THE CLASS OF 1911.

What present need is there to spend words on the excellencies of this renowned class; what other possible gain except to emphasize its qualities? Probably little advantage is gained for the moment, but when we have left the good old school and are engaged in our various walks of life we will find exceeding pleasure in reviewing our history and comparing our own dear class with those that have gone before us and with those that have followed. And surely there is not a graduate of this class of nineteen eleven that will not go out into the world or into another school, proud to own that he was a member of this organization.

It was in the fall of 1907 that we began our career in the Omaha High School; a throng of about two hundred and fifty sturdy boys and girls, ambitious to learn, determined to succeed. And now we are leaving the grime and dust of the old school, conscious of a work nobly done and wrapped in a blaze of glory, only to seek conquest in newer and more difficult fields.

In the course of our four years of work we have not centered our genius on one point, nor yet on two, but we have displayed a versatility of quality that is seldom found in a class no larger than ours. We have had a goodly representation in athletics, in literary work, in debating and in studiousness. In fact, there is no institution in the school that has not been benefited for our having been a factor in its development.

As Freshmen we did not show any great amount of athletic ability, but we were not long in getting over that slight backwardness, for in the next year we began to make a name for ourselves, the culmination of which was glorious indeed. As representatives of this institution we had such able men as Rowley, Voyle, Rector, Dow, Andrus, Payne, Howes, Baumann, Howe, Carson and Ludwig. To Payne, Andrus, Rector, Howes and Carson is due much of the credit for our brilliant football records in 1910, while to Carson, Howe and Baumann we are indebted for our basket ball. But we must not forget the optimistic and faithful Ludwig, who so gallantly carried the honors from the field in the half-mile handicap at the Auditorium April 1, 1911. With such men as these we are bound to be successful in athletics. We are more. We are confident that their future records will reflect creditably on our class and school.

We have been especially fortunate in the selection of our officers during the two years that we have been organized. As Juniors we were under the able guidance of President Elbert Wade. To him much credit is due for the interest and enthusiasm which we displayed at that time. This good work was greatly expedited by the other class officers, of whom we are justly proud. As Vice-President, Miss Helen Miller was exceptionally efficient; her work being the silent kind, but work productive of benefit. We are equally proud of Secretary Miss Nell Ryan, Treasurer Voyle Rector and Sergeants-at-Arms Miss Loa Howard and Harold Andrus. These people have continued their efforts all through the Senior year and have had a good share in shaping the class mould during that time.

The class chose the following officers to pilot them through their last and most important school year: President, Voyle Rector; Vice-President, Miss Loa Howard; Secretary, Miss Martha Moore; Treasurer, Leonard Marshall; Sergeants-at-Arms, Miss Bernice Border and Donald Howe. With such leaders it is small wonder that we have been successful as a class. Too much cannot be said as to the importance of efficient class managers. We do not doubt but that to these managers we are indebted for considerable of the good in the class.

As a school becomes older originality in producing Senior fetes becomes more difficult. But this was not our only disadvantage, for we were not allowed to have a "Senior Fair" unless we gave it on a lower level than it has been given before, which, of course, our pride would not permit us to do. Hence we were confronted with a problem which only the combined efforts of the class teachers, class officers and class body could remove. After a series of heated debates and parliamentary law conflicts it was decided to cast everything in one throw, and by the centralization of forces of the whole class strive to erect a monument which would remain forever. And to all appearances our hopes have been realized. The play "Monsieur Beaucaire," as played by the Seniors of the Omaha High School in nineteen eleven, will forever remain in the mind's eye of the hundreds that witnessed this piece of art. The play was held at the Brandeis theater, the best place obtainable. In the one evening performance every seat was filled with an enthusiastic supporter of home talent. And talent was truly displayed. The entire cast seemed to be well fitted to play perfectly the respective parts assigned to the individuals. In the two leading people, Miss Helen King, playing "Lady Mary," and Dexter Corson as "Beaucaire," we recognize unusual ability.

But to secure success we must have promoters as well as actors. Our leader throughout the entire play work was John Loomis. His work has been characterized by an earnestness and success that is typical of no one but himself.

It is not necessary to go into further detail concerning this class. It has sufficient prestige to make its way unheralded. We only wish to say in conclusion that we realize how much we owe to the teachers of this school; realize how small a factor we are after all when compared to world powers, yet mighty enough as a class; and most of all the class extends to the classes to come a continuation of the joy of High School life, and an even greater success than our own.

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE."

"Perseverance is rewarded by success."

This we hold to be true and this we have proven to be true. On that memorable afternoon when the Seniors decided to have a play as their class "stunt" little did they know what a stupendous task they had undertaken. Even after the difficult work of selecting the cast there were few Seniors that realized the enormity of the work. But when the contracting for the opera house had been completed, the cast had been drilled, the costumes arranged for and ticket selling undertaken, then, and only then, did the real work dawn upon the students.

In their efforts to secure something unhackneyed, important and lasting the class set about a feat which for magnitude and grandeur has never been surpassed. We are proud of our own confidence, proud of our indomitable will.

When volunteers were summoned to act the various parts there was at once an eagerness to participate shown such as was little expected. One after another the candidates appeared before the judges to test their ability as actors, and one after another anxiously awaited their decision. For a number of rehearsals two were acting on each part, but the final cast was chosen early enough to assure perfect control of the play. Any who were disappointed by not receiving speaking parts were given a second chance to take part by appearing for the minuet. Here a number of ambitious students found a field for their talent in that stately old dance of the early centuries.

Miss Fitch, who coached the cast, devoted a great amount of her valuable time in perfecting the different parts. In addition to this we were given the use of her studio for rehearsal. We are well aware that it is as much her ability and persistent work that made the play such a brilliant success as it was the excellent spirit of the students. The class, one and all, extend to her their heartiest thanks for her willing and able assistance.

And again we must extend our thanks to the chairman of the play committee, John Loomis, not that we feel he has a desire for such, but because we appreciate his efforts.

The tickets were in the hands of Elbert Wade. His committee each were given a certain number of tickets; each member was at the head of a sub-committee, and so at the end we find that there were ticket sellers galore, each anxious to dispose of those in his possession. The tickets were sold at a price within the reach of all; the best seats being only one dollar. Considering the quality of the production and comparatively small cost we are not surprised at the size of the house.

The costumes for the play were secured from O. Lieben. As usual in any such case, Mr. Lieben was an important factor in the arrangement of scenery and costumes. To him much credit is due for the beautiful display of that early scene.

And as for the characters themselves, too much praise cannot be extended to them. Through the periods of discouragement, when progress seemed slow, these people still remained hopeful. When other students were enjoying the pleasant balm of warm springtime these students gave up their time to the not always pleasant rehearsal. And when we find the other students enjoying themselves after having gotten their lessons, the following were still hard at work learning their lines, all of them ambitious to hold the class up as a model for those to come.

SYNOPSIS OF PLAY.

A glorious and interesting piece of scandal is abroad, filling the very air with its obnoxious odors. It has its origin in France, but in as much as French influence is paramount, it needs must find its way into other European countries and into England. And nowhere is it being discussed with more intense pleasure than at Bath. Old Mr. Bicksit, a man who claims to have traveled much and who is reputed for his gossipy nature, relates to a party of fashionables gathered in the pump room at this resort the latest news. Louis XV, who is now king of France, is cousin to a very unruly young man, le Duc de Orleans. Not so unruly, however, except in that he is determined to do his own choosing of a wife, for King Louis XV has demanded that he marry Princess Henriette, his own cousin, and a very noble and loving woman. He, however, more because of his strong-headedness than his aversion to his intended bride, leaves France to save himself from being thrown in prison. This subject seemed to afford the ladies present no small amount of room for discussion.

The men, however, were engrossed in other things. There was in Bath a certain young Frenchman, Monsieur Beaucaire, who was creating considerable of a stir among the gentry of that place. His apartments were exceedingly lavish and his retinue the wonder of all. But among these gentlemen of birth he was noted especially for his luck with the cards, having won hundreds from Rackell and Townbrake and any others who would play him, yet seeming to care nothing at all for the stakes he won. He further had the reputation of being a fair player, in fact, "the fairest player alive."

In the midst of all this discussion and confusion who should be ushered in but Beaucaire himself. Judging by the way our "fair ladies" are behaving he is wonderfully popular among them. And why should he not be? He certainly has the bearing of refinement. His well-shaped features, set off by his dark hair, mustache and French cut beard lend an air to his slight foreign accent and politeness which are truly attractive.

Immediately he enters he is a cynosure of all. For a time mirth and jollity reign supreme, but the harmony is broken when the chair of Lady Mary Carlisle, attended by Captain Badger, enters the room. It is the plan of Lord Winterset, enamored of Lady Mary, and the master of ceremonies, aided by the tool, Badger, to publicly disgrace Monsieur Beaucaire. And there, before the elite of Bath, he is denounced as an impostor, a barber of the Marquis de Mirepoix and is expelled from the pump room. In the face of these raileries he graciously extends to all an invitation to come to his apartments when they are in the mood for play or fight.

And his invitation is accepted by none other than the noble Duke of Winterset himself. The second act opens with Beaucaire and Winterset playing with the cards in the former's apartments. Beaucaire is as polite as ever. After a few plays where Beaucaire seems to be the lucky party he quietly reaches over to

"My Lord of Winterset" and picks a card from his sleeve. Instantly Winterset is in a rage. Fearing that he will be betrayed by the Frenchman he rushes toward him with the intention of permanently silencing him. He is stopped, however, by a cool command from that person and on looking around he sees himself surrounded by the Frenchman's lackeys.

Beaucaire was in love. He had been bewitched by the "beauty of the town." Lady Mary Carlisle was to him the goddess of beauty herself; an angel. And it was for the purpose of being presented to her that Beaucaire framed the trap for Winterset. He would not disclose his disgrace if he would present him to the Lady Mary. He thought that that would be sufficient. After considerable argument Winterset, to save himself from disgrace, finally consents to present Beaucaire to Lady Mary at a ball to be given that evening by Lady Rellerton, her aunt. He emerges from his toilet a new man. Arrayed in white satin, his long, light hair, which had previously been covered with a wig, falling over his shoulders, his jewel bedecked sword at his side, he emerged; not as Monsieur Beaucaire, but as the winning French gallant, Monsieur le Duc de Chateaurien. His now smooth face well concealed his former identity.

In the next scene we see him at his best. He is undoubtedly the idol of the ladies and the envy of the men. Here, if anywhere, he shows the qualities of ideal manhood. To the ladies he shows nothing but truest reverence; to the men he shows perfect respect. It is at this time that the jealous and deceitful Winterset has conspired to put an end to his hated enemy, Captain Badger, the weak-willed subordinate of Winterset, purposely picks a quarrel with Beaucaire by insulting the French and in particular Princess Henriette. This is more than the Frenchman can stand, and he challenges Badger to a duel. Swords are procured, seconds chosen and the battle begun. There is great consternation among the guests, for Captain Badger is reputed to be the best swordsman in England, but the minds of the sympathizing lords and ladies are soon put at rest, for Monsieur Beaucaire, alias Chateaurien, returns from the duel unscratched. He is proclaimed the champion swordsman of England just as the curtain falls on the second act.

Some time has elapsed since the scene in Lady Rellerton's ballroom. The eye of the audience is attracted by the natural beauty at the good Squire Bantison's country home. In contrast with the stiff beauty of the ballroom we gaze upon a lovely garden in the suburbs of Bath. Here, as may be expected, M. Duc de Chateaurien and his now won Lady Mary are the central figures. The quiet September evening is in perfect harmony with the love making which ensues between this happy pair. He sings for her a touching French love song and tells her in his now poetic language, a language inspired by its subject, of his dreams of happiness. His heart is full of tender love, but his lips do not seem to convey the thoughts his heart would tell. Her hand is resting lightly on the arm of her chair. Slowly he takes her hand in his and presses it ever so lightly in his own, and she responds with a convulsive clasp of his hand.

Suddenly the still of night is broken by the trampling of horses in the distance and the shouts of perhaps half a dozen men. Straight at the chair they come. Beaucaire draws his sword and prepares to defend himself from this fierce onslaught, for he knows the harm is intended for him and not Lady Mary. His movements are like ten fencing masters, his aim sure.

All this time Lady Mary, indignant at the assault, attempts to secure help for the Frenchman from those who are standing near. And still the fight continues. Chateaurien dexterously parrying blow after blow, continues to fight, if not victorious, at least on an equal. Finally, however, one of the assailants grabs his sword from behind and he is overpowered by those remaining. They carry him to a tree near by, where they intend to whip him. Their work is arrested by a cry from afar, "Mon seigneur," "Monseigneur," and the lackeys of Chateaurien come into the field. Ten minutes from the beginning of the conflict and the would-be bravadoes are routed.

It is at this point that the Duke of Winterset appears. He seems to have been present during the assault and directed their moves, but he remained in the background. When Lady Mary invites Chateaurien to come into her coach he considers it high time for his work to begin. In the most humble tones for having been so careless, he apologizes to Lady Mary for introducing Duc de Chateaurien, a barber, into the polite society of Bath.

A haze seems to come before the face of Chateaurien and he seems to have lost control of himself. He holds a handkerchief at his side, in order, as he says, to keep the wasp from seeing he had stung him. He has no more than strength enough to say that he had been a barber. He falls into the arms of his servant just as the coach of Lady Mary is driven off. He had made a declaration that he would be present in society one week from this night.

It is just one week after the episode of the garden. The curtain of the last act goes up on a beautiful assembly hall. The Duke de Chateaurien has not appeared nor is he expected to appear, for the industrious Beau Nash has arranged that he be prevented from presenting himself. He, on this account, is doubly satisfied, for two new visitors have appeared and he will reap in an even more abundant harvest because of their presence. The Comte de Beaujolais, a handsome young stripling, and the Marquis de Mirepoix, the ambassador to Louis XV, are the new arrivals. We see Lord Winterset and Lady Mary together constantly. Lady Mary is left alone for a moment while Winterset goes to fetch a class of wine, and so, being tired, steps into an adjoining room to rest. There were two men seated at a table playing cards. One is Molyneaux and the other—Duc de Chateaurien.

But what a difference in his appearance. He is weak now from his wound. But his breast is literally covered with various orders. Lady Mary tries to get him to leave the room to save himself from being forcefully ejected. She confesses she loves him, but he is an impostor and she can have nothing to do with him.

About this time Winterset, on looking for Lady Mary, discovers Chateaurien and immediately summons a number of young nobles to aid in getting him out of the building. Among these are the Marquis Mirepoix and the Comte Beaujolais. As they spy the so-called Chateaurien they both rush to him with outstretched arms, the young count actually embracing him, calls him brother and tells him he should not have left France. Then pushing him to the foreground, the Marquis de Mirepoix introduces him to the surprised audience as the cousin to Louis IX, Prince Louis Philippe de Valois, Duke of Orleans, Duke of Chartres, etc., giving a list of titles too numerous to mention.

