The summer of '83: A hot one.

The summer of '83 was sure a HOT one! As the temperature soared past the 100° mark, many Central students were searching for ways to keep cool. Swimming was dubbed the "quickest and easiest" way to get cool. Unfortunately, the quickest and easiest usually means it is the most popular. For some Centralites the pool became boring and crowded. Senior Mary Villela spent her summer at Moby Dick water slides. But, she wasn't there to cool off, she was an employee. "It was always busy; on a hot day anywhere from 500-1000 people were there (at Moby Dick)," she said. Mary said that a few employees got over heated and had to go to the office to cool off, but on their breaks they were allowed to go down the slides.

While things were heating up and cooling off here in Omaha, two Central seniors were hitting the books on the East. Melissa Meares and Sarah Thailing spent their summer expanding their horizons. Melissa spent her summer studying at Harvard University. "The only way we could keep cool was with fans from my Grandma." When she wasn't studying, she said that she spent most of her time shopping and sight seeing. "My experience this summer was very beneficial since I met so many people and learned many interesting things. I really feel as if I have accomplished something worthwhile."

Sarah Thailing was the recipient of a Telluride scholarship. She spent the summer at Williams College studying the 60's. It was a non-graded course, and she didn't receive credit. "It was extremely beneficial even though I didn't receive a grade because I worked with College professors and students who were at the top of their classes from across the country." These two were but a few of the many Central seniors that spent their summer studying and expanding themselves. Many Central students went aboard while many preferred to stay in the U.S. All in all Central students spent an industrious and exciting summer regardless of the heat!

Q: What do you think of the completion of Central's face-lift?

A: Very neat — It made too much noise. — Melanie Sanders, Senior.

A: It took too long. So I am glad to see that it is done. But, I think that more should have been added to each room. — Brian Lundin, Junior.

A: It looks all right to me. — Tracy Von Rapacki

Q: What do you think

You said it!

about school spirit here at Central?

A: I think that we have quite a bit of school spirit. Everyone seems to want to support the school. — Chris Ware, Junior.

A: I think it's basically good. A lot of it depends upon whether or not you're involved in sports and extra-curricular activities. People who aren't involved in these activities tend to not have any school spirit. — Jacki London, Senior.

A: Well, it's okay, but they shouldn't have just punk rock and preppie day. There are other people who don't classify themselves as one of the above. I think that they should have an Iron Maiden Day! — Nino Dagosta, Sophomore.

Q: What do you think of the quality of education you're getting here at Central?

A: I think that it's pretty good. I'm sure it's better than any other school in Nebraska. I don't think that enough emphasis is put on history courses. — Rod Gainer, Senior.

A: The quality is good, but it is tough. It is a lot harder than the last school I was at. — Bev Atkins, Junior.

September brings a 'change of pace'

This past September Central High School opened its doors to many familiar faces as well as many new ones. One newcomer otherwise known as a SOPHOMORE commented that high school was a nice change of pace. And a change of pace it is! The opening of school has always been known for its confusion, even for seniors. It is full of cards and forms to be filled out and returned by a certain date. It is also full of inventory tests, national exams, and first themes. September is the month of transition. The teachers and administrators use this month to mold Central students back into tip-top shape. September seems to be a difficult month to get through. Minds tend to wander back to the great summer parties that were just last week. The weather is usually nice which makes it all the more difficult to concentrate. Senior, Diane Vazzano, said, "September is usually a difficult month to get through for me. But this year was even harder. I really don't know why but believe me, it was." Some Central students showed a great dislike for the month. Liesl Wanzenried, senior, said,

"I really don't care for the month because it means the end of summer fun." There was one Centralite who really did say she liked September. Kathy Paulsen, senior, said, "Personally I like the month. My birthday is in that month, and after a long boring summer I look forward to school in some ways."

This schedule may seem familiar to many Central students. Students who work and go to school are under an extreme amount of pressure. Sometimes a student has to choose between school and work. All too often the student will choose work. But, there is hope.

Many Centralites who find themselves in this predicament have found ways to budget their time and relieve themselves of some pressure.

Senior Rod Gainer said that he can do much of his homework at work at Mathews bookstore. But, most working students are not as fortunate as Rod is. Senior Raschelle Serghini said, "I really don't feel like I'm under that much pressure very often, but when I do I usually go shopping and buy something very expensive."

The few fortunate students who don't work still feel some pressure at one time or another. One junior said that the pressure came from his parents.

Centralites beat high cost of living

Public education free? Not exactly! True, Central students do not have to pay tuition, but the little fees for this and that add up quickly.

These fees come in many shapes and sizes. The locker fees are the first that hit the students. Then at the same time students are persuaded to purchase the money saving Student Activity ticket (S.A. card).

Sophomore Kathy Cobbs said, "My parents give me the money for all my school related costs, and that helps alot."

The card entitles him to a free newspaper a discount on his yearbook and free or reduced admission to the games and meets.

Mary Danielson and Susie Svoboda pose sweetly for the photographer.

Sure-fire cures for boredom

Have you ever been without anything to do? Well, you're not alone! Everyone, at one time or another, is just plain bored. But don't despair because there is hope!

Take that free-time and do something you've always wanted to do. If you look at the time positively, then it can be used positively. Several Central students recommended reading a good book.

If you're unsure about where to turn for a good book, some students recommend classics such as Jane Eyre, The Catcher in The Rye, Wuthering Heights, and Moll Flanders. These books are a mere fraction of the books available.

Perhaps you're the kind of person who would rather do something somewhat active. In that case, write a letter to a friend or relative, or go for a walk.

