language or those who would like a summary of a second language.

This course includes a brief study of the linguistics and structures of a language. Units of study will include the English, Latin, Greek, German, Spanish, and French languages. In these areas of study, there will be an elementary introduction to the listening, speaking, reading, and writing of these languages through films, pictures, tapes, records, and through several teachers of the several languages.

Six students merit Regents scholarships

Six Centralites were recently announced as winners in the Regents Scholarship competition for the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. Winners were Bart Lambert, Elizabeth Mitchell, Thomas Weaver, Larry Denenberg, Sara Williams, and Michael Wise.

These winners are entitled to a four year, full tuition scholarship to U.N.L. Central also had thirty alternates in the competition. If any of the winners should decide to decline their scholarship the award would then be given to one of the alternates.

The alternate with the highest score would be the first person to have a scholarship offered to him and then it would go down the line by scores.

Winners are determined on the basis of the S.A.T. scores. The scores are determined by doubling the verbal score and then adding the math.

Daly wins 'Teacher of Year'

The Student Assembly has recently named Mr. Daniel Daly "Teacher of the Year 1971-1972." Mr. Daly teaches English 5-6 academic and honors, and English 7-8 honors.

Upon receiving the award, Mr. Daly stated that he was, "a little overwhelmed. I'm very seldom at a loss of words, but I was when presented with this. It's most complimentary since the students are the ones that you are trying to help. This won't help my humility. I may have to get a larger sized hat."

Mr. Daly attended both Morningside College and UNO. In 1962, he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in English and History from UNO.

Mr. Daly student taught American History at Westside and English at Central. He decided to remain at Central and began teaching in the 1962-63 academic year.

Mr. Daly received a Masters degree in English in July, 1969. His masters' thesis was entitled "The Cycle of the Seasons in Selected Works of Willa Cather."

Mr. Daly is the announcer at Central's football and basketball games. His hobbies include poetry writing, listening to all kinds of music, and reading. He has recently become interested in black-literature and taught a mini-course on "Poetry of the Harlem Renaissance." He regrets that black-literature was not offered to him as a student.

Mr. Daly is a building representative to the Omaha Education Association. He is also participating on the Open Study Hall committee.

Various students of Mr. Daly commented that his abundance of energy maintains the class's interest. One student said, "I think he deserves to be 'Teacher of the Year.' He really knows his subject and digresses just enough to keep your interest." Another stated that "he's not stiff or presumptuous."

Mr. Daly said, "I just try to do my job. I try to use variety and often a change of pace. Things that I once thought were absolutes aren't absolutes any more."

Kathy Krush and Celeste Alston have written a resume of Mr. Daly to be presented to the Intra-city Student Council. All other Omaha Public high schools have done the same for their "Teacher of the Year." The council will then select one of these teachers to represent the entire district.

Mr. Daly will be presented a plaque by the Assembly. A permanent plaque to record future winners will also be purchased. A teacher may win only once.

Mr. Daly has plans to begin a tutoring program with Central for students who have problems in composition. The students would be tutored by volunteer honors English students.

Mr. Daly says this program would not interfere with reading classes nor with regular English classes. It would be a reference place for freshmen students who have a particular problem in any aspect of theme or composition writing. Mr. Daly says that if the student has a general problem, his English teacher would be the place to go. But, for a specific problem, such as a question about revision on a grammatical rule, the tutoring service would serve this purpose. One of the objectives of the program, as stated by Mr. Daly would be to "take some of the load off of the freshmen English teachers."

He says that the students and teachers he has talked to thus far, have expressed a generally favorable opinion of the plan.

Mr. Daly hopes to get the project underway sometime within the next couple weeks. It would be offered before school, after school, and during first, fourth, and seventh hours.

'Be-Bop Day' relives '50s

If you saw people bee-bopping down the hall last week it was because Friday was "50's Day".

The idea of this day was brought to Central by Patty Pierce. Students were seen with greased down hair and flowing ponytails. Long skirts were the latest fashion last Friday for the girls and the boys were decked out in baggy pants. Red lipstick was the "in" thing along with matching fingernail polish.