It is evident that it was he that was the principal character in "that most intricate piece of scandal" which had lately been the talk of Bath. Not wishing to marry the person chosen for him and fearing the wrath of his cousin, he left France disguised as a barber, to reside in England until the anger of the king should subside. It was here that he conceived the idea of gambling to while away the weary hours. He was not an impostor, but he was soon—what? Why, the betrothed of the Beauty of Bath, Lady Mary.

The Old Stair Case.

This year a landmark of Omaha has taken its place in the past, placed there by the hand of progress. The old High School building, erected some thirty years ago, has been torn down to make room for the completion of the new building.

The work of wrecking was very rapid, it requiring only forty days to complete it. The men worked day and night, picking the walls to pieces, and innumerable teams worked incessantly carting away the wreckage. The stones forming the casings of the windows shook the building as they tumbled from their positions on the upper stories. This, with the bricks rumbling down the long shoot to the ground below, kept the thought that we were losing a friend, fresh in our minds.

The building was vacated Monday, April 10. The wrecking crew arrived Tuesday, April 11. The above picture was taken the same day.

CLASS OF 1912.

Here we are in the third year of our High School career. We have grown more patriotic and enthusiastic with each year. We have given, and will continue to give the best that there is in us to the O. H. S. We are a class that leads while the others follow.

In our Freshman year, we entered with a vim every form of school activity, and the results show our merit. In our second year, our upper classmen looked upon us with admiration and now in our Junior year we are both respected and admired.

We have surpassed in ticket selling. In our Freshman year, under the leadership of George Grimes, we ran the Seniors a close second. But we were not satisfied with second place and so in our Sophomore year, led by Beryl Crocker and Deyo Crane, we left the other classes in the rear. This year Deyo Crane had charge of the ticket-selling and under his leadership we secured second place in the Season's Contest.

But ticket-selling is but one of the many things in which we are leaders. It may be in the class room, in the Literary Societies, in debating, on the football field, on the basket ball floor, or on the track, it matters not, the Juniors play a prominent part in all.

In the class room our record is one of which we are justly proud. Then closely connected with the class room are the Literary and Debating Societies. Again the class of 1912 stands forth as one that does things, for not only are members of the class holding prominent offices, but it is the Juniors who form the nucleus of these societies.

In debating we have always put forth our best efforts for the O. H. S. In our Freshman year we gained recognition through Fred Rypins, who gained a place on the squad. Our second year was crowned with greater success, as there were three members of the class of 1912 on the squad. These were George Grimes, Philip Johnson and Fred Rypins. This year we have added another to those of our Sophomore year, "Ted" Landale being the fourth member of our class to uphold the Purple and White of the O. H. S. on the debating platform.

Drill must not be forgotten. Here you will notice that it is the Juniors who wear their company medals. But here the girls of the class share the honors, as three of the class of 1912 have been chosen as sponsors.

In athletics, as in all other branches of High School activity, the Juniors have shown the way to the other classes. In football the most popular of High School sports, the class of 1912 has been well represented by Bowman, captain-elect, the speedy back field man, by Millard, the substitute end, who always plays hard, by Baldrige, the husky centre, better known as "Venus," and by "Little Brother" Rector, who can play either in the line or behind the line. As for the second team, it was composed mostly of Juniors who made it the best second team the O. H. S. has turned out. In basket ball, the next in line, four Juniors had places on the first squad. These were Jacobs, the sturdy guard; Rector, whom the team could not do without; Munnecke, the man who could play any position; and Crocker, the red-haired forward and captain-elect. Our class teams have been top-notchers. In our Freshman year we secured second place. We did not do so well in our second year, but this year we romped away with the class championship. The team was composed of Meyer, captain; DeLamatre, Ohman, Blake, Jenkins, F.; Bowman and Crane. In track work it is not the quantity, but the quality that counts. This just fits the Juniors, as there are only two members of the class on the team. These are Vergil Rector and Hugh Millard; the former holds the school's record in the pole vault and the latter is a member of the crack relay team and a sprinter.

Early in the year the class organized and chose the following set of efficient officers: President, Deyo Crane; Vice-President, Laura Zimmerman; Secretary, Beulah Byrd; Treasurer, Mac Baldrige; Sergeant-at-Arms, Elizabeth Rainey and Vergil Rector. The whole class rises to give a vote of thanks to those who have made this class one which is looked up to and respected.

You have been taken through the long list of achievements of the class of 1912. You say, "What a splendid record!" Yes, but do not forget that we have another year before us which we will strive to make an even more glorious success, and in doing so we will make our class and our colors, Red and Gray, an honor to the O. H. S.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS.

It is a well known fact that the Omaha High School has been growing in athletics and all other lines of interest during the last few years. Our Sophomore class is not behind the other classes in this respect.

There has not been an athletic event this year but what the Sophomore class has had a representative in it. In the fall of 1910 Frank Golden made the first football team and played a star game at right guard during the season. When outdoor sports were ended and basket ball began another member of this class appeared to advantage. This was Leslie Burkenroad, who played a swift game at forward.

Our class team, though it did not make a remarkable record, it still made a satisfactory showing. In the spring of the year of 1911 we showed up with a large number of athletes on the field. Robert Wood, one of our classmates, was made captain of the track team. In the large indoor track meet Robert Wood, John Drexel and Halleck Rouse made fine showings and came off with flying colors. Coleman Gordon, although he did not win, because of the many college opponents, made a good showing. In the class meet we showed what we were made of by winning first place. Again the captain of the team, Robert Wood, showed up fine by being chosen the best all-round athlete of the school. He broke the school record in the broad jump, jumping 20 feet, 9 inches, and winning the hundred-yard dash and several other events. Halleck Rouse, another classmate of ours, won a great number of points for us. He competed in three or four different events and ranked second best of the athletes at the end of the meet. The other members of our class that competed did good work towards winning out. In the Missouri Valley and state meets Robert Wood made fine records and outclassed everyone in his running. John Drexel, a member of the relay team, also did good work.

In other lines we have also shown up. Elwood Pratt, another classmate of ours, made the debating team and has been doing very creditable work on it. There has also been a new club formed containing many of the most prominent members among the Sophomores.

All these events go to prove that ours is a wide-awake class and in the next two years while we remain at the Omaha High School, we intend to make good. M. N.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS.

It has been the custom of every class to review, for the benefit of The Annual, its achievements during the year. In Athletics, Debating, in the Regiment, and in Literary Societies, the Freshmen have taken a prominent part.

In drill, the cadets have accomplished a great deal and won high praise from their captains. We even dare to hope that our class may produce a lieutenant colonel even greater than the present one. It would hardly be becoming for us to carry off the honors in athletics, when upper classmen had planned to win, so we kept somewhat in the background this year. However the boys have been practicing hard—and just wait until next year, and then we will show you what the class of 1914 can do.

Debating is the field where we really shine. Our team won the debate with Council Bluffs and Harold Torell distinguished himself by winning the medal for debating. We have several other promising debaters, who will probably make the school team next year.

Many of the societies took in as many as twenty new members, and all of them agreed that the Freshmen were the most active and enthusiastic workers. Such praise was indeed dear to our hearts, for we have had many tricks together with our triumphs. We guilelessly wandered about in search of an elevator at the advice of smart Sophomores; we quaked in fear before some of our teachers and went hungry because we were afraid to ask where the lunch room was.

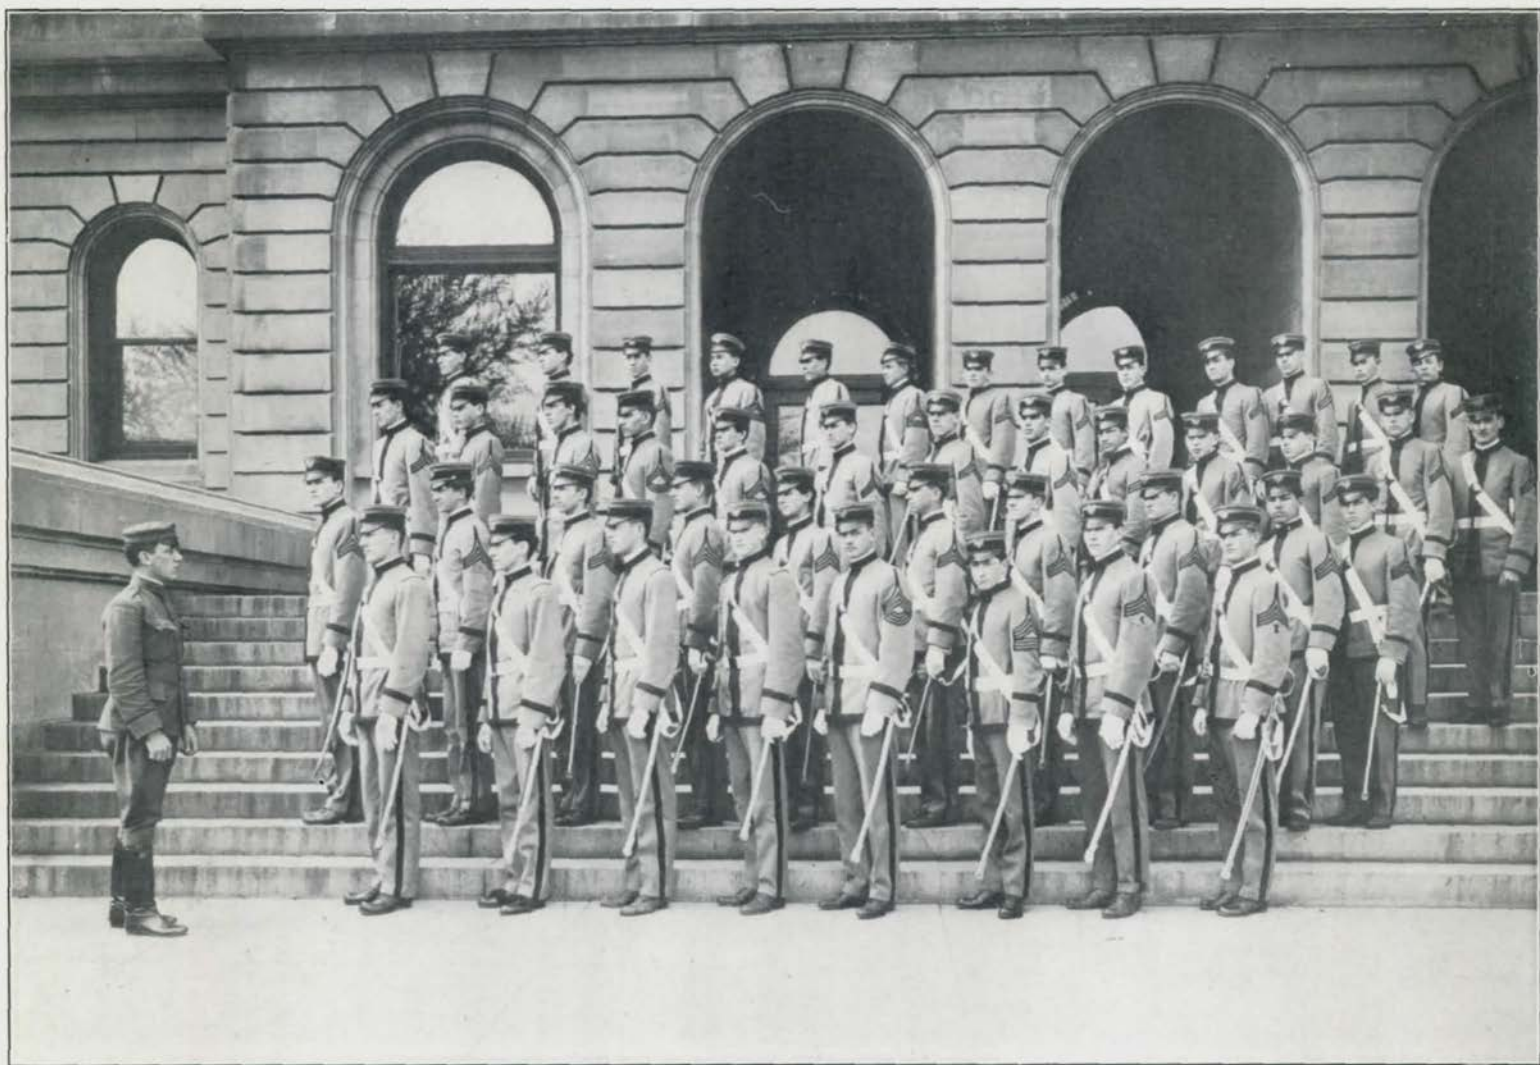

But that is all over now, and we will soon be Sophomores—that is, all but those who can not bear to part with the joys of Freshman life. Our hope and prayer is that as Sophomores we shall fulfill the promises we have made for a bright future.

THE REGIMENT.

Regardless of the fact that the two sessions have interfered a great deal with drill, the work during the past year has been very beneficial to the Regiment's efficiency. Its organization has been perfected, the keeping of the records simplified and drill as a whole broadened and worked out to a finer degree.

When the two sessions went into effect, drill hour was changed from 2:08-3:08 to 11:45-12:08. The time allowed was therefore a little shortened and also, because of the lunch hour following drill, the captains were not allowed to hold the men over the schedule time. As a result the officers were forced to drill the men much harder to obtain the same result as formerly. Drill is probably benefited by this because the hard work would improve the discipline.

The Regiment as formed two years ago had no commanding officer, but this year the office of Lieutenant Colonel was established and the Regiment now has a cadet commander. Not only is the organization of the Regiment improved in this manner, but the relations between officers and their seniors and juniors have been more formal and military. As a result the aspect of drill is changing and the men and officers are conducting themselves after "regulars."

Formerly there had been trouble in keeping the records of the cadets. The files were poorly kept and the system was not in the least accurate. This year Mr. Bernstein has arranged the records in such a way as to greatly simplify the work and enable the adjutant to keep account of all cadets.

Drill this year has been more fitting for as large an organization as the Regiment. There has been less of company drill and more of battalion drill. Guard mounting and battalion parades have been held frequently and regimental parades have been held regularly. The plan of having more drill in battalion and regiment place drill on a broader plane. The men become familiar with movements of larger bodies of troops and so get a better practical military training. It is to be regretted that a large field is not available for the evolutions of the Regiment.

This is the last year that Lieutenant Haskell will be commandant, as he has been assigned to military service in the Philippines. His work with the cadets has been thoroughly appreciated by all the cadets and it is with regret that they think of losing him.

COMPANY F.

Indicative of the quality of Company F in former years is the fact that Lieutenant-Colonel Rector, the student officer of highest rank in the Regiment, is one of the staff officers drawn from its ranks.

The record of Company F shows it to be one of the oldest and best known companies of the High School. In the seventh year after its organization in 1899 it won the flag in the competitive drill. Since then it has not been able to gain first place in that event, but in 1909, under a leader of unusual executive ability—Captain Howard Roe—it came out second, Company A being its conqueror by a very small margin. The following year the rivalry was strong between these two companies. When the test came, F proved its worth and that of Captain Clarence Patton, not only by defeating A, but also by surpassing two companies which ranked higher than A. In the same "compet" the First Battalion, of which Company F is a member, won the Davidson trophy, and Sergeants Willrodt and Bradley of F won second and third places in the individual drill.