The best part of having nothing to do is that you can do whatever you want. You don't have to do anything at all. So the next time that you think you are bored just remember the last time you said, "I have so much to do!"

Leslie Bowen learns about computer terminology.

Heather Hammans appears undecided about where she is going.

Videos receive ratings

Maurtice Ivy, senior, checks in tardy at the attendance office.

If you're a rock or pop-music addict then you have probably had the experience of watching those little 2-4 minute videos on Cox Cable's MTV, Music Television.

The American youth was first introduced to videos in 1981. By 1984, videos seem to be one of the hottest past-times for those same teens.

Videos are not limited to cable-TV subscribers. NBC has videos in the form of Friday Night Videos every Friday night.

Last November, Cox Cable's magazine, On Cable, rated the videos. The results might be a bit surprising. The ten best videos were 1) Beat It - Michael Jackson, 2) Hungry Like the Wolf - Duran Duran, 3) Rock This Town - Stray Cats, 4) Every Breath You Take - The Police, 5) Hold Me - Fleetwood Mac, 6) Tell Her About It - Billy Joel, 7) Let's Dance - David Bowie, 8) She Blinded Me With Science - Thomas Dolby, 9) New Frontier - Donald Fagen, 10) Billie Jean - Michael Jackson. The ten sexiest were 1) Images of Heaven - Peter Godwin, 2) Candy Man - The Mary Jane Girls, 3) Girls on Film - Duran Duran, 4) Sexy and 17 - The Stray Cats, 5) Maniac - Michael Sembello, 6) The One Thing, INXS, 7) Little Red Corvette - Prince, 8) Desperate But Not Serious - Adam Ant, 9) Long Hot Summer - The Style Council, 10) Gimme All Your Lovin' - ZZ Top. The Ten Most Unusual were 1) Sweet Dreams - The Eurythmics, 2) Burning Down the House - Talking Heads, 3) Shock The Monkey - Peter Gabriel, 4) Song for a Future Generation - B-52s, 5) Nothing Bad Ever Happens to Me - Oingo Boingo, 6) Peek - A - Boo - Devo, 7) I Love L. A. - Randy Newman, 8) Atlantic City - Bruce Springsteen, 9) Rockit - Herbie Hancock, 10) Shiny Shiny - Haysi Fantaysee. Finally, the ten most expensive videos were 1) Take it Away - Paul McCartney, 2) Beat It - Michael Jackson, 3) Body Language - Queen, 4) Hungry Like the Wolf - Duran Duran, 5) Tell Her About It - Billy Joel, 6) Pressure - Billy Joel, 7) Sexy and 17 - The Stray Cats, 8) Stand Back - Stevie Nicks, 9) I'm Still Standing - Elton John, 10) Musclebound - Spandau Ballet

Bring on the Class of '84!

Good-bye Central, Hello World! The end of each school year brings many farewells for friends, teachers, and classmates, knowing that in three short months they will be seeing each other again. Senior year brings a different kind of farewell. Now is the time to say good-bye to Central High School. Not just a school, but a home for the past three school years. Central will remain in the hearts of many seniors as where they experienced the joys and pains of growing up.

Where to now? Now the class of '84 is headed out to face and challenge the real world, but this class is well-prepared because in a few short days they will all be proud graduates of Central High School.

Senioritis haunts seniors

How often this year did you find yourself daydreaming, unable to concentrate, neglecting your homework or feeling the urge to skip classes? Well, you were not alone. These symptoms have all been connected to that imminent disease called senioritis. The results of this illness include lower grade point averages, failure of classes, and extreme confusion.

Calvin Minor adds, "You start thinking about doing wierd things you'd never do any other time. It just gets harder and harder to go to school each day."

Senioritis cripples a person's outlook on school in general. In individual interviews a large number of students described school as "boring" and told of a constant desire to "get out."

However, senioritis is not incurable. The most sought after remedy is the weekend, when the average Central Senior can be found out with a group of friends going to parties, dances, games, or just "jacking around." However, if you can't wait for the weekend, there are other alternatives. For weeknight remedies, Senior Rod Hauck recommends meeting with a group of intellectual friends at the library and then "going out for refreshments."

Cathy Wendt recommends shirking all responsibility and going to bed. One Central Senior, who wishes to remain anonymous, frequents TICO'S for two-fers, of nachos, that is.

How to rule a school

After being pushed around, called names and laughed at for two long years, the class of '84 is happy to be the leaders of the school. Here are some words of advice from various Central seniors for next year's ruling class.

Kathe Harris - "... let everyone know we're the leaders."
 Paula Trimble - "Ridicule the underclassmen."

Gabriell Albanese - "We need respect. We should be able to sit where we want to in our classes."

Cheryl Schlagenhauff - "Seniors deserve special privileges."

Sheila O'Hara - "We should be able to go off campus."

Liesl Wanzneried - "UNITE!"

Cramming can be done anywhere.

Officers plan "a year to remember!"

In November of '83, this year's senior class officers were elected. With duties ranging from attending meetings to being the master of ceremonies at commencement, this group plays a significant role in the attitude of the '84 graduating class.

Tom Zerse, senior class President, feels that "the class of '84 has more unity and more spirit than previous graduating classes have had. We can make this a great year to remember."

The other officers share Tom's confidence in the seniors' spirit. Girl's Sergeant-at-Arms, Lisa Morris, said, "We've got a special senior class with a lot of people who really know how to party!"

The senior class officers planned this year's activities with great expectations. These included "more senior activities, both in and out of school."

Terri Tesar, senior class Treasurer, believes, "The class of '84 is going to be the best!"