The cheerleaders caught the attention of the spectators by wearing their 50's outfit to the game. The Eaglettes were the main attraction during half time. They performed their routine to a medley of "50's" songs.

Especially interesting was the Pep Rally held Friday morning. The Pep Club squad leaders and cheerleaders had a couple of new cheers made up from the olden days. Students were urged to wear their attire to the Central-Prep game. The faculty was very enthused over the whole idea of the day.

Student's rights examined

While administrators, teachers, and parents across the nation insist that students have respect for law and order, these same individuals are willfully violating the law by denying students their rights as guaranteed by the constitution. Too often adults will respect the law only so far as it works to their benefit. With the aid of certain landmark decisions by the Supreme Court students are finally forcing school authorities to cease their repressive acts and to respect the rights of students.

Better Homes and Gardens carried an article explaining aspects of the student rights movement. With this information and other evidence gathered from cases of law, this staff has proposed some questions and offered answers which may be of benefit to the reader.

Do students have the right of peaceful protest?

Yes. In the case of Tinker vs. Des Moines Independent School District the Supreme Court ruled in favor of the students who had been suspended for protesting American involvement in Vietnam. The court decision read: "In our system, state-operated schools may not be enclaves of totalitarianism. School officials do not possess absolute authority over their students. Students in school as well as out of school are persons under our Constitution. They are possessed of fundamental rights which the state must respect just as they themselves must respect their obligations to the state. They may not be confined to the expression of those sentiments that are officially approved. Students are entitled to freedom of expression of their views." Is the student required to conform with school dress codes?

The Supreme Court has made no ruling on this question. However, the growing consensus of legal opinion is that a student does not have to cooperate with dress codes even if the code is approved by a majority of the student body. The only instance where it seems school's may place limitations upon dress is in the case of clothes presenting a clear danger or in the case of indecent exposure. Restrictions because of danger would include the use of metal cleats.

Do high school newspapers have total freedom of the press?

In the case of Scoville v. Board of Education of Joliet Township the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit ruled that "high school students are persons entitled to First and Fourth Amendment protections." The case involved two students who were expelled for distributing an underground newspaper. The court decided in favor of the students, making the First and Fourth Amendments available to public high school attendants.

What rights do students have with regard to their permanent files?

The student's record which includes only educational data, attendance records, test grades, and achievement levels are available to the public, and their release does not constitute an invasion of privacy. However, if the record contains information on the students religious status, ethnic background, patriotism, psychiatric information, unverified accusations, or parent's income, the revealing of this may well be damaging to the student and thus in court would constitute an invasion of privacy.

A committee of educators convened by the Russel Sage foundation drew up the following legal guidelines:

No information should be put into a record without the permission of both parent and student.

The permanent record should include only educational data. The temporary record should be reviewed as to its usefulness on a periodic basis.

The record of the student should not be revealed to anyone except for a person within the school system who has a definite need for it, with the exception of the parent giving written permission for the disclosure of such information.

Students should have the right to use a lawyer in cross-examining witnesses as to the accuracy of certain information in the student's file.

Central, according to a school official, has adopted all of the following guidelines with the exception of the last suggestion of allowing the reliability of information to be challenged.

Can a student's locker be searched against the wishes of the student?

Yes. A New York Court of appeals decision that a principal who has a reasonable suspicion of crime can legally search a locker was allowed to stand by the Supreme Court of the United States. The growing opinion on this issue is that a search should be only used in extreme circumstances, and should not be made a regular policy.

Of Central Importance

Centralites who are eighteen now, or will be this year, must be concerned about their status concerning the draft.

The most recent draft lottery was last February third. Any male who is or will be eighteen during 1972 is eligible under this lottery.

The number that your birthday is matched to is the one that you will hold all during your draft eligibility, which does not run out till you are twenty-six years old.

It seems, that in the future, for a variety of reasons, few people will be drafted. First, according to Curtis W. Tarr, head of the Selective Service system, the highest number to be chosen will be well below 125, which was the highest number called last year. The highest number to be called this year is unknown, as of now.