This year the character of the company has been excellent. There has not been any spirit of rowdyism. The men have drilled well. However, it is not in drill alone that the men are proficient. Some of our non-commissioned officers have done much for the school athletics. In the company, baseball teams have been formed, to contest with each other and representatives of other companies.

In the early part of the school year former Captain Howard Roe visited his old company, and in speaking to the men gave them deserved congratulations on their captain. Willrodt is loyal to the company, not from selfish motives, but from real interest. He has the commander-like quality of being himself complete master of the manual. The men feel that they can rely on him, needing only to obey. Willrodt is assisted by two most able lieutenants, McKinnon and Ludwig.

To intensify, if possible, the inspiration afforded by the company's past history and the present, Captain Willrodt presented to the company as sponsor Miss Alice Van Burgh. In the limited time of their acquaintance she has made the men feel her interest in the company.

Under such inspiration we may hope that among the fair spectators on the competitive field, one may raise exultantly on high the Purple and Gold. P. J., '12.

COMPANY B.

Since competitive drill, the prettiest spectacle of the year, was first established in 1895, Company B has, under the leadership of her able commanders, become what it is today, one of the best, if not the best of the companies of the Omaha High School Regiment. It hardly seems fitting that we, in this brief portrayal of the merits of this company, enter into details concerning its past history, including stories of twice winning the flag, several times taking second place and the numerous individual honors; but we will make a futile attempt at giving you an idea of what Company B is today.

To predict what the fate of the company shall be at the end of this year is almost impossible, for the best of the companies have made errors at the last moment which have put glory out of their reach. But if conclusions may be drawn from the drill so far we may conclude that Company B stands as fair a chance as any to be the color company for the next year, for each man is at work with a spirit of determination to uphold the honor of the company and to make it win with a larger per cent than ever a company has won before. This spirit, if carried on until the end of the year, is bound to put all doubt out of the way as to which company is the best, and our superiority will be acknowledged by every man in the Regiment.

Among the non-commissioned officers and privates we have several remarkable individual drillers who are well able to carry off the medals. They are almost perfect in their knowledge of the manual of arms and are sure to make a record for themselves, as well as for the company, in the individual drill.

Company B is indeed fortunate in having as a commander Captain Edwin Carson, who instills into his fellow workers a spirit of loyalty which goes far toward making a successful company. He is cool-headed, a remarkably fine driller, an able commander and is of such a type that all the members of his company may look up to him and say, "That is our captain." As assistants to Captain Carson we have in Lieutenants Eddy and Solomon two men who are sparing neither time nor effort to attain the goal of the company's success and whose contribution to the progress of the company cannot be overestimated.

Ranking with these able commanders we place our sponsor, Loa Howard, who has come into our ranks to instill an added zeal and patriotic feeling into every member of the company in their desire for the great and glorious flag.

With Captain Carson at our head and with such a group of lieutenants and non-commissioned officers who have such great faith in their company, we are sure that the company, for the honor of their sponsor, Miss Loa Howard, will, on the day of Competitive Drill, march off the field victors in that hard-fought contest.

Company A, though it has a varied career, sometimes up and down in the scale when compet is over, nevertheless has a great influence in the Regiment. Two years ago Company A set a camp and compet record that has never been equalled. Last year A was again in the lead with a camp record, although it did not win the coveted place in compet, its influence was more widely felt.

The three battalions are headed by men who received their initial training in A Company. The Flag Captain, two Adjutants and one First Sergeant are representatives of A Company in other parts of the regiment. In Company C, A company is again well represented, four of its five officers being formerly A men. These are a few examples of the influence and leadership in the Regiment of which A Company can be justly proud. Not only are A Company men proud of their past records, but they are justly proud of the fact that they are members of such a Company, and are each day striving to attain new honors for their Company.

Now that camp and compet are just a short time away, every man in A Company is striving with his best efforts to be a fit part of that organization which shall again win honors that will inspire their successors to equal and maintain the present standard.

The officers and non-commissioned officers have been working hard to place the company among the leading companies of the Regiment, and under the leadership of our skillful Captain and with the inspiration of our sponsor, Miss Elizabeth Rase, we expect to land in the much coveted place in compet. The Lieutenants, Morris and Hugh Armstrong, are among the best in the school and their efforts, coupled with the efforts of our Captain and Sponsor, are going to place A Company at the head of the Regiment after compet.

Then you will hear the victorious yell:

Squads Right! Column Right!
Company A is out of sight.
Yell it out with all your might,
A! A! A!

COMPANY E.

From the beginning of E Company's existence in 1899 up to the present time it has had a most memorable career. E was first organized in 1899 as a non-uniform company and for the next two years drill was carried on without equipment. After efforts on the part of the officers and help of the school board the necessary equipment was secured in the fall of 1901.

E first made its appearance in the annual compet in 1902. Did it make good? Most assuredly! E took second place, barely losing the flag to C, then a company of eight years' existence. Second place followed in 1903, first place in 1904 and victory again in 1905. No wonder all hats were doffed to E as it marched away from compet with the flag in its possession for the second time. E Company did not fare so well again until 1907, when second place was attained and an E man took first place in the individual drill.

The prospects for success this year are the brightest in the history of the company. A bold assertion, perhaps, but one that can be backed up by every fellow in the company.

In no other company in the Regiment does better company spirit or good fellowship prevail than in E. It predominates at all times, from the privates to the commissioned officers. The privates and "non-coms" have entered into their work in a highly satisfactory manner. They are drilling, not because they are compelled to, but because they are striving to uphold the honor of the company.

No company could ask for a better Captain than Henry Howes. Although handicapped at the beginning of the year by his duties as an athlete, "Hank" has succeeded in rounding the company into excellent form. Whether about school or on the parade ground, his personality and military ability are recognized by all.

Too much praise cannot be given to Dexter Corson, our dapper first lieutenant. "Dex" is "on time all the time, rain or shine," and is "Hank's" able assistant. Mason, too, is a valuable asset to the company and can be relied upon at all times.

As an additional aid to the success of the company we were fortunate in securing Miss Louise Bedwell for our sponsor. It is an assured certainty that her gentleness and charm will always be the leading inspiration of the company, especially at "compet" and down at camp.

Roosevelt once said: "Success is the result of endeavor." So with such a charming sponsor, determined privates and such excellent officers there is not a single doubt but that E Company will attain its greatest ambition when "compet" rolls 'round and we again become the color company of the Regiment.

COMPANY G.

In 1908 that part of the High School Regiment known as the Signal Corps was changed into Company G at the proposal of Captain Harry Drucker. With the addition of a number of Freshmen the company was fairly started. Although the men were unaccustomed to the use of the rifle, they soon became quite efficient in the manual of arms under the command of Captain Drucker and Lieutenants Sears and McKinney. When the sponsor, Miss Geraldine Gifford, was introduced, everyone in the company was filled with enthusiasm. Miss Gifford entertained the company at the grounds of the Omaha Rod and Gun Club. Everyone worked hard during the remainder of the year and through the week of camp in hopes of carrying off the flag in the competitive drill. While at camp the company won honors in athletics.

Although Company G did not win first place in the compet, yet it produced men of ability and military bearing. This is to be recognized by the fact that George Geib was promoted to the highest rank in the Regiment, that of major of the First Battalion. Barton Nash, the Quartermaster Sergeant, and Charles Hoffert, the First Sergeant, received majorcies in the Second and Third Battalions. Captain and Commissary Larren Scott and his Sergeant, Leonard Lavidge, together with other staff officers, including Edward Burnham, John Cutright and Wallace Linn, were appointed from Company G. Notwithstanding the fact that the above mentioned were sent out of the company there still remained enough excellent material from which to choose a good captain and other necessary officers.

Captain Nieman, assisted by Lieutenants Magney and Barnes, handled the company successfully last year. Captain Nieman chose for his sponsor Miss Adelaide Funkhouser, who proved to be very popular with the cadets. Miss Funkhouser entertained the company at Happy Hollow, where the time was spent in athletics, bowling and dancing. Everyone agreed that it was the best time they had ever enjoyed. The company was as well represented in athletics and school activities as it had been during the preceding year.

Although the company was very much disturbed by the loss of several of the officers in the middle of this year, it is fast recovering. The men are well pleased with the new officers and are working hard to make up lost time. Under the supervision of Captain Park Larmon, who is a very able commander and well acquainted with all military tactics, and ably assisted by Lieutenants Ewing Forbes and Russell Israel, the company is being well drilled and organized. During camp the company will grow stronger than the strongest, better than the best, not only in the manual of arms, but in the field movements. The commissioned and non-commissioned officers are working hard to enable the company to surprise the whole school.

Captain Larmon is very able to command a company, but is still more able to choose a perfect sponsor, Miss Nelle Ryan, who is not only a credit to G Company, but to the whole Regiment. Her active interest in the entire company has been shown in many ways, one of which was the presentation of a beautiful gold medal for individual drill.

With the interest taken in the sponsor, the good hard work being put in now and the work that will be carried on at camp, Company G cannot help spring a surprise on the Regiment and school in compet.

COMPANY D.

Company D! What pleasant associations spring up at those words! Company D means a comradeship with the finest fellows in the Regiment, a formation of friendships which will last long after we leave this school. For we are all actuated by a common impulse and have a band of union which years cannot sever.

Our past record is one of which we are justly proud. Three times have we entered "compet" and come forth with the flag. This is a record which has been surpassed by but one company. And when we have not been successful in capturing the flag we have usually finished among the first. Besides this Company D is noted for the excellence of her men in individual drill. With astonishing regularity the gold or silver medal has been won by a representative from our company.

But our past, glorious though it has been, is not after all of such great importance. It is the problem of what the immediate future will bring us that we are now facing, and facing confidently. Everything which pertains to success seems to be with us now. We believe the equal of our officers cannot be found in the Regiment. Our captain, Albert Cahn, is most capable and efficient, has the true military bearing and demands and receives of the men that obedience which is so vital to success. First Lieutenant Leland Wykert and Second Lieutenant Gilbert Loomis are able assistants and have a thorough knowledge of military tactics. The non-commissioned officers are all hard and conscientious workers and the privates seem to be filled with never-failing enthusiasm. Officers and men alike are imbued with a feeling of loyalty, of pride and of hope which ought to lead us triumphantly to the flag.

Another most important factor on which the hopes of the company are founded is our charming sponsor, Miss Elizabeth Alderson. She is filled with zeal for the company and by her example inspires all. Our captain is to be congratulated on his selection.

We have recited the tale of our past deeds and present hopes. Let us complete this history by giving, all together, our battlecry:

Flip! Flop!
Hop! Scotch!
Tip! Top!
Top! Notch!
D! D! D!

COMPANY H.

Short but sweet narrates briefly and correctly the career of Company H in the O. H. S. Regiment.

Company H has had a most brilliant career and has made an enviable record since its organization late in the fall of 1908. Organized late in the fall, almost too late for much company drill, composed, both front and rear ranks, almost entirely of Freshmen and deprived of guns till close to the Christmas vacation, the company was handicapped and forced to struggle with distressing conditions. Undaunted by these hindrances, Captain Moone worked untiringly and gained great success, as was shown by the excellent record made at "compet," where they captured second place.

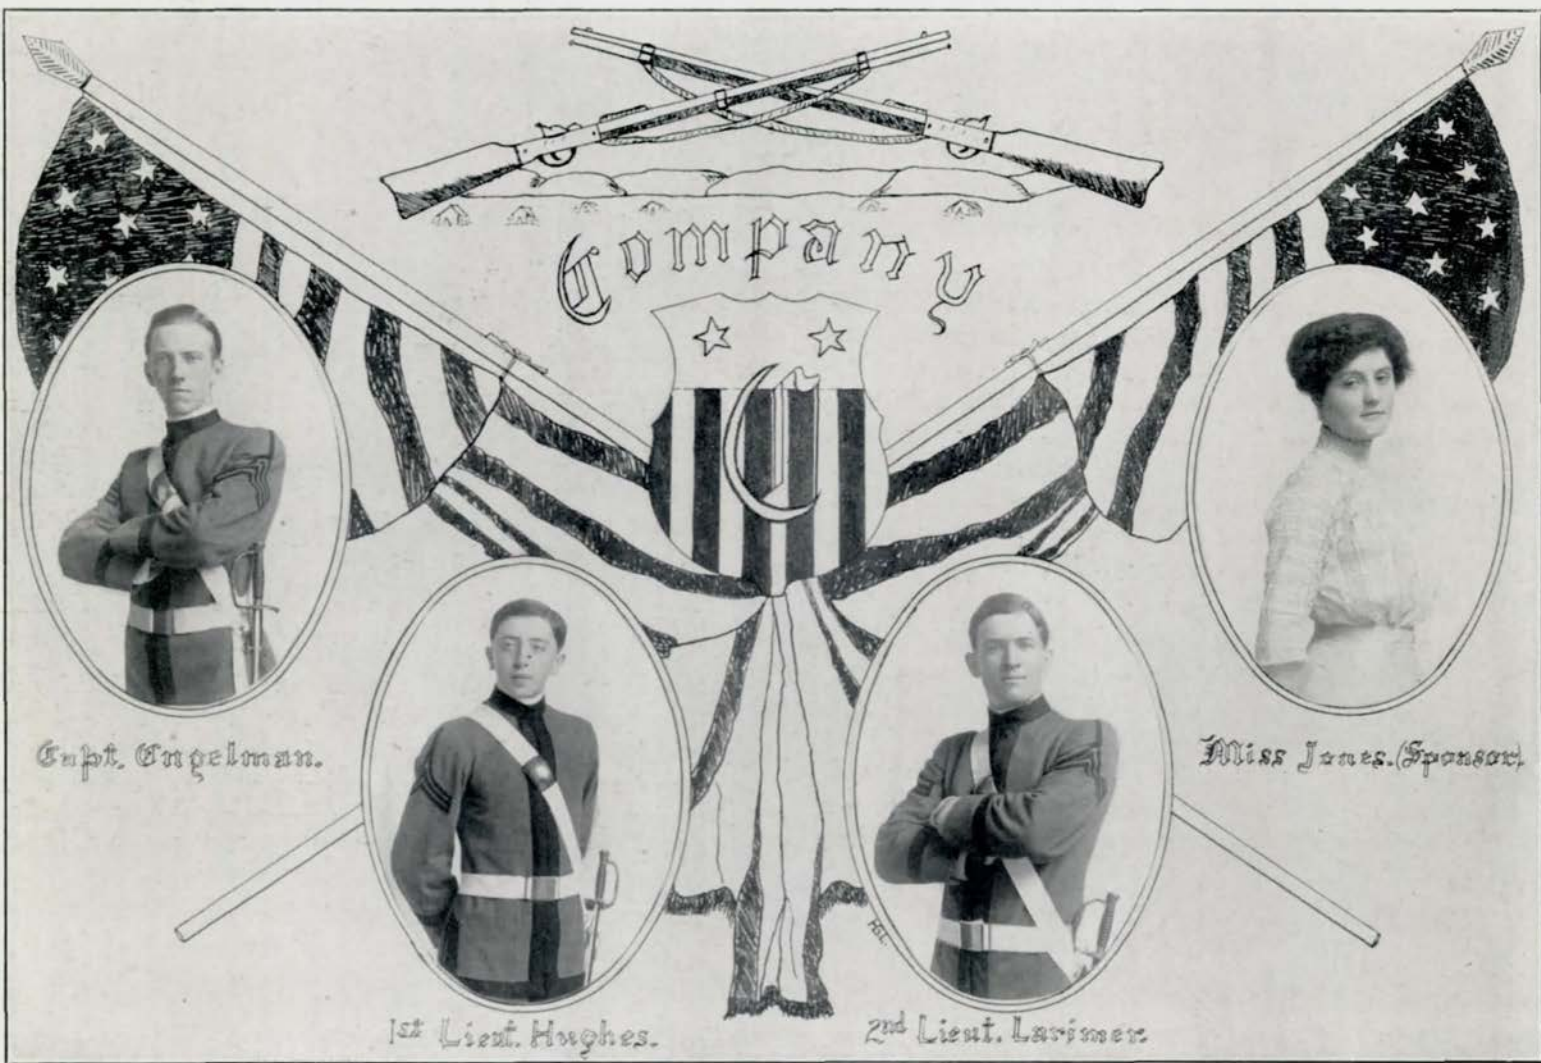

Encouraged by this fine showing, Captain Davis, by hard and steady work, developed his men into such a fine drilled machine that, last year, they carried off the flag. This honor seldom, if ever, has been attained by a company of the O. H. S. the second year of their existence. This year, although proud of its record, the officers of the company realize that only hard work and sincere effort will enable them to hold the coveted flag another year.