Moving up into the rank of a junior means more than an end to the classification as a sophomore and all the abuse that goes with it. Junior year is one of great importance, and the students are faced with new situations almost immediately upon entering school in the fall.

The juniors are told repeatedly how important their junior year is in terms of college, and this is emphasized by the heavier workload. In October, many juniors register to take the PSAT tests which are used to determine the preliminary candidates for the National Merit Scholarships. Some students even begin deciding on the colleges they will make application to. Junior, Marcia Peters, said, "I've gone to listen to college representatives in the counseling center and have narrowed my college decisions down to four or five colleges in the Midwest."

Although junior year is heavily concerned with schoolwork and academic achievement, the year also proves to be fun. Paralleling the sophomore "syndrome," the juniors now find that they are admitted into "no sophomores allowed" parties. Another advantage juniors experience is the freedom of driving. Friendships also become stronger and one's sense of identity is established. Perhaps the most important advantage to being a junior is the idea that next year they will be big, bad, seniors.

Advice on college decisions

by Catherine Clarke

Is there life after high school? Of course there is. Students, after graduating, follow through with many goals. Some decide to go to work full or part time. Others plan to continue their education in some manner; thus, college preparation is necessary. While most students believe that only seniors should be concerned with selecting colleges or universities, juniors should start making preliminary decisions too.

Selecting a college that is best suited to one's needs is not an easy task. When making decisions, one must take into account location, tuition, transportation costs, and size. These are but a few of the important factors. Of course, getting accepted is another story. The college bound student should be conscious of his or her grades.

Juniors should get a head start in the college selection process by taking the SAT or the ACT in late spring of the junior year. This allows one to retake them in the fall of the senior year if one is not satisfied with the scores. Some students even need to take the achievement tests. Celia Champagne, senior, said, "I'm glad that I took both my ACT and SAT tests last spring because it gave me an idea of what the tests were like so I could make some improvements before I retook the tests this fall." The PSAT tests, which is given to the juniors is a good idea in that it gives one the general idea of what to expect of the ACT and SAT. Perhaps the best way for one to begin looking for colleges is to sit down with a college handbook and thumb through it. Invariably, one's decisions will change repeatedly before it comes time to actually apply so it is a good idea to be informed on all the possible choices. The Central guidance center has a computer listing of schools and prints out the best ones for any particular person after the person feeds into the computer all their necessities.

Although college may seem like it's far off in the future, for juniors, time passes quickly. It is a good idea to write to all the schools one is interested in and have them send all possible information. Even though the heavy decision making isn't until early fall of the senior year, it is a good idea to plan ahead, especially if one is planning to apply at the early application deadline.

Juniors take initiative in college selection by reading through college handbooks.

Value of dollar learned; Jrs. add jobs to schedule

by Catherine Clarke

"Money doesn't grow on trees" is a familiar phrase with most people. Money is tight not only for adults, but for youngsters as well. This means that more youths are forced into getting a job to support their expenditures, whatever they may be.

For the most part, students get a job because of necessity rather than for the experience. Students hold jobs ranging anywhere from a sales clerk to a maintenance worker. Whatever the job is, most students agree that the money is worth the time spent working. When one works, priorities must be set straight. Students must learn to balance work, schoolwork, and a social life. Bev Atkins, a junior employed at Wendy's, said, "I like it (working) because of the money. It takes away from my homework time and my social life."

Schedules can get hectic so one must keep a level head. Mike Ghali, a junior working at Bishops at the Westroads, said, "Working teaches me how to organize my time schedule. I'm more organized when I have to work because there is less time to mess around. I have to make use of what little time I have because there is so little of it."

In the beginning . . .

"You can always distinguish a sophomore as the one who repeatedly trips over the door stoppers," said senior Peter Tracey.

Sophomores usually receive this type of treatment upon entering Central High School. "It's fun to pick on sophomores because they're such sophomores," said Chip Smith, another senior. Another popular mistake made by sophomores is purchasing elevator passes.

During their year at Central the sophomores have dealt with the cruel reality of upperclassmen. "It seems the upperclassmen are never satisfied with what we do," complained sophomore Becky Reynolds. Most upperclassmen don't mean anything serious by these remarks; they are merely compelled to execute the same behavior as they experienced as sophomores.

In a few short weeks the sophomores of 1984 will become juniors. So sophomores, just remember you were once a SOPHOMORE!

Two sophomores can't keep their eyes off their favorite football players.

An end to 'I need a ride!'

"Hey Mom, is it alright if I take the car Friday night?" This question along with others like it becomes increasingly popular throughout the school year as the sophomores reach the ripe old age of 16 and receive their driver's licenses. To these parents who continually chauffeured the kids around for sixteen years it comes as a relief, but to those more experienced drivers on the streets it may come as a hazard.

Sophomores usually await their 16th birthday with much anticipation. Receiving a license means more than just being licensed to operate an automobile; to most it symbolizes a long-awaited freedom. This freedom changes the lifestyles of many. Students become released from the grasp of dependence and take on new responsibilities. These responsibilities may include car payments, insurance payments, and registration. For those students lucky enough to be able to drive to school it means not getting up at the crack of dawn to get to the bus stop on time. "It's a lot better than walking," says sophomore Jim Kramer. Most sophomores share the same feeling; that is it allows them to go where they want, when they want.

Sophomores are not the only ones excited to get their licenses. The upperclassmen who have worn a chauffeur status are equally, if not more, excited. Not only are they no longer nagged with questions for rides home after school, but they no longer have to encounter the embarrassing situation of being in a car with a SOPHOMORE!

So new drivers, don't go overboard with your newly acquired freedom. Rather, take it as one more step into adulthood and be cautious. And for Heaven's sake, throw away those learners permits you got in ninth grade.