Beyond this, the present draft law is scheduled to run out in mid-September 1973. Many experts do not feel that the Congress will renew the law.

The President has promised to attempt to institute an all volunteer army by that time, and a volunteer army will most likely be the substitute for the present draftees army.

Also, if you are classified 1A and are eligible this year but are not drafted, you automatically drop into a less vulnerable classification. In this classification you cannot be called up for anything short of a national emergency.

Finally, even though student deferments have been abolished many students can still receive hardship deferments, or anyone can join the reserve forces.

Plots and Plans

Soul Food

While low-riding down the "deuce" (24th street on the Near North Side) from Charles to Manderson streets, one passes five soul food restaurants: Time In, Fair Deal, Irene's, Carter's, and Livewire, respectively — as you pass them going North. This particular article will be centered on Fair Deal, which is located at 2100 N. 24th St.

As you enter Fair Deal, the contrasting white tables and black leather seats catch your eye. There is a picture hanging on the wall directly across from the entrance, of barbecued ribs (to get you in the mood).

On the menu given to you by one of the sisters who work there, some of the soul food items are buffalo fish, chitterlings, and baked short ribs. There's plenty of hot sauce and corn bread to complete your meal.

The food contributes to the atmosphere, which is very relaxing, pleasant, and comfortable. This is because it's seasoned like home soul food would be. This taste makes one relate to their own home. The music also contributes to the relaxing atmosphere.

Book Review

C.S. Lewis's Chronicles of Narnia is a delightful series of books which, although written for children, is a source of great pleasure for the harried mind of the high school student.

There are seven books in the Chronicles of Narnia: The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe;

Prince Caspian; The Voyage of the "Dawn Treader"; The Silver Chair; The Horse and His Boy; The Magician's Nephew; and The Last Battle.

The editions that are currently available come with charming illustrations on the covers and at the beginning of each chapter. The best illustrations, however, are by Lewis himself — word pictures. His description of each aroma, vision, sound, flavor, or sensation allows the reader a deep involvement in the land of Narnia.

If your background is such that you have been trained to analyze and research everything that you read for deep symbolic meaning, try to forget obvious symbols that occur in the Chronicles and let your imagination follow the characters into the enchanting lands beyond our world.

Joslyn Exhibition

Joslyn will host an exhibit of the Norwegian artist Edvard Munch (1863-1944) until February 27. Munch significantly influenced the development of modern print making; his media included lithographs, drypoint, wood cut, and etchings. He brilliantly used lines and flat shapes to convey intense moods. His work is powerful; it seems to express the soul of a sensitive man.

In contrast, the work of the American, Moses Soyer, (1899-) seems almost lifeless. Occasionally, there is evidence for his reputation as a great humanist. The Soyer exhibit will run until March 12.

Dear Editor

The last issue of the "Register" devoted two pages to sports, I was not particularly disgusted to see that one third of the paper went to sports coverage. The accompanying pictures were extremely appropriate. If only the insane screamings from pep club were so well recorded.

Since this is the first game I had the great misfortune of attending since one of Nebraska's, I had almost forgotten the screaming, cheering crowds chanting "We're number 1", "Go Central" and other such obscenities.

If my acrophobia hadn't stopped me, I would have climbed to the back (and highest) row of the bleachers and laughed at the crowd all night for making fools out of themselves. I was, needless to say, next to the unrestrained Pep Club section who followed the cheerleaders — all during the game screaming "Sink it", "Yay, Carlos" (after a free throw) and "Who in the heck is Boys Town? We're number one!" I might also add here that the comic relief provided by the cheerleaders greatly contributed to the general noise pollution and also laryngitis of the Terrific Ten.

I enjoy a good game such as Saturday's, but I abhor losing my mind to the insane multitude of a hysteric throng of spirit-drunk sports enthusiasts. It is for this reason that my S.A. ticket is wrinkle free and has only two holes punched in it. It is for the same fear of literally losing my head that I much prefer sinking into a comfortable chair to read Tolstoy or Hammarskjold than to sit on a hard bleacher and be surrounded by inhuman shouts from pep club and the general mass while praying that the game will soon be over so that I can go home and escape into quiet.