The outlook for this year is very promising. In Captain

Wade H has an officer who has some qualifications which place him on an equal with any other in the Regiment. He possesses that rare ability of knowing just how much to expect from each man and just how to call forth the best effort of each. The Lieutenants, Geyer and Howe, are efficient drillmasters and are always working for the best interests of the men and always ready and able to assist the Captain.

The commissioned officers of a company might be perfect, but if the non-coms and privates were not doing their best they could not hope to succeed. Right here is the secret of H's success, its non-coms and privates are full of the right kind of spirit, the kind that counts, and are working their hardest to uphold the company's glorious record.

It is not difficult to write about company spirit and work to uphold records and all that, but on a sweltering hot day in those heavy uniforms, carrying a heavy gun, spirits would fall quite low and work lag were it not for the encouraging words of the sponsor and the feeling that you must work for her if for nothing else. Here again is this company unusually fortunate in having for a sponsor Miss Alice West, whose charming and enthusiastic manner will keep the company full of spirit and willingness to work, no matter what the conditions. ## COMPANY C.

There are other companies in the Regiment of Cadets of the O. H. S. having good records. Company C, however, has the distinction of attaining honors oftener than any other company. In the past fifteen years our company has won the flag five times, has attained second place five times and third place once. It, therefore, has a record in the Regiment to be proud of.

Such victories won by Company C in the past years are not only gratifying from the fact of the distinction which results from them, but serves as an inspiration. The personnel of our company is in some respects handicapped from the fact that we have a large number of Freshmen in the ranks who are unaccustomed to drill. These men, while ambitious enough, lack the experience, hence it will take some hard work at camp to bring the company up to the old standard. We believe and fully expect that the results of a week's work at camp will produce the best drilled company at "compet." It is our ambition to win the flag and we intend to put forth every effort in our work to make Company C again the flag company.

The success of a company is due entirely to its officers and this company has been very fortunate in this respect. In Captain Engleman we have a commander whose experience in military tactics is unquestioned. He is an able and efficient officer who exacts strict obedience in drill and general deportment, sees and corrects all mistakes personally and has one object in view, to raise the company to its highest standard.

As to the other officers, we wish to praise their qualities also. In Lieutenants Hughes and Larimer we have officers who are capable and efficient in the discharge of their various duties and ably support Captain Engleman in his efforts to place C above all others in the Regiment. The Sergeants and Corporals are very competent men and heartily support the officers in their work.

The company is to be congratulated in our Captain's choice of sponsor. In Miss Isabel Jones we have a sponsor who will inspire us by her interest in our welfare and who will have our earnest support in her efforts to lead our company on to victory.

Encouraged by the zeal of our sponsor and in having such a set of officers, we have no misgivings as to the result that Company C will win the flag and again become the flag company of the Cadet Regiment.

COMPANY I.

This company is, as they say, a very diminutive company, but its hopes and aspirations are boundless. This being the second year of its existence, it only has the remarkable history and achievements of its initial year behind it.

When Captain McCague first marshalled his collection of raw recruits on the campus it was not plainly evident that it would make the brilliant showing it did. But it creditably proved by taking honors of third place in "compet" and in being a mere fraction of a point from second, and, in fact, by not coming far from first, that although it was last alphabetically, it was not least. Norman Potter creditably represented Company I's mettle by winning the medal for individual drill.

This year, with a worthy record behind it and by dint of hard work and accurate military proficiency acquired by a year of Captain Moon's assiduous command, Company I expects to more than duplicate its last year's honors, and rise the two more steps still necessary in order to reach the top of that "nine-round" ladder which the company has thus far so rapidly ascended.

The company is to be congratulated on Captain Moon's selection of sponsor, as she is especially worthy of the honor of being the first sponsor of Company I. Miss Dorothy Carlisle is just the lady elite to arouse the enthusiasm which, although somewhat latent, does exist in Company I, and to create that loyal and invincible spirit which is the fundamental requisite of military devotion and a successful company.

Captain Moon is as capable and deserving a captain as can be found in the Regiment. His commands are always distinct and his appearance and bearing is always that of a competent military officer. His diligent work throughout the year, together with the co-operation of Lieutenants B. Evans and A. Abrahamson, whose interest in the company is hard to be equalled, promises to turn out a winning company.

Although a company of comparatively short strides, Company I will prove itself fast enough to bring the "Stars and Stripes" into its possession when the decision of next compet arrives.

The Band.

THE BAND.

The Band! What name is more familiar and endearing to the students of the Omaha High School? Just imagine, if you can, a High School without a band. And the Regiment. What would it do on dress parade without that familiar "sound off?" Drill would certainly lose all interest if the band was not there to go through the ceremonies of a parade or guard mount.

Now, to go back a few years into the former history of the band. In 1902 the first band was organized under the direction of Al Fairbrother, and since that time we have had Mr. Nevotti, Mr. Fairbrother again, and, last of all, Mr. Green as our instructors. Mr. Green, the present director, cannot be praised too highly for the manner in which he has raised the standard of the band, until we have the reputation of having the most thoroughly equipped and, in fact, the best band in the history of the school. A word of praise should also be given Professor Graff for his aid in securing instruments for the band and inducing the school board to take an interest in our work.

The band is fortunate in having a most excellent set of officers this year, and while we have no medals or flags to win on the day of "compet," we have the distinction of being one of the most important factors in the drills held on the campus. The office of Captain is filled by Louis Wavrin, who holds the position of solo cornetist. The Lieutenants are Leonard Marshall and Carl Lumry, also of the cornet section. It may seem that the officers are partial to the cornet section, but the fact remains that the cornet is one of the leading instruments and the most effort is naturally required in that direction.

Some of the members of the band deserve honorable mention here. Paul Beisel, who is Drum Major again this year, continues his efficient work in the difficult position of handling the band on parades. Harry Jenkins, our First Sergeant, and Will Roe figure prominently in those sonorous "solos" emitted from their baritones. Of the cornets mention has already been made, except that Yeoman, Belknap and Lucke are playing good cornets and they aren't made of iron, either. In the alto section we have Doyle Hart and Sam Slotky, who continue with their after time by pounding on the floor with their feet, despite the exhortations of Mr. Green. Julius Rachman and George Kraus now and then engage in a "slide" contest to see who can make the most noise, and their trombone solos are very effective, though we can hardly say impressive. Trexler and Sheets hold down the "heavy section" with their big bass tubas, and an occasional "grunt" is heard from them. Cliff Harrow has a policeman backed off the boards when it comes to making "beats" on his base drum. Frank Dunnigan and Dick Brinser "roll off" the opening notes on their snare drums. The Cornwell brothers and Harry Peterson constitute the main portion of the "sliver-suckers." Max Beebe plays the piccolo with his "section hands."

Last, but not least, comes one of the most important members of the band the Sponsor, Miss Lillian Parsons. She has been selected to this office to inspire the boys to do better work while in camp and at "compet," and it is enough to say that she is "style all the while, all the while."

In looking over the year's events in which the band participated, the football games, with the trip to Lincoln, and the track meet at the Auditorium, to say nothing of the drills held every Tuesday and Thursday on the campus, we come to the last chapter, camp and "compet." It is here that the band shows up to the best advantage and our history of the band can be fittingly closed with that selection entitled "Omaha," played as no other band could play it—by the Omaha High School Band.

THE BOOSTERS' CLUB.

A Boosters' Club is a club that boosts. Every well-organized school has its own method of showing the outside world that its enthusiasm reaches beyond the walls of the school. Our school has founded the Boosters' Club. This organization was formed two years ago and since then has shown by its earnest work that it is a necessary factor of the Omaha High School. In the beginning of this year Mr. Graff thought it advisable to reorganize the club. It is now composed of a representative of each of the literary societies, the lieutenant-colonel, the majors, five of the captains, the editor and business manager of the Register, the presidents of the Senior and Junior classes, one member from the Freshman class, two from the Sophomore and three from the Junior. These members chose Edwin Alderson, President; Nelle Ryan, Vice-President; Claire McGovern, Secretary; Henry Howes, Treasurer; Lila Caley and Louis Waverin, Sergeants-at-Arms; Miss Laura Bridge and Mr. McMillan, teachers. Mr. Carns is an honorary member of the club. The reception committee, appointed early in the fall, has shown to the visiting teams the welcome spirit of the Omaha High School. Our visitors have expressed their appreciation of this, proving that the reception committee has done good work. The advertising committee with its skill of originality has called much attention to the athletic interests. The football season, which ended with the Omaha High School as champion of the state, proves that there is strength in unity.

In consideration of the good work the Boosters' Club has done in the past, let us not shirk our duty, but keep on boosting.

THE MARGARET FULLER SOCIETY.

The wheels of the chariot of time have ratchets; once they have sped over their course there is no return. But each revolution of the flying wheels leaves behind the dust of deeds done. Irrevocable past! Remorseless time! Open thou thy treasures sealed for the past few years and unfold to a gazing world a momentary vision of our glorious deeds and unsullied record. Unseal thy lips to speak the praise of the Margaret Fuller Society.

The book is open, the past is unsealed. He who wishes may read of the great success of the M. F. S. girls.

From the time it was organized in the fall of 1903 the "Margaret Fuller" has been a prominent and active society in the Omaha High School. How could it be otherwise when we have had such fine presidents. Each successive year has seen the office filled by a girl who has had the interests of the society and school at heart. Such girls as Ruth Yoder, Irene Jaynes, Anna McCague, Eleanor Jaquith, Corinne Searle, Elizabeth Doud, Helen Buck and Nell Ryan are girls to be proud of.

The other officers and members of the Margaret Fuller have also done their best for the society and for the school. Those that have graduated and gone to college have continued to be prominent members of their respective classes. Corinne Searle at Wellesley, Myra Breckenridge at Smith, Helen Buck at Rockford, and Alice McCullough, who was recently made a Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Nebraska, are a few who have won honors. Time fails us or we might mention many others of whom we have reason to be proud.

It will always be a pleasure for us to look back upon what we have accomplished, the friendships we have formed and the enjoyment we have derived as members of the Margaret Fuller Society.

And when we come to real life
Upon the busy field of strife,
Whate'er our lot—by land or sea—
Oh, Margaret Fuller, we'll think of thee!

From the stern old hills of New England,
Fabled in history, poem and song,
Comes the name which we cherish and honor,
And to which we are glad to belong.
With wisdom, modesty and courage,
Commingling at sound of the name,
And our work, love and devotion
We would add to her glorious fame.

II.

So all through the year we have striven,
This splendid example in view,
To be studious, patient, industrious,
Loving and gentle and true.
And the lessons these efforts have brought us
I am sure we will ever retain,
For they mingle themselves with our labor
On a pleasant and lasting refrain.

III.

Much profit and pleasure and wonder
We have drawn from our work on Japan,
That beautiful "Kingdom of Flowers,"
The home of the little brown man,
Who has risen from realms of darkness
With advancement's banner unfurled,
To take his place in the nations' race,
In the "Brotherhood" of the world.

THE PLEIADES SOCIETY.

The Pleiades, though old in name,
Is clamoring loudly now for fame;
The society itself is young in years,
But, contrary to its founders' fears,
Has risen to an untold height,
And sees its future wondrous bright.
It calls out loudly and demands
From each its girls a helping hand;
The girls acquiesce with one accord,
And give the talents they afford.
The programs are varied and unique,
Their one chief aim is to pleasure seek,
Some celebrate our heroes' birth,
While some's sole purpose is merely mirth,
But with them all goes one demand—
Refreshments—from the hostess' hand.
We have willing helpers, not a few—
To Miss Jo von Mansfeldt much praise is due,
When we get in disputes so hot and wild,
She settles them by measures mild.
We thank Miss Quakenbush and Miss Hughes,

Who sees that we mind our P's and Q's.
To Clare we extend a vote of thanks
For long withstanding our mischievous pranks.
She appears so promptly at her place,
We never miss her smiling face.
To the other members of this staff—
Just a word to say in our behalf,
We appreciate what they have done
To make this year a pleasant one.
To the members we Seniors bid farewell,
With what reluctance no tongue can tell.
We recognize your friendships' claim
And hold most dear its worthy name,
Till thoughts of parting give us pain,
And yet to those who still remain
We prophesy a prosperous reign.
We know they'll throw their light afar
And fully justify their star.
So in closing let us say—
May the Pleiades ever lead the way
And live for many and many a day.

ELAINE SOCIETY.

And moving through the mirror clear
That hangs before her all the year,
Shadows of the world appear.

And so Elaine went on weaving the bright fabric that was to cover Launcelot's shield. High up in a tower she was but close beside her hung a mirror, and glancing into this she could see what was going on in the outside world. All the deeds of men were reflected there, and, as she looked, she wove into her work designs caught here and there with a small connecting thread of pure gold.

And so it is with our modern Elaine, not a beautiful woman, but a society of pretty school girls who strive to make their name the best in the school. The fabric they weave is not the cover for some worthy knight's shield. It is a reputation that cannot be completed by one generation of school girls, but must be handed down every year by those leaving to those entering to take their places. But, though it is made by many hands and is of various hues and designs, the aim of all is the same, to make our Society better and higher in its work.