Be home early or else ...

Wow! That was some party last night! All those guys, and especially that blonde one with the blue eyes. He was absolutely gorgeous! He even had a convertible. That was so much fun I thought it would never end. It was all too much fun ... almost like a dream.

Wait a minute, it was a dream. I know that I couldn't have had all that fun because I was home at twelve o'clock, curfew time.

For many sophomores, curfews interrupt the night's fun. One must grudgingly leave parties early. Possible attempts for meeting that someone special must be forgotten. And, gum or something to freshen one's breath must be bought from the nearest 7-11 all in an attempt to make it home by curfew time without being bombarded with a thousand questions from those stay-up-till-you-get-home mothers.

This leads one to wonder where those nights would have led to if they had not been so rudely interrupted by "What time is it? Oh no, I have to be home in five minutes or I'm grounded for a year."

One also wonders whether a curfew serves any real purpose. Some parents argue that night time is no time for their children to be out somewhere wandering the streets. Many parents have the idea that the later it becomes, the more trouble one is apt to get into. Students counter this by saying that if there is something they really want to do, then they can compensate and go out earlier. Most parents have a hard time accepting this reasoning and students cannot understand why.

It must be realized that curfews are not restricted to sophomores. Actually, most juniors and even some seniors have to be in at a certain time. The difference is that their curfews are usually extended as they get older, provided that they haven't abused their previous curfews too badly. Curfews, for the most part, seem to be directed toward sophomores because of the abundance of new privileges of tenth graders. For example, many parents insist that their child be home early if they have taken the car.

So sophomores, just be patient and maybe when you advance in years your bedtime won't be so early. By the way, isn't it about time you went home?

Sophomores find romance and fun

The dating game begins . . .

What is it exactly that attracts the interest of incoming sophomores each year? Is it the change in atmosphere? Is it the selection of different classes and the exciting new activities?

For many students, the answer is yes to at least one of the previous questions. However, quite a few sophomores are attracted by something else, or rather, someone else. For guys this something else is girls and vice versa. High school is the perfect place to get familiar with new faces and personalities.

There are many reasons why dating is a first-time experience for sophomores. Number one, of course, is the fact that most students receive their driver's license during their sophomore year. Thus, transportation is easier. This constitutes an end to mom or dad driving their son/daughter and their partner to the movies Saturday afternoon.

Another reason why many students don't date until they reach high school is because many students cannot go out on a date until they reach the age of 16. During junior high years, friends often meet at a park or at the nearest 7-11, but this can hardly be considered going out on a date. Homecoming and Prom also encourage students to go out with each other. After all, how many students choose to go to a dance stag or with a friend of the same sex?

Whether you happen to be one who enjoys serious relationships or are one to "date around," "Mr. Right" or "Miss Perfect" is out there waiting for you. Just look around!

Faculty helps fulfill academic success

Academics, the most important part of school life can sometimes be easily forgotten but not at Central. Many students, in order to obtain as much knowledge as possible, begin their school days as early as 7:30 by attending such classes as the "before school Chemistry" class while others expand their horizons by becoming involved in industrial arts, drafting, reading courses, home ec., and even aerobic classes. A student can better himself by visiting the writing lab, where he can remediate his English abilities or stopping in at the library to study in the quiet atmosphere.

In order to obtain such outstanding opportunities, one needs the type of staff that is found at Central. The administrators and teachers understand the needs and wants of the students and put all efforts forward to meet these needs. They give the students the chance to be all that they can be and help to prepare them for what lies ahead. Due to all the consideration and understanding the administrators and teachers contribute, the academic life is that of a joy and adventure.

Administrators show strength and courage.

by Patti Laney

Keeping discipline and a well maintained atmosphere at Central is only a small part of the difficult job that Dr. Moller, principal, Mr. Jones, Mr. LaGreca, and Mrs. Barbee, who are all assistant principals, must handle each and every day. Each one of these administrators have certain jobs that must be taken care of in order for Central to run on a respectable basis. Central is a well known school throughout Omaha and it is important that Central keeps its good name.

There is the direct oversee of the entire school, which is left up to Dr. Moller; then, of course, there are certain specific duties which must be taken care of. Such as taking care of student schedules and grades, which Mr. LaGreca takes care of. The honor roll and disciplining of students is Mr. Jones place. Planning career day and fire drills is Mrs. Barbee's job.

Central students and teachers are very lucky and should be really grateful that the school is blessed with such responsible and caring administrators. Caring about students, teachers, and the school itself is the name of the game.

Mr. Jones shows his concern for students.

Mrs. Barbee seems concerned and buried in thought.

Mr. LaGreca displays his bright eyes and smile.

Faculty teams up for academic success

Central, a school very much known for its high standards of academics, can be compared to that of a football, basketball, or baseball team. In order to be a success, there must be togetherness, cooperation, and the ability to work together!

These qualities are seen throughout the entire faculty and school body in the many accomplishments that occur during the year.

The teachers at Central are helpful and caring and are willing to see the students through any mishaps or bad times they may encounter during the year.

Being able to have a good, honest relationship with the faculty means a very smooth running and easy year. A year of happiness and success!

Office staff helps Central to its best.

How could Central operate without the help of the office staff and aides! There are so many duties and tasks to be taken care of every day that Central just wouldn't be Central without the hard work set forth by the office staff and aides.

The main office staff consists of Martha Rasp, Sharlene Rosenthal, Wanda Zerzan, and Mrs. Bauer. Each one of these women has specific duties to perform. For instance, there is mail to be sorted through, substitute teachers to be found, phones to answer, and messages to be taken. These and many other things must be done in order for Central to exist.