Class sees T.V. news

Centralites who wander the halls fifth hour might wonder why they see a large group of students sitting in 319 watching television.

The answer is very simple. During the second, third, or fifth hour the American Government students of Mr. E. A. Lindberg are allowed to watch the Channel 3 news.

This practice was begun at the semester and is now done nearly every day. The object of doing this is to give every student in the class at least some exposure to the news.

Mr. Lindberg pointed out to the class that he will continue this program only as long as the students want it.

Two new teachers are staff addition

New teachers, Mr. Marymee, Mrs. Mitchell

Mr. Marymee

At 5:45 a.m. while most Centralites are still dreaming, Mr. Randy Marymee is breaking the ice in the horse tank. He leaves his farm near Lincoln, drops his wife off at Prairie Lane Elementary School, and proceeds to homeroom 320.

Mr. Marymee, the new biology teacher, is currently the owner of four horses and five dogs. His interest in outdoor activities extends to his other hobbies—the rodeo and hunting. Mr. Marymee has participated in the rodeo since he was sixteen; he has ridden side saddle and bulse. Three of his dogs accompany him on pheasant and raccoon hunts.

This semester is Mr. Marymee's first semester of teaching. He worked fulltime as a manager for Brandeis for 3½ years while attending college part-time. He commented, "When I was promoted to the position of buyer I realized how much I disliked this job." He obtained his degree, student taught in Millard, and is now looking forward to the challenge of teaching at Central.

Mrs. Mitchell

The Home Economic Department acquired a new teacher at the semester. Her name is Mrs. Jereleam Mitchell. She was a student teacher at North for a semester before receiving her teaching job at Central.

Mrs. Mitchell teaches Home-making II, Foods and Nutrition, and Home Development and Growth.

Even though she went to Peru State College and majored in Home Economics, most of her experience was obtained from her childhood.

She has been making patterns and sewing, since she was eight years old. Mrs. Mitchell cited, "Being around older people most of the time was one of the reasons for sewing. They taught me so much." She also added that sewing "became a part of me". Besides creating her own patterns she designs many of her own clothes.

Mrs. Mitchell also treasures cooking as much as she does sewing. Maybe this is why she is nicknamed "The Home-maker."

Officers conduct senior activities

This year's senior class officers have met twice so far this year. They have several ideas and plans for the class of '72, including money-making projects, informational and educational programs, and social activities.

The officers are giving a Senior Banquet this year. This will most likely be held during the last part of May. Besides the banquet, there is a strong possibility of having a party for seniors that is less expensive and less formal than Prom.

A Senior Class Directory will be compiled sometime in May. The directories will enable seniors to keep in touch after graduation. The directories will be sold to help make money for the Senior Banquet.

Another money-making idea is to show movies at school in room 245, for students in study halls.

Many seniors recently registered to vote. Some of them don't really understand the voting process, the differences in parties, or other things dealing with voting. So the senior class officers are planning to sponsor an assembly in the near future dealing with this problem. There will be a well educated speaker on this subject to provide information and answer questions.

Another problem that high school seniors face today is the draft. Plans are in the making for a senior assembly in which there would be a debate-like discussion between a draft board representative and a draft counselor. Then there would be a question and answer period for the students to take part in.

The above mentioned and other surprises are in the making for the class of '72 and the entire student body, by this year's class officers.

Old scheduling entailed exercise

Before a computer was used for making student schedules, the schedules were made by the counselors; and before the counselors made the schedules, the students themselves performed this complex task. The system that was used by the students was commonly called "running for classes." Actual running was prohibited, however the students were extremely adept at walking at a high velocity.

The scheduling took place on the first day of school. In homeroom a list containing all of the subject's names, teachers, and rooms was made available to the students. Each student would plan his desired schedule. Here lies a great advantage of this system since the students could select their own teachers.

However, it was not that easy for the students to get in the classes they wanted. After homeroom each student would "walk rapidly" to the room where the registration to the class he wanted the most. Speed was of the utmost importance. The enrollment in each class was limited and when this limit was reached, the remaining students who wanted to take that class had to choose another class.