It is doubted that when Elaine looked into her mirror she saw a definite picture of our modern Elaine, but away in the background there must have been a faint, almost imperceptible shadow of our deeds. Could she have known what they meant, surely she would have felt a little thrill of pride to know she was the ideal of so many girls.

When the Senior class graduates this year it will take away many of our best members who have lived up to the motto of Elaine and have been patient and faithful in their share of the weaving. They have been very helpful in their suggestions for programs and in their choice of new members. As they leave they will hand down the threads of the uncompleted web to the other members, who will strive to do their work as well and faithfully as their predecessors.

THE GIRLS' COLLEGE CLUB.

The Girls' College Club was formed in 1910 as the result of a reception given for the Junior girls of the O. H. S. by the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. Its purpose is to interest girls in education beyond that of the High School and with this in view graduates from various colleges and universities lecture on their "Alma Maters." They also answer questions. This gives the members a chance to learn much of college and university life which they could not obtain from catalogues. However, the club is in possession of a number of catalogues of leading schools, which the members are at liberty to consult at any time. Officers are elected annually. Those for the past year have been: Elizabeth Alderson, President; Ruth Cowgill, Vice-President; Blanche Brotherton, Secretary; Dorothy Carlisle, Treasurer; and Muriel Baldwin, Sergeant-at-Arms. The leaders of the society are, as last year, Miss Mackin and Miss White, President of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae.

Up to this year only Juniors and Seniors were eligible for membership, as it was thought that they were most vitally interested in college. But recently it was decided that Sophomores also should be eligible, as many colleges require that applications be made several years before entrance.

Although the College Club has been forced to discontinue its meetings the last of this year, because of the two sessions, it is hoped that this interruption will not impair the interest in the work and that next year it will leave a larger membership than ever.

A BROWNING DRAMA.

(With Apologies to Shakespeare).

Scene—The High School Hall.

Guardian of the Hall—Hence! home, you idle creatures, get you home.

Is this a holiday? What! Know you not, Being school girls, you ought not walk About the halls without permission From the faculty? Speak, what doest thou here?

Restora Nelty—Why, Browning's just out.

Guardian of the Hall—What, Browning? As I mistake not He's been dead these many, many years!

Gertrude Weitzell—Know you not Browning? Many a time and oft

Have we flocked into room 101,

In two's and three's—Viola with her bows,

Bess with stately mien and proud, then

In would come our dearest Miss McHugh.

When all arrived Grace gravely took the chair

And business weighty was conducted there;

Which done, a program having been prepared.

Viola Pierce—Oh, yes, mayhap a shadow pantomime,

With pipe and Piper, little boys and rats.

Mable Morrow—Sometimes we played a great dramatic scene.

Bess Heaton—Or one from Dickens—Squeers, his home and school.

Claire Patterson—Maybe a jolly party in the gym,

With gifts for all and dancing, games and songs.

Guardian of the Hall—Let me hear more about these charming girls,

Light-hearted girls and such as sleep o' nights.

Elizabeth Rainey—We'd name them all, but that cannot be done,

Yet, if you'd like to hear of some of them—

I know not who could soothe the savage beast

So soon as Evelyn. Her lovely strains

Have charmed us all, have sent dull care away,

Refreshed our souls with sound. And Claire could speak,

And oft, midst laughter and applause, she said,

"Boo-hoo! I ain't a goin' to cry no more."

Lillian Parsons—Helen could draw and so could Martha, too,

And for a brainy girl know Eloise.

Ruth Ogle—Our Miss McHugh sat high in Browning's hearts,

And that in us, which did seem rash and wrong,

Her skillful hand, like richest alchemy,

Would change to virtue and to worthiness.

Gladys Goodman—Guardian of the Hall, lend me your ears,

For I must tell you of our Oracle.

Our editorial always aired some views

For our improvement and for Browning's good.

Eleven stories and poems of High School make

Took up another portion of our sheet,

But if you'd mirth, you might indulge it when

The last page came into our view, for then,

How we did laugh when the Byrds tried their wings,

Or a fresh pun was passed upon the dear twins.

When we heard the account of Miss Stevenson's rats,

Getting loose from her room and emptying the flats.

These squibs and jokes were all just then in fun,

We had a hearty laugh o'er every one.

Beulah Byrd—Where'er you light on old rose and white,

You'll know there's Brownings near;

And when you see a golden "B"

Remember Browning dear.

—Exeunt All.

THE HAWTHORNE SOCIETY.

What High School pupil has not heard of the "Tanglewood Tales" and their American author, Nathaniel Hawthorne? And who has not heard of his namesake, the Hawthorne Society of the O. H. S.?

It was on the 21st day of November in 1902 when a goodly number of girls gathered together for the purpose of organizing a literary society to further develop and improve the literary skill of its members. In due time they had drawn up a constitution, but what seemed to be the most difficult problem was still left to be solved—that of selecting a suitable name. Suggestions of every nature were given, until finally someone suggested the present name of "Hawthorne." Every one seemed pleased at once and the name was immediately adopted.

At the first meeting of the society the number of members to compose it was considered. It was thought that forty would be a suitable number, but in October of the next year the number was changed to fifty and still later to sixty. The society at present has a good-sized membership and is working with its best of efforts to maintain the good reputation it has made in former years and has succeeded in making a success of everything it has undertaken.

Our first program was held in January, 1903, when the subject, thoroughly appropriate, was "Nathaniel Hawthorne," and was strictly literary, as were the programs immediately following.

But the members came to believe that "pleasure should accompany business, though usually afterwards," and consequently, every now and then, plays and more humorous features were introduced in the work. Music came also to find its place in the programs and the members have often enjoyed its charms when those skilled in that line have taken part. The members have certainly had what they termed "jolly good times" when some one of the members has entertained at her home. We have had this pleasure several times, when we have done everything from "riding the goat" to eating ice cream. Another feature that has enlivened our work is the joint and open programs. It is at such a time that the friendly rivalry between the several societies is displayed. The members show a decided inspiration in their work and to accomplish anything the members must be always on the alert and be willing and able to carry on the work to the end. The success of the society depends upon these qualities in its members, and judging from this standpoint the "Hawthorne" has been a thoroughly successful society.

Although the "Hawthorne" is completing a very successful year and some of its best and most active members are to leave the ranks for a still greater field, the remaining members intend to maintain the enthusiastic interests of the society to make the Hawthorne of the next year as good as the one just completed, or even better, is what we sincerely hope.

THE FRANCES WILLARD SOCIETY.

The Frances Willard Society was organized in the fall of 1905 and has ever since been one of the active societies of the High School. The officers for the first semester of this year were: Rhoda Lincoln, President; Irene Majors, Vice-President; Mildred Arnold, Secretary and Treasurer; Nellie Proebsting, Reporter; Charlotte Marquardt, Kate Fields, Sergeants-at-Arms.

"Per Aspera Ad Astra" may most fittingly express the results of the earnest and faithful efforts of the Frances Willard Society during the past year. Under the able guidance of its officers the society has fully realized its two-fold purpose, to instill in each member some new thought or fact which will ever remain as a cherished remembrance and to promote a general "good fellowship" among the girls. This purpose has been realized in the most effective manner. The programs of the season have been well planned for a literary society and have been executed in a way to bring much credit to the society.

Realizing that unrelieved labor is not conducive to the highest success, the society has upon many occasions offered an appropriate recreation. Either a social program has been substituted for one of literary value or, following the usual exercises, sweets and other tempting delicacies have been served, allowing each girl to cast aside the cloak of restraint and freely to enjoy the real honey of life.

LININGER TRAVEL CLUB.

This year of the Lininger Travel Club has been a most successful and fascinating one. Our programs have been varied and instructive and each day, as our band of L. T. C.'s entered the door of 205 in one's, two's and three's each face wore an expression of expectancy. Each girl worked to have her program the best and one which would be remembered. Several good plays were given, a number of recitations, readings, and, in short, everything which would be of interest to the High School girl. One program, given by the grave and dignified Seniors, was among the best of the year and was marked by the refreshments decorated in the Senior colors.

The Lininger Travel Club is favored above all other organizations in the O. H. S. in having a club patroness, Mrs. Frank Haller, the daughter of Mr. Lininger, after whom the club was named. Oh! such good times at the Art Gallery, where it is a pleasure to gaze for hours at the wonderful works of art. Music, speaking, dancing and refreshments form the good times in Mrs. Haller's home, which will never be forgotten by a single member.

Our charming President, Eula Crawford, and our staunch supporter, Miss Browne, our club teacher, have aided the society to gain the heights to which it has risen this year. Also Miss Dudley, Miss Allison and Miss Schmidt have seemed to have a great interest in all the girls and have been ready to help them in every way possible.

The members have shown great spirit in the club's work. The membership has grown to such an extent that it was necessary to amend the membership clause in the club constitution and provide for a larger number of members. At the open meeting nothing could exceed the enthusiasm which greeted our two representatives, Agnes Nielson and Hazel Day, who acquitted themselves so admirably. Our ideal is yet far above us, but each year we do the best we can by striving to reach the highest point of perfection.

THE LATIN SOCIETY.

The Latin Society is unique among the organizations of the Omaha High School. Established a number of years ago as an experiment, the interest has been sustained throughout and the society is known as one of the strongest in the school.

The Latin language is called a dead language and it is usually difficult for a beginner in the study of it to believe that it ever was a live language. It was for the purpose of making the study of Latin interesting instead of a drudgery that the society was formed, and that it has succeeded in its mission is evident. The program, given under the direction of the society teachers, Miss Snyder, Miss Paxson, Miss Rooney, Miss Shields and Miss Peterson, have been helpful and interesting.

Perhaps the most important event in the society this year was the presentation of the Latin play, "A Roman School." This play was given March 29 in room 204 before an audience that overflowed into the halls. It was an unqualified success. The dialogue was entirely in Latin and the cast consisted of twenty boys, dressed in the clothing of the time 90 B. C. Great credit is due Miss Paxson, who wrote the play, and who directed the rehearsals. Requests for the play have been received from High Schools and Colleges in many different sections of the country.

The officers of the society are elected each semester. Those for the first semester were: President, Blanche Brotherton; Vice-President, Nelle Ryan; Secretary, Edwin Landale; Treasurer, George Grimes; Sergeants-at-Arms, Edwin Alderson and Wilma Damon; Reporter, Helen McCoy. Those elected for the second semester were: President, George Grimes; Vice-President, Beulah Byrd; Secretary, Mildred Arnold; Treasurer, Philip Johnson; Sergeants-at-Arms, Lulu Mae Coe and Carson Hathaway; Reporter, Blanche Brotherton.

THE "DEUTSCHER VEREIN."

The German Society was organized in 1904 by Miss Landis for the benefit of German students in the Omaha High School. The meetings at first were held on Friday afternoons, but as so many other societies met that same day the meetings were later changed to Wednesday afternoons. At these meetings German folk-songs were sung and short, interesting programs rendered. These later consist of recitals, recitations, songs and short plays in the German language. In addition to these interesting and instructive lectures, illustrated with stereopticon views of Germany, have been given.

This year the society has been without the services of Miss Somers, who took quite an active interest in the work last year. Miss Somers has been studying in Berlin. She will return to her work as teacher in the Omaha High School next September.

The purpose of the society is to inspire in the students a keener interest in the study of German and to give them some practice in the use of the language. Membership in the society is voluntary. Any student who is familiar with German or studies it or has studied it is eligible for membership.

At present the membership is nearly one hundred and twenty, the largest of any society in the school. Not only is this society large, but the work accomplished by it is great. The benefit to the members cannot be overestimated and it shows itself in the class room recitations. Each year many of the members graduate, but the membership is kept up by the large number of German students entering the school. Last February a total of nearly thirty Freshmen was enrolled.

The society is under the direction of the teachers of the German department. This includes Miss Bowen, head of the department; Miss Landis, Miss Rockfellow, Mme. Chatelaine and Miss Schmidt. Miss Towne, as pianist, is an able assistant to Miss Bowen in the work of the society.

Elections are held twice yearly. During the first semester the officers were as follows: Isabel Shukert, President; Marie Slovack, Vice-President; Augusta Mengedoht, Secretary; Summer Stebbins, Treasurer; Bertha Sellner and Effie Killey, Sergeants-at-Arms; Eleanor Lear, Reporter. E. P., '12.

THE ART SOCIETY.

"Do you belong to the Art Society? No? Well, you really ought to join, because we do have very interesting meetings.

"First, we have a business meeting which is very instructive and sometimes very amusing. We try our best to be strictly parliamentary, but sometimes we get our rules slightly confused and we have to stop and straighten things out. We then proceed with sketching from life if we have not provided for a program.

"We have had some very interesting entertainments this year. The first part of the semester we had a party and later we had stereopticon pictures of some famous Italian artists and some of their most noted works. Near the end of the first semester we had a guessing contest at which a book, 'The Life of Sargent,' was given as a prize.

"I know you'd like to be a member, but anyway you'll visit the society after school, won't you?"

* * * * *

The meeting was called to order and after roll call the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Old business was discussed and new business was brought up and disposed of. The members then proceeded to sketching.

"Well, what are they doing that for?" asked the astonished visitor.

"They're measuring. At first it seems quite foolish, but you become so used to it that after a while you really can't sketch without half closing your eyes and measuring the proportions of the model."

"How strange! Do you suppose anybody would care if I tried to sketch like that?"

"Of course not; here's a drawing pad and a pencil. Shall I propose your name at the next meeting?"

"Yes, please do. I'm really very much interested in the society."

"There, I knew you would join if you visited just once."

THE WEBSTER DEBATING SOCIETY.

Some seven years ago the Webster Debating Society was organized. Its charter members were the boys who formed the Thorean Society in 1903, the year previous. It was formed for the purpose of encouraging literary and debating work among the boys of the High School.

From then up to the present time the Webster Debating Society has always been foremost in debating activities. Its progress has been steady and sure. Although the society never did boast a large membership, the members have always made up for that difference by their earnest co-operation and hard work.

Last year, under the able leadership of Mr. Carstensen, the society was highly successful in its work. It defeated an old rival, the D. D. S., in the one and only inter-society debate of the year, thus establishing its superiority in debating work. Five of its members were on the debating squad, four of whom played an important part in the debates with other High Schools.

This year has been an illustrious one in the annals of the Webster Debating Society. On January 18th the annual inter-society debate between the W. D. S. and the D. D. S. was held before a large audience in room 309. The income tax question was the point of debate and was very skilfully argued by both sides. Again the D. D. S. was defeated. The judges' decision was awarded to the Webster boys. The society was represented in this important debate by Harold Moon and George Grimes.

Four members of the society secured places on the High School debating squad, one of whom took part in the Omaha-Council Bluffs debate.

The feature event of the year was the joint meeting on March 22d, held with the Margaret Fuller Society. An interesting and enjoyable program was rendered by different members of both societies, after which refreshments were served by the M. F. S.

A bright outlook looms up for the success of debating next year both in the society and in the school. Two representatives of the debating squad will be in the society next year, together with other good material to uphold the honors of debating in the High School.