Two other very important women who aide in the running of Central are Esther Wageman and Francis Welch. These women are in charge of the attendance office. They must deal with the students signing in and out of school and keeping track of all student absences.

In the assistant principal's office are Eloise Schwerdfeger and Jo Derry. They are aides to Mr. LaGreca, Mr. Jones, and Mrs. Barbee. They help by doing certain assigned jobs that are given to them.

Mrs. Hazuka, takes care of the secretarial work in the guidance office. She takes care of many things dealing with students. For instance, things connected with college applications, ACT and SAT information.

Mrs. Geri Thomas, the school nurse is a very busy lady. She must take care of injuries that occur at school and tend to sick students. She also takes care of doctor and dentist notes from the kids and any medication a student may need to take.

Cafeteria, Custodians put forth effort!

You see students walk through the lunch line complaining and saying such things as "what's that supposed to be" or "YUK, that looks gross," yet the number of students that do eat the food isn't a very small one. The food prepared in the cafeteria isn't as drastic as the students indicate. It is kind of like a tradition; school food has always been considered horrible and that attitude is just something that is carried out each year.

There is much time and patience put into the lunches by the cafeteria staff. The staff consists of twelve women. These women are Jane Lexau, Maxine Renner, Florence McCoy, Laura Landess, Mahra Taylor, Jean Thrasher, Pauline Estes, Fannie Russ, Georgia Nosek, Judy Earnest, Frances Page, and Peggy White. Many of these ladies arrive early every morning in order to serve breakfast while the others arrive later to help with the lunch. The ladies have brought out a new idea this year, a sack lunch that is served in the courtyard. The lunch consists of a sandwich, a fruit, a bag of chips, and milk. Also served is a chef salad. The idea is quite impressive and seems to have done very well.

Security, clean up important at Central!

George Taylor, security aide at Central, has many other titles, too. As George puts it, his major duty is to "see that we have peace and keep everything secure." He helps with those uncooperating students, and the recovery of stolen property. He wants to establish a safe atmosphere so students can learn and teachers can teach. George can be thanked for 15 long hard years of work.

In order to help keep a clean atmosphere at Central, we have 17 hardworking custodians. These people clean up and maintain a beautiful surrounding for the students and teachers at Central. The custodians include Frank Bednars, Shane Costello, Julius Cwirko, Riley Gunter, Lewis Hanson, Glen Harris, Jesse Heller, Jr., Roy Holmes, Robert Jones, Martha Kidd, Leland Kling, Edward Krupa, Francis Massara, James Merrifield, Donald Olsen, Elza Tabor, and Duane Williams.

Library-Added touches relaxful and peaceful

The library, a very quiet place to which many people escape during study halls or before school, is very handy for studying, reading, or just to sit and daydream. It's a place to go to and be alone when one wants. The Central library underwent many changes during the summer of '83 and the beginning of the school year. There was expansion, rearrangement, and remodeling just to mention a few of the improvements. These changes allow students to better enjoy the atmosphere and to get away for awhile after long hours of studying or working.

Early morning chemists rise and shine for work.

As many students are gathering in the courtyard to catch up on the latest gossip of "who is going out with whom" or "where is the party going to be this weekend", many other students are hard at work on the "number of moles = number of grams/molecular weight" or the fact that Hg=Mercury and Dy=Dysprosium in the before morning Chemistry class. This class begins at 7:30 and is treated as any other regular 40 minute class. There is homework to be done, tests to be taken, and labs to be done. Chemistry is the wonder of the world which these students are getting up so early each morning to discover and find out more about.

Home Ec brightens future for students!

by Patty Laney

Many students, male as well as female, are getting an early start on learning to care for themselves through the world of Home Economics.

There are three different sections of Home Economics; foods, clothing, and family living, that are offered at Central.

These classes enable the students to learn the techniques of cooking, sewing, and family living. Many opportunities are offered in these classes. Students are given the chance to adventure into different projects and on field trips.

The advanced students in foods attended Joslyn in order to observe their kitchen in which gourmet lunches are served. On December 1, the food students attended J. P. Lords school for the handicapped, for observation of handicapped children and related eating problems. Also on December 4, Kathleen Paulsen and Leslie Eaton, both Central seniors, again attended J. P. Lord School for the handicapped, but this time it was for a demonstration on microwave egg preparations.

Those students enrolled in the family living class were involved in many child related problems as well as the family itself. A day is set aside for students in which they are allowed to bring a young child to class. They are also required to go to some type of child-group related institute such as a day care center or a pediatric ward at a hospital in order to do a six hour observation.

The students are also required to write a report on a child-related problem such as child abuse, retardation, and certain diseases that affect young children.

! Understanding in the world of reading

by Patty Laney

Many people sit in study hall or at home reading and rereading notes and books in order to study for a test. Yet, many times, the information studied seems to escape one's mind within seconds. Mrs. Newell, one of Central's Reading teachers, explains, "It is kind of like daydreaming, you read the story but don't really remember or understand what you read." There are reasons, such as this one, that call for classes like the reading class at Central.

Many times the reading class is thought of as a class for slow students who just can't read. But it's not that way at all. The reading class is to improve comprehension and study skills. In order for a person to go on in life, mostly those who wish to go on with school, after they graduate, reading is a wise choice when picking classes. It will help one to improve reading, yet, it will make it much easier to understand things, sort things out, and most of all, take those tests that at one time would have been very difficult because you really didn't understand what was read.

Many students take advantage to read in the reading class.

Some students deep in work as others stop to think.

Business class means success for future.