Once in the proper room the process of registration was simple. The students would sign their names on a list that was designated for the class that they wanted. Then the teacher of that class would stamp the student's schedule card. Students often collaborated in an attempt to insure the obtaining of a desired class. One trick that was commonly used or attempted was having one student sign a list for someone else and have the unsuspecting teacher stamp both cards. The administration, however, caught on and ended the underhanded methods of the students.

The students would go from room to room until their schedules were complete. Upon completion, the schedules were turned in to the counselors. The counselors main duty was to see that all students had fulfilled their course requirements.

This system was discontinued sometime in the late 1940's. One reason for the discontinuation was the increasingly rowdy behavior of the students which led to some injuries and damage of personal property.

Students merit art awards

The Scholastic Art Awards exhibit was held at the downtown Brandeis store February 5 to February 17. Sponsored by Scholastic Magazines, Inc., the show featured selected art work from the entries of this territory.

Gold achievement keys and certificates of merit were the honors awarded at this regional exhibit. The best art selected from the key winning pieces as finalists will go to the national headquarters at Scholastic Magazine, Inc. There they will be judged along with finalists from other regions for the National High School Art Exhibition in New York.

Central student discusses Oriental cuisine

The Register in an attempt to feature examples of diversity in the world of cuisinary excellence interviewed Central's resident Oriental food connoisseur Wai Huey.

Wai's family is in the business of Oriental food and Wai provided us with a glimpse of Oriental cuisine. Wai concentrated primarily on the more exotic Chinese dishes, such as bird's nest soup, duck eggs, shark fin soup and others.

A large amount of Chinese food is imported from China, both Taiwan and the Mainland. Wai estimates that about one-third of the food his father's restaurant imports come from Red China.

While taking Asian History, Wai brought to class sugarcured drief beef, Phoenix rolls (a type of cookie) and preserved lemon peel. The preserved lemon peel is made by merely letting the lemons fall off the tree and dry in the sun. Wai assured us that the final product is both sanitary and tasty and is chewed on like most people chew on a candy bar.

One of Wai's favorite delicacies is bird nest's soup. He gave us a description of how the soup is made.

Some birds are fed with fish, causing the birds to salivate

After the nests are built up, the impurities are removed and the nests are shipped to their destination. The nests are then added to a broth made from soup bones and often containing shrimp.

Although this sounds distasteful to most Americans, whom Wai characterizes as "basically eaters of too much steak and potatoes", Wai testifies to the soup's excellence.

Other dishes include shark fin soup ("the fins are rubbery like tough spaghetti") and duck eggs that are boiled, then preserved in urine for forty days.

Central fifth in the nation?

Rumor has it that the Chicago Tribune, a newspaper that rates high school teams on a national basis, has ranked Central fifth in the country. The method in which they supposedly came to that conclusion is beyond me since intrastate competition in Nebraska and other states is almost nonexistent.

If Central played the way they did against Boys Town every game, that lofty spot would be well deserved. The Eagles, though, have been erratic in games with South, Abraham Lincoln, Tech, and Creighton Prep. They have had trouble with teams that they should handle easily.

Forgetting everything, however, let us all hope that Central plays like one of the ten best high school teams in the country when district tournament play begins.

Winter success

The World Herald recently came up with an article praising the winter sports program of Westside. They noted that the Warriors had produced excellence in basketball, swimming, and wrestling. Central, though, hasn't been given any such publicity despite the fact that our winter teams have put together a season that hasn't been rivaled here in many years.

Everybody knows that the basketball team is good. But, with a fifth place finish in the state meet, the wrestling team must be considered excellent. Despite inadequate facilities and vacancies in certain weight divisions which result in forfeits, Central finished much higher than Westside did.

JV makes progress

The Junior Varsity basketball team, after a midseason slump, has started to put things together. Mark Vaughn and Charles Lewis, both brought up from the sophomore team, have played well and counted in heavily in victories over Ryan and Boys Town. Rick Elliott's rebounding and Mike Carter's good shooting have also pulled the JV together.