The officers for the first semester of the year were: Harold Moon, President; George Lessel, Vice-President; Almet Solomon, Secretary-Treasurer; Joseph Woolery and Harry Gideon, Sergeants-at-Arms. Those elected for the last semester were: George Grimes, President; Edward Perkins, Vice-President; Earl Montgomery, Secretary-Treasurer; Carlisle Allen and Norman Gault, Sergeants-at-Arms. E. Demosthenian Debating Society.

DEMOSTHENIAN DEBATING SOCIETY.

Twelve years ago, in 1899, Professor Waterhouse, with keen foresight, organized the first debating society in the Omaha High School. This society has existed all these years and exists today as the Demosthenian Debating Society, the most successful and oldest in the school.

The secret of its success lies in the fact that every fall many Freshmen are canvassed and added to the roll of the society. Thus each fall the D. D. S. gets as many new members as it lost in the preceding June, proceeding in an endless chain. In the second place, a boy who enters as a Freshman receives four years of good training and is ready to hold down responsible jobs in his Junior and Senior years.

A D. D. S. training is valuable for several reasons. In the society the boys who have the same inclinations are to be found. It gives him a good understanding of parliamentary law, a thing which is valuable everywhere in life. Both of these are advantages, but the last is more important yet. By making each boy take some active part on a program once or twice a year he loses his natural shyness and gradually learns not to get the "stage fright" when delivering a debate, a recitation or reading a paper. He must face an audience and he must speak. Every successful business man today ought to be able to do these things without embarrassment, and a literary society is the place to learn.

Let us take a brief review of the work done the past year. Besides our regular meetings we have held two special meetings. The first is especially to be remembered, as it was in conjunction with a girls' society, the Elaine. An excellent program was rendered and the girls served delightful refreshments.

A week later the D. D. S. was creditably represented at the open program meeting, in which all the societies in the school took part. We were in room 309 with the Art Society, the Priscilla Alden Society and the Lininger Travel Club.

The D. D. S. has been well represented in debating this year. Out of eight regular debaters five are from our ranks and on every team chosen two out of three claim the same distinction.

For the first semester we had the following officers: President, Chester Arnold; Vice-President, Voyle Rector; Secretary, Sievers Sussman; Treasurer, Deyo Crane; Sergeant-at-Arms, Paul Mackin, and Librarian, Byron Rohrbough. In February Elbert Wade was chosen to succeed Chester Arnold as President, Beryl Crocker became Sergeant-at-Arms and Milton Peterson the Librarian. The other officers were re-elected.

ATHENIAN DEBATING AND LITERARY SOCIETY.

During the school year of 1909-1910 interest in debating societies proved so strong that it was decided to organize a new society for boys. A call was issued for all boys interested to meet with Mr. Woolery for the purpose of organizing. About twenty-five responded, who formed the new society, known as the Athenian, and elected officers.

With the united efforts of the society teachers, Miss B. Von Mansfelde, Miss Towns and Mrs. Orchard, and the members, the society had a very prosperous year and laid a very permanent foundation for future years.

This year the society opened with the following officers: President, John Reel; Vice-President, Edgar Morris; Secretary, Charles Shook; Treasurer, B. Slotky; Sergeant-at-Arms, Ellsworth Devereaux; Reporter, Ward Smith. These officers and the old members who had remained in school entered into a vigorous campaign to secure new members. As a result the membership of the first year was doubled.

The society worked at debating and parliamentary law practice and grew very strong in both these branches. This strength led them to issue a challenge to the Webster Society for the championship of the school. The challenge was readily accepted, but owing to the trouble over the two sessions it has never been fought out.

Another event of the year which was very much interesting was the joint meeting with the Hawthorne Society. This meeting was a great success and well attended by both societies.

An effort is being made by the members of the Athenian to keep the society intact during the two sessions which make the meetings impossible. If this effort succeeds the society will surely occupy its proper position when the school returns to one session and meetings are possible. It will be among the foremost of the school.

DEBATING, 1911.

Debating was, this year, for the first time, organized under the plan of having one squad from which to choose the representatives of the school in the debates of the year. This squad worked as a unit in collecting material for the debates, met at appropriate times under the supervision of the coach, Mr. Anderson, studied questions, discussed them and tried hard not to leave untouched any point which had to do with the issue for the next debate. As all the squad could not, under this arrangement, represent the school in one of the debates, and as all the squad worked with those who were going to represent the school, it was decided that credit of one-half to one point should be given to each member of the squad who was active in its work, whether or not he made the team. In this way eight men were really on each debate, lending all possible assistance to the three of their number who were chosen to speak. The work was not carried on with the sole purpose of winning debates, but more especially to train the squad members in public speaking and to give them a thorough grasp of the important questions of the day and to teach them the fundamental truths of economic questions.

Early in the fall a general preliminary was held, with a large number contesting for places on the squad. The question debated was: "Resolved: That a constitutional amendment should be adopted providing for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people," and the squad chosen consisted of Edwin Alderson, '11; George Grimes, '12; Philip Johnson, '12; Edwin Landale, '12; Harold Landeryou, '12; Elwood Pratt, '13; Fred Rypins, '12; Waldo Shillington, '13, and James Van Avery, P. G.

After a preliminary among the squad members the first debate of the year was held on February 24, with Council Bluffs, the question being: "Resolved: That a graduated income tax, with an exemption of incomes below $2,000, would be a desirable modification of our present system of federal taxation, constitutionality granted." The O. H. S. team, consisting of Elwood Pratt, Edwin Landale and George Grimes, creditably upheld the affirmative for the purple and white, but after a hard fought debate Council Bluffs was awarded the decision. The debate was held after school in the school auditorium and the nominal charge of 10 cents a ticket brought out as many as the room would hold.

The Council Bluffs debate over, preparations were made for the Lincoln debate, with hopes of regaining the silver cup won by Lincoln last year. The team, consisting of the same trio who had debated Council Bluffs, had prepared a strong argument, but their hopes and the hopes of the school were doomed to disappointment. On the night before the debate Lincoln refused to abide by the agreement as to the number of rebuttal speeches and the debate was called off.

The Freshmen are preparing the annual debate with the Council Bluffs Freshmen and the affirmative of the income tax question. The representatives are Gilbert Kennedy, James West-erfield and Harold Torell. As was done last year, a medal will be given the Freshmen presenting the best debate.

The triangular debate between Omaha, West Des Moines and Westport, Kansas City, was not held this year for the reason that the Kansas City school board ordered the three High Schools to hold a triangular debate and Westport thought that two triangular debates would be too much work.

The prospects for next year are unquestionably bright, as none of those who have represented our school this year will graduate and only one member of the squad goes out with the class of 1911.

As to the results of the year as a whole, it cannot be called a failure, even though we lost to Council Bluffs. The standard of debating has made progress and many under classmen have been trained. Ask any member of the squad and he will tell you that the work has done him more good than any one of his studies. And so we may look back in the years to come on the year 1910-11 as another success added to the many successes of our school.

FOOTBALL

THE CHAMPIONS.

Captain, "Dick" Payne, left end. Age, 19; weight, 142; years on team, 3. A steady player for the past three years. He is fast on his feet and good at blocking his man. On account of his many duties as captain he has been a little prevented in playing in his usual spectacular form, but he has done much to lead the Purple and White to victory.

Captain-elect, "Dave" Bowman, half-back. Age, 19; weight, 136; years on team, 2. The man with the perpetual smile. He will make an excellent captain and will surely lead the champions on to another victory in the season of 1911. He is known for his ability to pick holes in the enemies' lines where others would fail to see them. We wish him the best of successes.

Harold Andrus, right tackle. Age, 18; weight, 185; years on team, 3. "Runt" was one of those chosen for the All-Nebraska. A mountain of strength and a virtual battering ram, he has outplayed every man he has opposed and has been feared by every opposing team.

Walter Klopp, quarterback. Age, 18; weight, 133; years on team, 3. "Kloppie" is a natural born player, with ability to return the enemies' punts twenty or thirty yards at any time. His field dodging was spectacular and has often brought the crowd to its feet. His work against Lincoln was excellent.

Henry Howes, left end and sub quarter. Age, 19; weight, 143; years on team, 3. Since "Hank" played his first with the O. H. S. in 1907 no one has shown a more persistent effort than he in our team. When it comes to sand he deserves "Sandy" as a nickname; he played the last half of the season with a badly injured knee.

Harold Underhill, fullback. Age, 18; weight, 152; years on team, 2. "Swede" developed marvelous speed in hitting the line and could always be counted on for good gains. He was good at punting and intercepted many of Lincoln's forward passes in our games with them. He is now living in Denver and expects to play with the High School of that city. If he does Denver gets an excellent player.

Voyle Rector, left tackle. Age, 19; weight, 168; years on team, 3. "Rec" is also one of the All-Nebraskas and has played excellent football while on the team. He is famous for breaking through the line and breaking up plays. Played wonderfully in our last two games this year, especially against Wendell Philips.

Emil Gall, right end. Age, 18; weight, 152; years on team, 1. "Dutch" played two years with South Omaha and was captain-elect for this year, but to our good fortune he came to Omaha and joined us. He was the best man on the team for receiving passes and following down punts. Always played with a laugh.

Edwin Carson, guard and sub tackle. Age, 18; weight, 160; years on team, 1. In spite of the fact that "Ed" lacked experience and was playing his first year on the team, he played an excellent game. When necessary he could make a hole large enough for the back field in the opponents' line. He should have made the team two years sooner and given us a greater benefit of his excellent play.

Virgil Rector, left guard and sub fullback. Age, 17; weight, 150; years on team, 1. "Virg" is one of the lightest of the line men and held that position very creditably. Because of his speed he played a better game at full than in the line. With his experience this year he should become a star next year and do much for the glory of the Purple and White.

Macolm Baldrige, center. Age, 16; weight, 210; years on team, 1. All-Nebraska. "Venus" was the youngest man on the team and was the biggest that ever donned the moleskin for O. H. S. Every opposing team found it impossible to put a play through his position or even break through at his position. He was an immovable barrier. Watch "Mac" next year.

Frank Golden, right guard. Age, 17; weight, 165; years on team, 1. He is one of the All-Nebraska and has played a hard, fighting game all season. His great strength and ability to play enabled him to break through the lines and stop plays before they were well started. Played well against Wendell Philips.

Julius Rachman, sub guard and center. Age, 18; weight, 170; years on team, 1. "Rach" was good at long punts and making accurate passes which could be depended upon. He was also good at blocking punts made by opponents.

Hugh Millard, right end. Age, 16; weight, 136; years on team, 1. On account of the fact that Millard was kept out of practice a great part of the season as a result of injuries, he was not enabled to play in enough games to win his "O." He possesses qualities which will develop him into a star end after he has gained a stronger physique.

Halleck Rouse, left end. Age, 18; weight, 154; years on team, 1. Considering lack of experience, Rouse played an excellent game. As a member of next year's team much is expected of him.

Hart Jenks, right guard. Age, 18; weight, 165; years on team, 1. Jenks is a team player and works for good team work. In the Wendell Philips game he showed his fine ability by playing like a veteran.

John J. Gideon, Jr., right end. Age, 17; weight, 133; years on team, 1. "Johnnie" played exceptionally well for one so lacking in experience. He made himself famous at Lincoln, where his playing was spectacular. He will be back next year and much is expected of him.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON.

When the call for candidates for the football team was made the first week of school sixty boys signified their intention of trying for the team. The second week of school saw between forty and fifty candidates on the field and at no time during the season did this number fall below thirty. It is this spirit of stick-to-itiveness that will make the teams of the future for the Omaha High School. This wealth of material, under the efficient coaching of Coach Burnett, was developed into one of the greatest teams that has ever represented Omaha High School on the gridiron.

OMAHA 23—NEBRASKA CITY 3.

As usual, the boys from Nebraska City were the opponents for the first game of the season and gave Omaha a very good practice game. Gilmore starred for the visitors by making several good gains through the line and scoring their 3 points on a goal from the field, but at no time did they threaten to leave Omaha with a victory.

OMAHA 50—HARLAN 0.

Omaha showed great improvement over the previous game and overwhelmed Harlan. The boys from Iowa were outweighed several pounds to the man, but played a very plucky game. This game was featured by a 75-yard run by Andrus, behind fine interference, for a touchdown.

OMAHA 36—YORK 5.

For the first time since 1907 these great rivals met in football and Omaha avenged herself for the previous defeats by trouncing York 36 to 5. Wiley made York's only score by a 35-yard run for a touchdown. The team began to show the good coaching and at no time did York stand a chance to win.

OMAHA 14—SHENANDOAH 0.

In the best game of the season to date Omaha succeeded in defeating Shenandoah decisively by the score of 14-0. Shenandoah had a very fast backfield and several times seriously threatened Omaha's goal, making several fine end runs and forward passes. Two touchdowns and a field goal gave Omaha 14 points. Andrus made the most spectacular play of the game with a run of 50 yards for a touchdown, with two or three Shenandoah boys hanging on for the last 15 yards.

OMAHA 6—LINCOLN 9.

Omaha took the trip to Lincoln October 29th and suffered the first defeat of the year at the hands of the old rivals. It was a case of a team of eleven playing another with a star who was fully half the team, as Mann succeeded in winning the game, as he scored all of Lincoln's points, a touchdown, goal from the field and the goal from touchdown. Omaha's single touchdown came on a beautiful trick play through center which completely fooled Lincoln. Voyle Rector kicked the goal. One of the pleasing things from the Omaha standpoint was the holding of Lincoln on the 7-yard line when it looked like a certain touchdown by the capitol city boys. Omaha was not discouraged, but determined to break even two weeks later.

OMAHA 34—SOUTH OMAHA 0.

Omaha did not have much trouble with the boys from the south and succeeded in securing a rather easy victory. Klopp was kept out of the game to save him for the Lincoln game and Howes played a very good game at quarter, considering that he had but very little practice in the position. Ward, the South Omaha left end, played a remarkable game and was one of the best men Omaha played against during the year.

OMAHA 5—LINCOLN 0.

In one of the hardest and most exciting games of football ever played between two High School teams Omaha succeeded in defeating Lincoln for the first time in two years. It was one continued battle from the time of the whistle for the start until time was called, with Omaha fighting to keep her lead of 5 points made in the first half, and Lincoln fighting to make a touchdown. Again it was a battle between a team of eleven and a team of ten with an individual star, and it was too much of a handicap, for the star, L. Mann, was fully half of Lincoln's team, as he carried the ball half the time, made half the tackles and did all of the punting, which was remarkable. Omaha's score was made in the second quarter on a forward pass to Gall, who ran fifteen yards for a touchdown. Mann made several attempts to score a goal from the field, but was unsuccessful. During the latter part of the game the contest was waged in Lincoln's territory. The whole Omaha team played so well that it would almost be impossible to pick out any player who did better than the others. If any were picked it would be Klopp, who proved himself to be as good a quarterback as Omaha High has ever had. His generalship and spectacular running with the ball classed him as the best quarter in the state.