The need for Business-minded people increases from day-to-day, which increases the demand for business classes within the school. There are a variety of business classes offered at Central. Students are offered accounting, marketing, typing, introduction to business, office practices, business law, business communications, shorthand, business computations.

Office-Coop involves jobs that are related to office work, such as typing and filing. Marketing-Coop is the same as Office-Coop, except for the type of work. The work done in Marketing-Coop is usually fast food type jobs.

There are also two business related classes, office-coop and marketing-coop, that are on-the-job classes. These two classes enable students to work at a job that is usually located by the teachers. They are allowed to get out of school early and receive credit just as if they were in a class.

Office-Coop involves jobs that are related to office work, such as typing and filing. Marketing-Coop is the same as Office-Coop, except for the type of work. The work done in Marketing-Coop is usually fast food type jobs.

New writing lab system possibly for good.

The writing lab means only one thing: IMPROVEMENT! In September, students take a Grammar Inventory test. This test determines what skills need to be worked on and remediated and which ones don't. Then those students who do wish to remediate these skills are given the chance to be giving up three weeks of a study hall and attending the writing lab in its place.

This three-week system is new this year, and even though it seems to be working quite well, some students are not satisfied. Jamie Thomas, Central Senior, feels that the new system is worse than the last one. She explains, "The work in the writing lab really does help, but it's simple and can be done within days. After you're through remediating, you have nothing else to do but sit for the remaining time."

Another opinion that was received was from Senior Sandy Stiles. Sandy feels, as Jamie does, that the system isn't so "Hot." "I feel the writing lab is an excellent opportunity for everyone, but the system needs to be worked on. I finished my work in four days," said Sandy, "which meant I still had two weeks left. That really didn't bother me because I just treated it like a study hall. But, while I was sitting in there doing nothing connected with the writing lab, someone else was waiting for their chance."

As these students expressed their dissatisfaction with the system, Mr. Dan Daly, head of the English Department, expressed his feeling of satisfaction for it. He says, "I think it is a good system. It is new, but, I think it's better than the students fighting with each other to get in as they did last year."

Mr. Daly feels that the program does need some "tuning up," but the main objective is to get students with the same number of skills and the same problems in at the same time. The method is good; there are just some things that need to be smoothed out.

Bookroom carries on

The school store and the bookroom are run by fourteen aides. These aides, who are Jeff Frenking, Toni Gerhard, John Green, Bart Lovgren, Tami Monahan, Greg Nunn, Ernest Olsen, Polly Springer, Paula Szynskie, Leah Thompson, Lee Uryasz, Jeff Wageman, Stefanie Pendleton, and Larry Anderson, help in aiding the entire school body by providing them with needed school supplies. They also help in filling out book orders and keeping the supplies stocked.

The store is opened from 7:30 to 11 each day. Mrs. Luella Schaaf, Central Treasurer, is in charge of the store and the aides working there. After 21 long hard years in maintaining the store, Mrs. Schaaf will be retiring after this year. She has decided that 20 years is long enough and it's time to move on.

Central is known not only for its high academic standards, but its excellence encompasses all fields of athletic competition as well.

Pride has always been shown in the sportsmanship and performance of the athletes of Central High. Whether they are state champions, which is the case in many events, or not, the athletes have earned the right to be proud through hours of training and dedication.

Intense practicing and conditioning tempers Eagles for grid-iron combat

by Lee Garver
Register Sports Editor

Like Rome, Central High's football team was not built in a day.

Every week the team goes through a precise practice schedule. This schedule, remains relatively the same throughout the season.

A lot depends on the score, but the locker room atmosphere following a game usually does not permit extensive thoughts of the next contest. Preparation for the following Friday's match actually begins early Saturday morning.

At 9:00 a.m. the team is presented with the offensive and defensive plans which are to be utilized in the next match. Tendencies of the opposition are studied. Head Coach William Reed said, "We show them exactly what they are to expect, in what we call "the recognition phase."

On Monday the players view the films. This is the longest practice day. While most days' activities end somewhere between 6:00 p.m. and 6:25 p.m., Monday's end somewhere between 7:00 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

After viewing the films until about 5:00 p.m., the players break into their practice formations. At this stage basic recognition is continued.

According to Reed, Tuesday is the most rugged day. Characterized by "live action," the players are dressed in full pads and are hitting each other hard.

Wednesdays are toned down a bit, but full contact is continued.

Thursday marks a return to basic recognition. It does differ from Saturday, though. Reed said, "This time instead of us doing the talking, the kids do the talking."

Practice days, although they do have striking differences, are generally run in the same manner.

A typical practice begins with special team's work (kicking, punting, and returns). Following this, the players, each of whom has an offensive and defensive position, break into what Reed calls "offensive skills." Both running and passing offenses are covered.

Defense, which follows offense, works in much the same way. Once organized into "defensive skills," the team once again breaks into four groups: defensive ends, linemen, defensive backs and linebackers. Following intensive work within these divisions the team forms "large group defense."

According to Reed offense is emphasized a bit more than defense because it changes weekly. According to Coach Reed, defense changes very little from game to game.

Game day signals a change of pace. That afternoon the players and coaches go someplace quiet and eat together. "We lounge around for a while and go over game strategies," said Reed. Following this is a period of quiet time when players may relax.

At around 5:00 p.m., as the excitement builds, the players start to tape up and begin getting ready for the game. At 7:30 p.m. when the team takes to the field, everyone involved in the long process is hoping the hard work will pay off.

Junior Varsity, Varsity one and same

Coaching policy opens doors for J. V. players

by Andrew MacCashland

The 1983 varsity Eagle football squad, through hard work and determination, finished its season with 6-3 record. The season was marked by losses to Prep, Gross, and Burke. Central lost these three games by a total of only six points, which cost the Eagles an undefeated year and a chance to go to the state playoffs.