Pregame psychology

Mr. Dan Daly, English teacher and announcer at Central's home basketball games, has developed a method to "psyche out" the opposing team. In the introduction of the teams before the game he will praise the other team by either mentioning their state rank (if their ranking happens to be higher than Central's) or, if they are ranked below Central, he will say, "Tonight's game is between two of the finest basketball teams in the state." This tends to either give the other team false confidence or make our players take the opponent seriously.

When Mr. Daly did his "fine teams" routine before the Benson game, the only reaction evident was a host of puzzled expressions from Benson's side and a roar of laughter from Central's.

Gymnasts fall to Burke

During the first Metropolitan Conference Woman's Gymnastic Tournament, Burke topped Central 91.63 to 58.39.

Though Burke was victorious overall, Central's own Sue Grisinger won the "all around" title. She took top honors in floor exercise uneven parallel bars, vaulting and the balance beam competition.

The main problem of both teams is competing with the basketballers for the use of the school gym.

At Central the gym is used one day a week until five for gymnastic practice. The participants agree that more time is needed for practice on their routines.

The Metropolitan conference also has added girl's golf, swimming, and track and field competition. Formerly, girls competed only in tennis.

Dual season comes to end

Central's dual-meet swimming season has come to an end. Central swimmers faced twelve different teams this year, and finished with a record of 1-4. Of the 4 wins, two came against the same school and one was a forfeit.

However, Coach Brian Watson pointed out that last year Central's swim team had a record of 2 wins, one coming on a forfeit. "This year doubling our record is a major accomplishment," commented Coach Watson.

"The State Meet is Feb. 25-26, and we hope to perform well. This year's team is 75% sophomores and if they continue to progress as much, we are looking forward to having a good season next year," cited Coach Watson.

Coach Martin's Comments

Coach dislikes unruly crowds

The Creighton Prep game seemed to bring out the worst in some of our student following. I have been somewhat concerned and a bit threatened by our crowd behavior at basketball games.

Truthfully, I am embarrassed to be associated with the foul language; the stomping of bleachers; and, especially, the disrespect to players, referees, and supervisors that has characterized a small segment of our students.

Please kids, let's be number one in sportsmanship too. We can make a lot of noise and have a great time without being rude and disorderly.

I'm sure that there are hundreds of people in Omaha who would favor disbanding all high school athletics. In a time when taxes are becoming more and more burdensome, and school boards are looking for ways to cut expenses; it is obvious that we must do all we can to improve the image of high school sports.

It would give me a great sense of pride if we would allow Burke's players to shoot free-throws, Thursday night without our intimidating them with noise. Let's not leave a wake of

Wrestlers place fifth in state

Central's wrestling season ended on a bright note as the Eagles finished fifth in the State Wrestling Tournament.

Central's brother combination of Tim and Bob Fullerton both won their weight division titles.

Tim decisioned Bob Berger of Millard 11-0 in the 98 pound division. Bob decisioned Charles Kerndt of Ralston 6-3 in the 105 pound division.

"It's hard to explain my feelings as state champ. I would have been really happy if we would have had three state champions. After Terry Ammons lost, we just wanted to get as many points and finish as high up as we could," commented Tim Fullerton.

"My best feeling is that we finished higher than any other Omaha school, and we only took three kids down. This is the highest I have ever finished, and it is the first time I have ever had two state champs at one time," cited Mr. James Bond.

"I couldn't be happier for Tim, Bob, and Terry because they all worked so hard all year, and it shows that hard work usually has its rewards," added Coach Bond.

Unfortunately Central's chances for three state champions ended abruptly when Terry Ammons lost to Randy De Freece of Columbus in the semi-finals of the 126 pound division.

Cagers clinch Metro championship

Central-Ryan

On Friday night, February 11, top-ranked Central handed Ryan High a rare home court loss, 81-68. The win was Central's ninth straight.

The game was a struggle for the first three quarters as the Eagles' big men got into foul trouble. Ryan led by eight at the end of the first quarter and by as much as eleven in the second quarter. Scoring eight straight points, Central cut the Knights' lead to three as the first half ended.