OMAHA 5—ST. JOSEPH 6.

With a team weakened by injuries and overconfidence, as the game proved, Omaha made the trip to St. Joseph for the next to the last game of the season. The easy victory of the year before led Omaha to believe that this would be an easy game and this overconfident spirit was largely responsible for the loss of the game, as the boys failed to get into the game with the vim and dash that characterized the previous contests. Omaha was unfortunate in not kicking the goal from touchdown and St. Joseph won, 6-5.

OMAHA 24—WENDELL PHILLIPS 11.

For the first time in the history of Omaha High School athletics a football game was played with a Chicago team. The day was perfect and a holiday crowd of twenty-eight hundred saw Omaha defeat the strong Wendell Phillips team in a game of up-to-date football. The game was filled with brilliant end runs, forward passes and line plays. Chicago was unable to cope with Omaha's strong line, so practically all of her gains were made on end runs and forward passes, with Captain Cahn the particular star of the game. He was the fastest man Omaha played against during the year and his end runs were spectacular. Omaha's forwards made big holes in Chicago's line and the back-field took full advantage of this fine work. At first it looked like an easy victory for Chicago, as they scored a touchdown in the first few minutes of play on end runs and forward passes. Omaha came back strong and made the score a tie, 6-6. The first half ended with the score 12-11 in Omaha's favor and after that Omaha's goal was not in danger until the last few minutes of play, when Chicago carried the ball to within 15 yards of our goal. In the second half Omaha secured two more touchdowns, making the final score 24-11. This half was characterized by the brilliant line smashes of Voyle Rector, assisted by the fine work of the right side of the line. Chicago could not say enough of the fine treatment given them by the Omaha team and spectators and are very anxious to play in Omaha again next year.

PROSPECTS FOR 1911.

Either through graduation or leaving school all but six members of the 1910 team will be lost to the football squad. There is some good material from the second team of last year, but this is not enough to carry the team through such a schedule as has been prepared. It will be necessary for every fellow who has ever played football or who has any of the qualifications to come out and try for the team and keep trying until the end of the season. There will be a big hole to fill, but we believe that there are enough boys in the High School to fill these places, and that the spirit is such that the success of the teams of the past three years will be continued.

A regular schedule will be prepared for the second team and this will be an incentive for those who are not able to make the first team.

SECOND TEAM GAMES.

This year was the first year that the O. H. S. Second Team had a definite schedule arranged. The games played were very successful and were a credit to the Purple and White. Wayne Selby was chosen captain and led the team in a very fine manner. The team was composed almost entirely of underclassmen and the experience and skill gained by them will certainly bring forth some fine material for the First Team next year. Following are the scores of the various games.

- Omaha 12—Valley 0.
- Omaha 5—Deaf Institute 0.
- Omaha 0—Deaf Institute 2.
- Omaha 0—Springfield 36.
- Omaha 5—South Omaha Second 0.
- Omaha 9—Lincoln Second 9.

THE TEAM.

Carson, E. Age 19. Center. Captain and second year on team. Ed developed into one of the best centers Omaha High has ever had.

Baumann, W. Age 17. Left forward. Second year on team. A good hard player who gingered up the team. Bill was at his best in the state tournament.

Burkenroad, L. Age 17. Forward and guard. First year on team. Leslie earned the reputation of being one of the hardest workers and the most consistent goal thrower on the team.

Crocker, B. Age 17. Right forward, left guard and first year on team. Captain-elect. Although light, he was the nerviest player on the team and a hard worker.

Howe, D. Age 17. Left guard. First year on team. Don was a good running guard and a very valuable substitute.

Jacobs, G. Age 18. Left guard. First year on team. Always faithful and reliable. Classed along with Patton of the 1910 team.

Munneke, H. Age 19. Left forward. First year on team. Although his first year in basket ball, he played a good game and should make a valuable man next year.

Rector, Vergil. Age 17. Left forward. Second year on team. Vergil did not get into the game until the first game with Sioux City and his presence greatly strengthened the team, as was shown in the team work in the last games.

Sackett, L. Age 18. Sub guard. First year on team. Lynn has another year and by work consistently, as in the past, should make good next year.

Wade, E. Age 19. Sub guard. First year on team. Elbert worked hard to make good and for his faithfulness was awarded his "O" by the Athletic Board.

The Basketball Team.

REVIEW OF BASKETBALL.

The basket ball season of 1910-1911 began the first week of December with a good number of candidates, but two of whom were on the team of the previous year. Among the promising candidates were Burkenroad, C. Crocker, Jacobs, Howe and Hughes of the Tiger Cubs of the Y. M. C. A., who had been playing together for two or three years.

Although the season was far from being the most successful since basketball was started in the High School, the result was six games won out of twelve, a fair record. This was in part due to the fact that the school did not support the team as it should. The test of school spirit is not when the team is winning, but when the representatives are doing their best to uphold the record of the school and their efforts are not successful.

OMAHA 32—FREMONT 22.

The opening game was played in the Omaha Y. M. C. A. gym with the Fremont Y. M. C. A. team, which was really a High School team. Omaha succeeded in winning by securing a good lead in the first half.

OMAHA 56—COUNCIL BLUFFS 33.

The following Friday the team went to Council Bluffs and succeeded in winning without difficulty. Burkenroad made a season's record by securing 13 field goals.

OMAHA 17—YORK 27.

York succeeded in repeating the defeat of last year, only by a larger score. Omaha was weakened by the loss of Captain Carson, who was kept out of the game by illness. To York this victory helped to make up for the defeat in football.

OMAHA 30—LINCOLN 19.

The date of February 4th was made memorable in the history of basket ball, as on that evening Omaha succeeded in winning from Lincoln on the Lincoln floor for the first time in years. Omaha took the lead from the very start of the game and was never headed. All of the boys played a fast game and the team work was about the best of the year. Burken-road, with a weak ankle, scored 8 field goals, or more than half of Omaha's points.

OMAHA 28—SOUTH OMAHA 56.

South Omaha, with the strongest team in her history, again lowered the colors of Omaha. Shields and Menefee did the best work for the visitors, with Carson and Crocker starring for Omaha.

OMAHA 31—LINCOLN 36.

Having a stronger line-up with Hartman playing forward, Lincoln turned the tables and secured the second game between the two schools. Omaha lost the game in the first half, as the boys seemed to be overconfident and lacked the dash of previous games. With the score 23 to 12 at the beginning of the second half, Omaha came back strong, but the lead was too great to overcome.

OMAHA 24—SIOUX CITY 36.

Considering the fact that Sioux City High had a team of giants, all but one of whom were over six feet in height, Omaha played a very good game. Aldrich was the shining light and some of his shots were phenomenal. He made 24, or two-thirds of Sioux City's points. Crocker, playing against Shull, who is 6 feet  $3\frac{1}{4}$  inches, succeeded in keeping him from scoring a single field goal. This was Rector's first game and as a result there was a great improvement in the passing by the Omaha team.

OMAHA 26—SIOUX CITY 41.

Weakened by the loss of Rector through sickness, the team played a fine game at Sioux City the following week. Omaha started out strong and at one time in the first half was leading, 10 to 3. This seemed to take out the overconfident spirit which the Sioux City boys had and they began to get their machine working. Aldrich was again the star, with 31 of the 41 points to his credit.

STATE TOURNAMENT.

OMAHA 58—STROMSBURG 15.

Omaha's first game was with the Stromsburg team and the boys had no difficulty in scoring an easy victory.

The Junior Basketball Team.

OMAHA 27—AURORA 14.

This was expected to be a very difficult game for Omaha, as Harter, the Aurora center, had the reputation of being a phenomenon. Carson succeeded in guarding him so well that he made but one field goal, while Ed made four. This game was the one that really put Omaha out of the tournament, as Captain Carson sprained his ankle and his ability to jump was greatly missed in the game which was played with Lincoln Friday evening.

OMAHA 22—LINCOLN 24.

In what proved to be one of the most exciting games of the tournament Lincoln defeated Omaha in an extra period contest. Captain Carson was unable to play and Burkenroad took his place, playing a strong game. It was a close contest throughout, the first half ending with the score 11-10 in Omaha's favor. Both teams played their hardest to win and when the whistle blew for the end of the game the score was a tie—22-22. According to the A. A. U. rules it was decided to play until one team made two points. After about three minutes of play C. Mann made an easy goal, thus giving Lincoln the victory. Burkenroad scored six goals out of six free throws.

OMAHA 46—COUNCIL BLUFFS 18.

In the final game of the season Omaha easily defeated Council Bluffs for the second time in the year. In this game the team work was perfect and Omaha served almost at will. The first half ended with the score of 32 to 7 and with this lead substitutes were put in during the second half so everyone on the squad had a chance to play.

PROSPECTS FOR 1911-1911.

With the return of five letter men and the material developed by the class games the team of 1911-1912 should be one of the best. Omaha should have one of the best teams in her history under the leadership of Captain Crocker. The team will be one which will fight from the beginning to the end.

CLASS GAMES.

The Junior class won the class tournament by defeating the Seniors in the final game by the score of 24 to 11.

In the preliminary games the Juniors downed the Freshmen 21 to 10, and the Seniors outclassed the Sophomores 28 to 22.

These games assist greatly in developing players for the first teams of the future and every boy who has any ability should come out and try for his class team.

The most successful season in track, that the pupils of Omaha High have ever witnessed began March 4th with the All Omaha meet held in the Y. M. C. A. The High School boys managed to get second place to Bellevue, defeating the Y. M. C. A. team.

OMAHA INDOOR MEET.

On the evening of April 1st the High School sprang a big surprise by tying with Chicago Athletic Association for first place with 16 points. Although a good number of the points were secured in handicap events it was quite a feat for a high school team as it was the highest class meet ever held in this section of the country. Wood won the 50-yard Interscholastic and secured third place in the championship 50-yard dash. Drexel secured third place in the 50-yard Interscholastic, Ellsworth was second in the mile, Ludwig won the half mile, and Cohn was third in the quarter mile. The relay team, consisting of Rowley, Rouse, Millard and Wood had no difficulty in defeating York and Sioux City, winning by fully forty yards.

CLASS MEET.

The next meet was the class meet held at the Driving Park, April 29th. Although the track was in very poor condition on account of the rain the previous night fair time was made in all events. Robert Wood succeeded in beating the school record of 20 ft. 4 in. in the broad jump made by Harold McKinney in 1909, making the distance of 20 ft. 5 1/2 in. in his final effort. The meet was won by the Sophomores with 53 points, Seniors second with  $50\frac{1}{2}$  points and the Juniors third with  $22\frac{1}{2}$  points. Robert Wood by securing 21 points is entitled to wear the class of 1908 gold medal for the present year. Halleck Rouse by securing 14 points became temporary owner of the silver medal donated by the same class.

OMAHA $48\frac{1}{2}$ —BELLEVUE $68\frac{1}{2}$ .

The Tri-City meet was to have been held Saturday, May 6th at Council Bluffs. Their management found it impossible to secure a good place to hold the meet, consequently it was postponed indefinitely. To take the place of this a dual meet was arranged with Bellevue and for Friday afternoon, May 5th. The boys made a very good showing, securing  $48\frac{1}{2}$  points to  $68\frac{1}{2}$  by Bellevue. Two school records were broken, Vergil Rector vaulting 10 ft. 9.8 inches, and Wood jumping 20. 8 ft or a little better than 20 ft.  $9\frac{1}{2}$  inches.

MISSOURI VALLEY MEET.

Omaha made a big jump forward in track at the Missouri Valley Interscholastic meet on May 13th, by securing second place out of eight schools competing. Kansas City Central was easily first with  $54\frac{1}{2}$  points and Omaha was quite a ways behind with 25 points, but still a good second. Three M. V. I. A. A. records were broken during the day and Omaha figured in two of these. Captain Wood broke the former record of 22 2-5 by going the 220 yard dash in 22 1-5 seconds. In a preliminary heat in the 100 yard dash, he equalled the record of 10 seconds, but this will not count as a record for him in the M. V. I. A. A. Rector tried with Rowell of Kansas City Normal vaulting 11 ft., which breaks the previous record of 10 ft.  $10\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Wiley of York made the distance of 22 ft. in the broad jump, Millard sprung a surprise by securing second place in the 440 yard dash, and Rowley secured third in the 100 yard dash.

STATE MEET.

Although there were nineteen high schools participating in this meet Omaha showed herself to be superior to them all by scoring 45 points or nearly twenty more than the nearest rival, York. But one record was broken and that by Omaha in the relay, the time being 1 minute 36 2-5 seconds or 3-5 of a second faster than the record made by Omaha in the State meet last year. The team ran in the following order: Rowley, Rector, Millard and Wood.