Three varsity Eagles were particularly instrumental in helping the team attain its winning season. Ben Lehr, Keith Jones, and Sean Ridley were recognized for their outstanding performances this year when they were selected for the honorary All-Metro and All-State football squads.

Running back Keith Jones broke the modern Metro rushing record held by Victor Breakfield in nine games to Breakfield's eleven games. Keith was a key factor in Central's offense as many of the offensive plays were coordinated around his outstanding carrying ability.

Sean Ridley was one of the team leaders on the defensive squad. His strength and agility enabled him to contribute heavily to the total number of team tackles. Sean Ridley, defensive end, led the team in tackles.

Ben Lehr worked in conjunction with Keith. His size and strength allowed him to create enormous gaps in the opponent's defensive line allowing Keith to break through.

This year's varsity squad was unique from past-year's in that there were a comparatively large number of junior and sophomore players who played on the varsity squad. Coach William Reed said that all junior varsity football players were allowed to practice and compete with varsity players on an equal basis. Those that exhibited the ability on the practice-field were allowed to take part in varsity games.

Coach Gary Kubik expressed the hope that the practice of allowing juniors to participate as varsity players will help to familiarize younger players to the strenuous atmosphere of varsity level competition.

Because many junior varsity players participated with the varsity squad, they are pictured among varsity players in the varsity team picture.

Many incoming sophomores never have the opportunity to play on the J.V. team. The lack of participation in games, causes many girls to lose the incentive to work hard and come to practice.

This year, however, there was a Reserve team. The new squad meant that the sophomore girls who didn't play J.V. would have a chance to see some playing time.

Even though scores and records weren't kept, this season was important to both players and coaches.

"There is some potential on the reserve team," stated Coach Gambiana. With a year of experience behind them, the future for the J.V. team looks good.

The new squad had very positive reaction from the sophomore girls. Heather Carpenter stated, "The reserve team is good to have because it gives the future J.V. team a chance to get to know each other. One of Central's biggest problems in volleyball is the lack of teamwork and friendship between the players, on and off the court."

"It was a blast!" Stephanie Vatnsdal replied. "It was a good way to get to practice our volleyball skills, and the experience is good because we know what to expect next year."

Diana Jones serves the ball.

Girls' Golf

Girls' golf is a sport which goes almost unnoticed each year. "The lack of publicity is the cause for poor turnout." This year the team had only four members, the minimum for a team.

Leslie Bowen, a senior, led the team to its victory at Tara Hills with a score of 95. This performance as well as that of the other ladies earned them their record of 3-3, proving that the size did not reflect on their talent. The team also placed 8th at Metro, 3rd at Districts, and 9th at State.

Power lifting supplies competition

Out of season athletes find activity

by Andrew
MacCashland

What does an athlete do when the season for his sport is over? At Central there are a few who spend their time in the off season in the weight room. These athletes spend many long, arduous hours training with free-weights in order to improve their strength and keep themselves in good physical shape.

Weightlifting is a very tedious, mundane activity. Those who participate in weight training can also partake in powerlifting competitions. According to senior power lifter Frank Rizzuto, the powerlifting competitions make weight training seem a little easier. Frank said, "The thought of having to compete against someone makes me work harder."

Weight lifters have a routine which they follow week after week adding weight to each individual lifting activity as their strength increases. Before every workout the lifters go through stretching exercises which are crucial in preventing injuries or pulled and strained muscles. They then proceed to lift doing warm-up sets and repetition sets. Some days are spent seeing what the maximum weight each team member can lift is in each of the three areas which are the squat, dead lift, and bench press.

According to Coach Joe McMenamain, this year's lifting squad participated in relatively few meets in comparison with past years. According to Mr. McMenamain, the reason for this was to prevent athletes from forfeiting other winter sports to participate in power lifting. Mr. McMenamain had high hopes for his senior lifters at the State-Powerlifting meet at mid-point in the season.

Striders kick up dust; end season with 3-3 record

Despite inexperience, the Central High boys' cross country team finished the season boasting a 3-3 record. Although the team was young, Coach Geringer said, "The success was all due to the total dedication and hard work." With a strong third place finish in Metro and a first place finish in Districts, the team had an outstanding season.

Seniors Steve White, Rob Guardiola, and Lee Garver were all helpful assets to the team's success, especially in team leadership. Members of the team looked to the senior trio for inspiration and encouragement. Strong team unity and compatibility of team members served to keep morale at a constant high.

Although the team will lose three top runners to graduation, Coach Geringer is looking forward to another successful season. With the help of strong hard working underclassmen, next year's team will be a definite contender for the state title.

Girls' cross-country finishes strong

The girls' Cross-Country team had a good season after a slow start. As stated by Mr. James, girls' coach, "There wasn't a full team because of injuries."

Despite the difficulties facing the runners, their experience and dedication to hard work led to the teams' record of 1-1 with a 1st place finish at Metro, 1st place at Districts and a solid 2nd at State. Karina Lathrum, senior, placed first at Districts and 10th at State.

Although the team placed 1st at the A.L. Invitational, the turning point of the season was the Metro meet. After being crowned Metro Champions in 1982, the girls "rose to the occasion and regained their title."

Even though the team will have a loss of four seniors, Mr. James feels that with the return of four varsity runners in addition to possible recruitment of underclassmen, that there will be a basis for a strong team.

Master strokes top off season

The boys' tennis team enjoyed another winning season this year finishing second in the American Division behind co-champions Millard South and Creighton Prep. With underclassmen making up 80% of the team, Central should be looking for more winning seasons in the future.