Michael Ashford and Kevin

Kresl turned the game around in the third quarter with their hustling defense. Coach Jim Martin commented, "The best thing about the Ryan game was that we found out that some of our big men could come off the bench and do a very good job, especially in the way of defense."

Tim Williams, who was seven out of ten from the field in the second half, led all scorers with twenty-six points. Keith Brown played one of his better all around games and finished with nineteen points.

Central-Boys Town

On Saturday night Central was in command from the outset as they soundly defeated Boys Town, 69-54. The win avenged an earlier loss to the Cowboys in the Holiday Tournament.

Dennis Forrest, Carlos Dillard, Keith Brown, and Tim Williams all scored in double figures. Coach Martin, somewhat surprised by the ease in which Central won, said, "Our all around good play and outstanding man to man defense probably frustrated them early in the game."

Central assured the outcome in the third quarter by expanding a twelve point half-time lead into a twenty-four point margin. Reserves played most of the final period.

Central-Prep

On Friday night, February 18, Central overcame a delay game by Prep to win 44-36 in overtime. The Eagles did not have a player who finished with more than eight points.

Central did not score until five minutes had passed in the first quarter. They also shot below thirty per-cent accuracy for the entire game while Prep shot 47 per-cent from the field. Averaging about seventeen points a quarter, the Eagles went into the locker room at halftime with a total of thirteen points.

The Bluejays continued their stall in the second half. They led by two points with less than a minute left in the game until Tim Williams drilled in a shot to put the game into overtime. Then, free throws by Mike Ashford, Larry Hunter, and Dennis Forrest assured the win.

Riflers lose

On February 8, Central's rifle team was edged by North, 1243-1211. Richard Reynolds, Joe Upson, Alan Wagner, and Douglas Himburger all scored high in that dual meet.

The next day, Central faced Benson in another dual meet. This time, however, the rifle team triumphed in a 1211-1205 decision. Dennis Hyde led Central with 256 points. He was followed by Richard Reynolds and Douglas Himburger, both with 244 points, Joe Upson with 235 points, and Don Reynolds with 232 points.

Central happenings

'Mathletes' attend field day
Saturday, February 12, Central's math team placed third in the Creighton University Mathematics Field Day. Over one hundred schools from five states participated in the contest. Central had won the contest in the three previous years.

The members of this team were Larry Denenberg, Steve Denenberg, Dale Mann, Jim Steinberg, and Dave Still. A second team representing Central consisted of George Holland, George Lozier, Bill Rifkin, Warren Weiner, and Richard Wiesman. This team failed to place.

Dale Mann and Jim Steinberg placed second in the Leap Frog Relay, and Steve Denenberg finished second in the Mad Hatter Marathon. These three each received a three hundred dollar scholarship.

Larry Denenberg, who finished third in the Chalk Talk, received a two hundred dollar scholarship for his efforts.

After the contest a team member said, "Of course we're disappointed, we thought that we were going to win."

Creighton Prep won the contest although Prep placed in only two events. The team championship was calculated by adding up the place finishings in all four events.

Library obtains xerox machine

Central's library has a new addition: a copying machine. This machine was obtained for use by students at the price of 10 cents per copy.

The machine is on lease from Bishop's Office Equipment company on a small percentage profit basis. If a profit is made, Central will receive a small portion of the profit, which will be put in the activities fund.

The machine is at Central on a trial basis and will remain here for at least three months.

Eden attends CEEB conference
Miss Irene Eden attended the annual meeting of the College Entrance Examination Board in Chicago on February 6-9. Many discussion groups were held at the meeting on such things as early graduation, early admission to college, credit by examination, and financial aid. The main purpose of the Board is to assist colleges and high schools in making the transition from high school to college, junior, or community college as effective as possible.

The meeting was valuable to Miss Eden for two reasons. "It gives me an opportunity to get first hand information pertaining to activities in the CEEB as well as the changes in the many programs they offer for assistance to colleges and high schools. Also, I had an opportunity to exchange ideas with other counselors on programs taking place in other high schools comparable to Central."