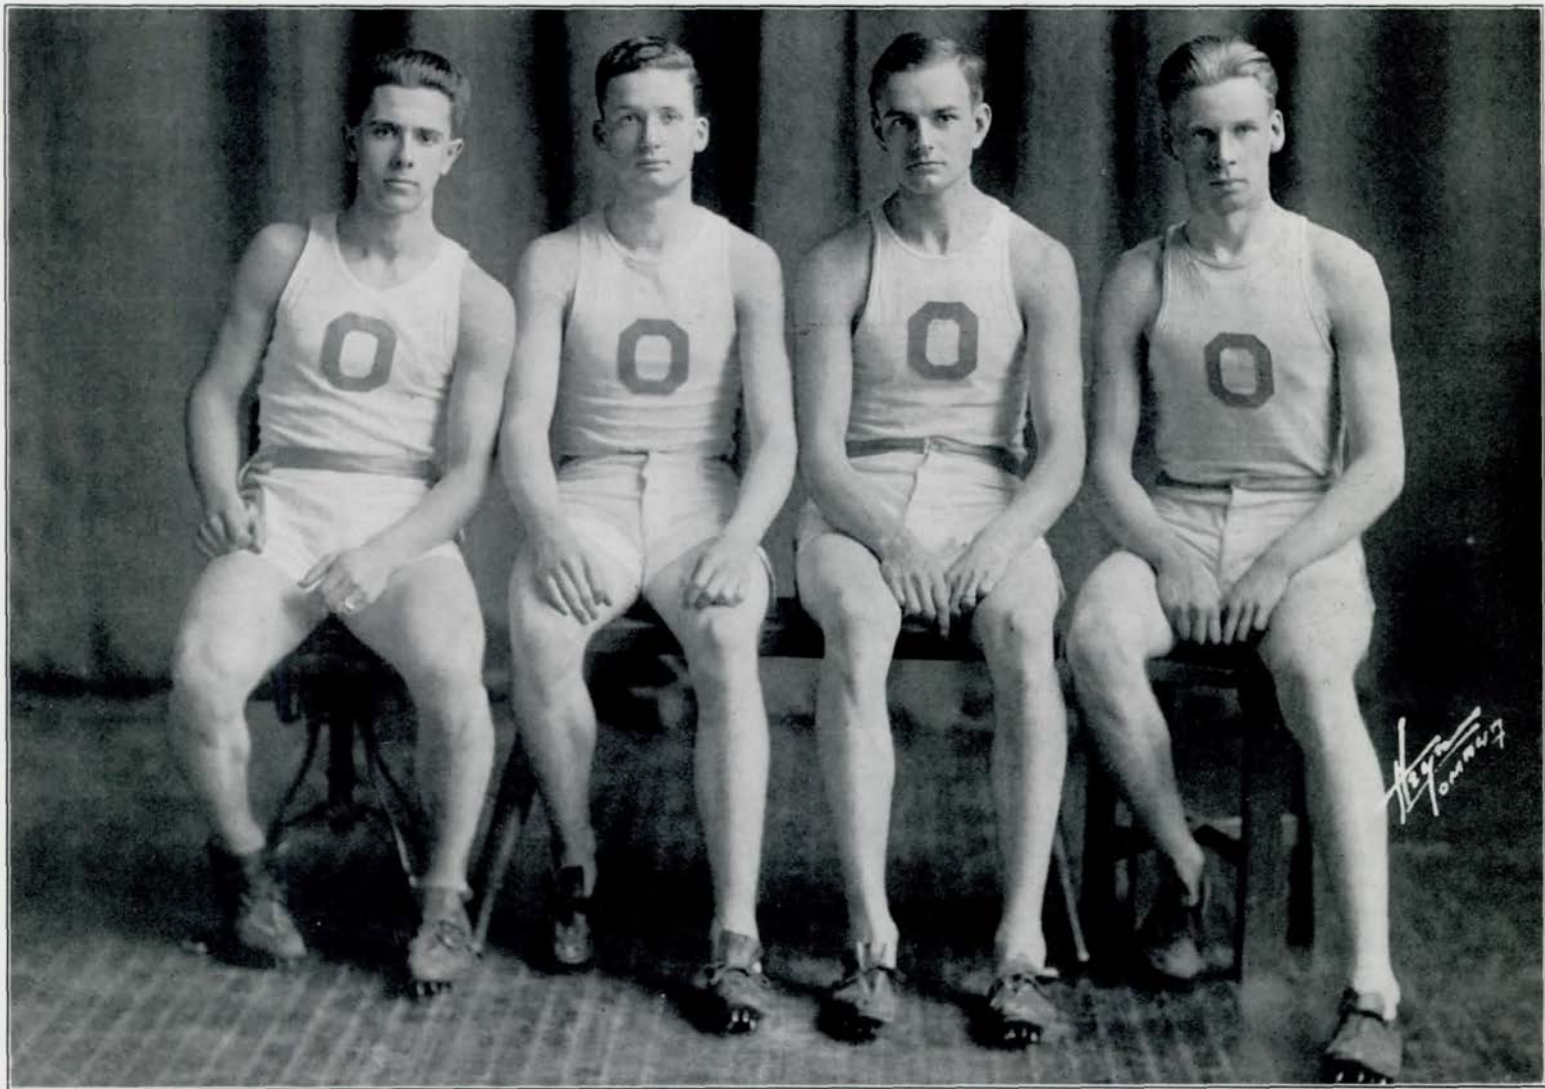

One thing worthy of mention is the fact that every one of the ten men competing for Omaha scored at least a fraction of a point and there were one or two others who had to be left at home who would have stood a good chance to score.

OUTLOOK FOR 1912.

Of the members of the present team the following men should be back again next year, Wood, Millard, Rector, Munneke, Drexel, which is a nucleus for a strong team next season, but this fact should be noted: With the exception of Dow in the weights Omaha was weak in the distance runs, high jump and the shot, hammer and discus, and in none of these can a boy or a man hope to become proficient in one season's practice, but it takes two and three years to learn how to perform these various feats. Next year should see more boys of the lower classes out for track, developing themselves to take the places of those who will be gone out next year. This is absolutely essential if Omaha is to keep its place, which has been so well earned, in the ranks.

Those awarded O's for track—Robert Wood, Albert Cahn, Hugh Millard, Andrew Dow, Ralph Ludwig, Leonard Lavidge, Lee Ellsworth, Vergil Rector, Benson Rowley, Harry Munneke, John Drexel.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS.

During the past year tennis has undoubtedly been most prominent in girls' athletics. Last fall a successful tournament was run off with the following results: Laura Zimmerman, winner of the tournament; Lucile Fellers, runner-up. In the spring, under the leadership of Miss Dumont, about one hundred girls, who were interested in tennis, met in room 209 and formed the Omaha High School Racquet Club. Since the formation of this club many girls have been earnestly practicing in the gymnasium and the result is that a large tournament with seventy-four entries has been successfully run off. As a prize a silver loving cup is offered to the girl who can win three successive tournaments.

Although the double session has not interfered much with tennis, it has entirely stopped basket ball and baseball in the gymnasium, but not before a few games of each had been played. One of these was a match game of basket ball between the Seniors and a picked team of Juniors and Sophomores. The Seniors won by a score of 12 to 7. The following comprise the members of the Senior team: Julia Quinby, Orpha McCartney, Queen James, Margaret Murphy, Mildred Eller, Vera Hudson, Gertrude Weitzel, Nellie Wood, Theresia Hokanson.

O. H. S. RACQUET CLUB.

When one speaks of football, basket ball or other forms of athletics in Omaha High School the word "boy" is immediately connected with it. But the Racquet Club, the purpose of which is to promote tennis, has no connection with "boy."

The club is composed of seventy-five girls and a number of the faculty and is under the direction of Miss Dumont. The plan is to have two tennis tournaments each year, one in the fall and one in the spring. The club has procured a trophy on which is to be engraved the name of the winner of each tournament. The girl who attains this honor three successive times is to become the possessor of the trophy.

The officers who were elected for this year are: President, Laura Zimmerman; Vice-President, Beulah Byrd; Secretary and Treasurer, Mildred Eller; Reporter, Elizabeth Rainey.

Although the past of the Racquet Club is short, it is very inspiring and promises of an excellent future. The girls are very enthusiastic and have placed the club on a foundation which will give it a long and efficient existence.

MANUAL TRAINING.

Before reviewing the work of the manual training department for the last year it will be interesting to review the entire history of this department. In 1885, just twenty-one years ago, manual training received its birth in the Omaha High School. Mr. Bauman was the first teacher. He remained with the school until 1891, when Mr. Wigman, the present teacher, took up the work as manual training instructor. Before taking up this work Mr. Wigman was foreman in the pattern department of the Union Pacific shops. He studied a three-year manual training course at the Cooper Institute, New York, so it can easily be seen that a more competent instructor could not be found to teach the rising young citizens of Omaha the masterful art of using both the hands and the brain at the same time.

When Mr. Wigman took hold of the department he had forty pupils under his immediate care. Now let's see how many are endeavoring to get the full benefit of this great branch of education. Nearly four hundred and fifty students. Seems fabulous, doesn't it? But nevertheless it is true that nearly one-sixth of the pupils take manual training.

Mr. Wigman has been with the school now nearly twenty years and the average number of pupils for that twenty years is nearly two hundred. This makes approximately five thousand pupils that have taken manual training under him. These pupils are now scattered broadside over the country and if each one could be traced down it would be found, with hardly an exception, that every one of them are influential citizens of the world. As it is now, many of the well-to-do business men of Omaha can trace back to the days when they used to saw wood in the basement of the old building (now being torn down) for Mr. Wigman.

These citizens represent occupations of every sort. Some are doctors, dentists, surgeons, bridge, mechanical, mining, civil, electrical, and, in fact, all kinds of engineers. Even some of the officers of Uncle Sam's army and navy boast that they once took manual training in the Omaha High School. Some people may doubt this, but a few names, such as Lieutenant Post, in charge of the local recruiting station; Edward Benson, quartermaster on the battleship Illinois; Frank Willie, first lieutenant and ensign on the battleship Texas, will certainly prove the statement. All of these prominent men once took manual training.

We might recall a few of the exhibits at which the Omaha High School has been represented by the manual training department. At the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893 Mr. Wigman sent samples of the work done in this school. The High School also had a large exhibit at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition in Omaha. These exhibits were admired by thousands and were said to have been the liveliest manual exhibits at either place. Mr. Wigman always had boys working at the lathes and benches at these exhibits. When the International Manual Training Exhibit was held at New Haven, Conn., Omaha was represented and made a fine record. At the St. Louis Exposition Omaha sent an exhibit that was acknowledged to be equal to the French and German exhibits.

The past year has been a very successful one in manual training. It is true that the mechanical drawing rooms have been separated from the working rooms, but this did not interfere with the quality of the work. Mr. Orchard and Miss McCague are conducting their drawing classes in the old study room, 204, while Mr. Wigman and Mr. Kerrigan have their manual training classes in the basement of the east building.

As in previous years, the boys are making beautiful articles. Library tables of every description and make, dining room, Morris and rocking chairs, tabourets, pedestals, card and star tables, card receivers, clocks, beautifully colored cups and many other small articles too numerous to mention constitute some of the things that are being made by Omaha's future citizens. An exhibit will be held again this year in one of the large rooms of the school. The public in general is cordially invited to attend this exhibit in order to see exactly what we are doing and then you can judge for yourselves as to the quality of the work.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

If there is any class of people in this world who deserve to be literally covered with decorations of distinction it is those who by their knowledge of economy and right living help to feed the world and keep its dwelling places sweet and clean and thus raise the moral standard of the world.

It is for this reason that Domestic Science has taken such a prominent place in the course of study in the Omaha High School. Domestic Science was instituted in this school in February of 1910 and since that time many intelligent girls have become familiar with the principals on which "The Right Management of the Home" is based. The classes have all been filled and many girls have been refused the opportunity of taking the subject on account of the lack of room.

During the past year the course has been divided into "Lectures and Experiments," the lectures being given on Mondays and Fridays and the experiments along the line of cookery taking place on the other days. Some of the most valuable lectures given were "Lecture On Caring of the Sick," "Lecture On Bandaging of Wounds," "Lecture On Sanitary Conditions About the Home" and "Lecture On House Building." All these lectures proved to be very interesting. It would be difficult to try to enumerate the many experiments made along the line of cookery. However, we are safe in saying that every important art from the making of bread to the making of ice cream has been experimented.

Our work has not only been along the lines of lectures and simple experiments, but we have also devoted much time to the preparation of luncheons. There has been given this year four daintily appropriated luncheons. The first was given for the girls themselves, for which the guests and waitresses were chosen by the different classes. The next was given for six business men of this city, the next for the faculty and the last for the members of the Board of Education. Everything concerning the luncheons, including the decorations and menus, were prepared by the girls and each luncheon proved such a complete success that they became the pride of the Domestic Science girls. As a result many girls have used these luncheons as a model for their own luncheons.

Connected with the different lessons there was given each day a short lesson on economy and systematic management, two principals which have been emphasized most emphatically during the year's work.

The best possible results have been obtained in the Domestic Science classes this year and we are ready to give praise to the teacher of the department, Miss Turner.

So here is to the woman,
Who with her noble science,
Tells of the conditions
In need of human compliance.

She tells us to work,
And work with some great aim;
For this, she says, is the motto
By which we will gain fame.

She tells about the system
With which we should make a start
To be a noble woman
And accomplish this great art.

She tells us of the happy days
Which cannot help but come
If no woman shirks her duty,
But attends strictly to her home.

She tells us of the happy lives
And the sweet and wholesome home,
The neatness and the sunshine bright
That one can have alone.

And so let us praise her
And forget the deeds of men,
While for her moral teachings
We cheer her once again.

The following are testimonials given by a few of the Domestic Science girls who have taken a course in the Omaha High School:

"I have learned that to be a good cook means not only to prepare food well, but to have a knowledge of its composition; to be careful, neat and economical, to regard cookery as a noble science, not a menial task."—Ruth Dowling.

The Mosher-Lampman College enjoys the well-earned reputation of having the best courses of study, and the most practical teachers. It is now to have the FINEST HOME of any Business College in the West. All of the sixth floor, and half of the fifth of the elegant Wellington Block, at 1813-15-17 Farnam street have been planned and arranged especially for the Mosher-Lampman College and will, therefore, be as convenient and well adapted for school purposes as it is possible for men of twenty years' experience to make them. BRAND NEW, thoroughly modern, including electric elevator, and open to light and ventilation from all sides—in fact, ideal.

Think what that means to the student!

It means the very best possible surroundings, the greatest comfort, and the very best chance for advancement.

The MOSHER-LAMPMAN COLLEGE will move into this elegant new building upon completion, and the student who wishes to combine thorough and practical instruction with the finest appointments to be found in the West will unhesitatingly enter this school.

Did you ever stop to think that the Mosher-Lampman College is the only business college in Omaha that has not been propped up several times by consolidation with other schools? Although we have been urged to consolidate we have not done so, because we believe that we can best serve the interests of the young people of this section by giving them, in a pure and unadulterated form, the Mosher-Lampman ideas of modern business training. To combine would mean to compromise, and that would mean to lower our standard.

School will be in session all summer. Special term will begin on the Monday following the closing of the public schools.

THIS IS YOUR CHANCE. Send for catalog and investigate now.

Now that you have graduated
And think that you are educated,
Try a test upon your knowledge,
Not by going away to college—
But, on your way for evening calls
Please your lady by “sweets” from Dyball’s.

“What is an angel, mother?” asked a six-year-old.

“Why, dear, it is a beautiful lady with wings, who flies.
But why do you ask?”

“Because I heard father call my governess an angel,” replied the little boy.

“Oh!” said the mother. “Well, dear, you watch her, and you will see her fly tomorrow.”

All good boys love their sisters
And so good I have grown
That I love other boy's sisters
As well as my own.

—Ex.

There was a young man named Green,
Who was so abnormally lean
And flat and compressed
That his back touched his chest,
And sidewise he couldn't be seen.

—Ex.

A class pin owned and a class pin loaned
Is a common sight to see;
But to get one back, alas; alack!
Is a darn hard thing for me.

“The lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine.”
So warbled a damsel with zest quite divine.
Then retorted the man with the wickedest glee,
“The girls that kiss poodless shall never kiss me.”

—Ex.

“He's as regular as a six-day clock.”
“I noticed that he always looks rundown on Sundays.”

You Can Not Afford A Summer Vacation

When, by beginning the work in our school June 19th, you can qualify for a position ELEVEN WEEKS sooner than by beginning at the usual time in fall.

Young men and women with High School education, IF trained in the VAN SANT SCHOOL, command from nine to twelve dollars a week, so that, at the lowest calculation, it would cost you NINETY-NINE DOLLARS to spend your summer unoccupied.

It isn't necessary to argue the merits of our school; its reputation and the success of its graduates for the past TWENTY YEARS are sufficient proof that we stand at the TOP in our field. But past experience has told us that it IS necessary to convince young people that a summer vacation is a very expensive luxury and not a necessity. Our rooms are cool and comfortable and our hours are so short as to leave sufficient time for recreation.

June 19th is the BEST TIME to enroll in the BEST SCHOOL and receive the BEST TRAINING in