Central, who finished a strong fourth in the Metro tournament, had a disappointing state tournament due to tough losses and injury to No. 1 singles player and Captain Pete Tracey.

Overall Coach John Waterman felt that the team showed good spirit and had a successful duel and metro records. "It was frustrating to end the season on a sour note. In retrospect it was an outstanding year," said Coach Waterman.

Many new school records were set this year. Among these were seniors Julie Sutton's performance in the 500 Free, Jodi Baker in the 100 Breast stroke, and sophomore Shelley Sitzman in the 200 I.M.

"It was a winning season and I saw lots of improvement," Coach Gebhard commented on the team's record of 5-3, highlighted by the 1st place win at C.B. Invite.

The best way to describe this year's swim team would be young and inexperienced. The boys finished the season with a record of 3 wins and 5 losses. Contrary to what the record indicates, the team was a strong one.

Coach Mark Allner indicated that the majority of swimmers were sophomores. "It was really a year for growth," stated Mr. Allner. Mr. Allner stressed the fact that although the team had a losing record, each individual consistently brought his lap times down. Mr. Allner expects to receive an influx of swimmers next year from the junior highs. With the incoming sophomores, next year's team will attain the badly needed depth which was lacking this year. Overall Mr. Allner said he was "pleased with the performance" of his team.

Eagles rated top 10

by Peter Tracey

The varsity boys' basketball team got off to a 12-5 start this season, with a third place finish in the Metro Holiday Tournament and an upset over the #1 rated Millard South.

The team, which was rated in the top ten all season, agrees that the leadership provided by seniors Robert Johnson, Herbert

Johnson, and Glenn Mathews was crucial in the success of the season.

The varsity Eagles were also led by one of the state's most powerful front lines consisting of three juniors Shawn Starks, Bertrand Turnbo, and David Moody.

David Moody 6' 6" center was instrumental in providing Central with the threat of an ever present big-man on both offense and defense. Moody led the Metro in shooting percentage most of the year and was always present as one of the top rebounders in the Metro conference. Moody averaged close to 17 points a game throughout the season and always was in position to turn a game around with one of his crowd motivating slam dunks.

Although the big-men were instrumental in providing a strong inside game, senior guard Glenn Mathews led the team with his outstanding playmaking ability.

Mathew's confidence guides team in pressure situations

Throughout the season in a pressure situation coach James Martin would look to his senior guard to guide the team. In the upset victory at Millard South, Mathews swished a twenty-two foot jumper to seal the Eagles one point victory. Glenn's confidence was apparent when his statistics shot up in all categories including a 16 point scoring average.

Coach Martin said that he felt the team was doing exceptionally well and hoped that the team would do well in its district which includes Fremont, Scottsbluff, South Sioux City, and Norfolk, and eventually hoped to play in the State Basketball Championships.

J.V., reserves future hopefuls

The 1984 J. V. cagers finished with a satisfying 8-8 record. With a few breaks in some very close games the team could very easily have ended up with one of the best records in the metro area.

The team was led by two sophomores 6'1" center Mike Beasley and by 6'3" forward Mike Salerno. Both players averaged over ten points a contest, and although they are only sophomores, the rest of the team members looked to them for guidance.

Both Beasley and Salerno were found to work double time as they were also a part of the varsity basketball team. At the end of each J.V. contest, both players would go to the locker room and prepare for another 24 minutes of basketball.

"Playing on the J.V. and Varsity teams will help me a lot, and I hope the experience will help me earn a strong role in contributing to next year's Varsity squad," Salerno said.

The 1983-84 sophomore team had a 7-4 record. All players contributed to the winning season.

J.V. Girls' Basketball 'A year for learning'

Girls' Junior Varsity Basketball is a year for underclassmen to learn the ropes of high school basketball.

"It's mainly a year for learning," commented Coach Brown. The players were taught the fundamentals of basketball. Although they learned the basics, the girls also learned how to participate as a team member and the importance of team work.

Despite the loss of players for various reasons, the team was able to end the season with a balance of wins and losses. The balance of wins and losses was aided by the participation of Juniors Cindy Munsell, Sandra Huckleby, Sonya Clark, and Leonetta Threats. The team finished the season with a 7-7 record.

"The ultimate goal of the Junior Varsity program is to prepare the underclassmen for playing on the Varsity squad as Juniors and Seniors.

Girls' basketball has ingredients for success

The girls' Varsity Basketball team began the season as the reigning State Champions with an undefeated record. Could the girls do it again?

With the return of many varsity players, the Lady Eagles once again proved to be unbeatable. The Varsity Basketball team finished the season with a record of 20-0.

When asked about the key to the girls' success, Mr. Semrad, coach, replied, "The team is basically the same as last year, which was made up of hard working, talented players."

Teamwork, according to Mr. Semrad, was a major factor in the girls' success this year as well as their willingness to work.

"The chemistry was good; they've had all the right ingredients to be successful.

Mr. Semrad feels that with the loss of three key seniors, Sarah Stohs, Maurtice Ivy, and Sharon Deal, that it won't be easy to replace them.

Maurtice Ivy, one of the State's top basketball players, is a young multi-talented lady. Her athletic abilities enable her to excel in many different activities.

As a freshman, Maurtice played basketball at Central. The 1983-84 season marked her fourth year as a starting player on Central's team.

As a freshman she averaged 16.7 points per game. She averaged 19.8 points per game her Sophomore year, and 21.1 points per game her junior year. Maurtice averaged 26 points per game as Senior and was named all Metro & State top scorer. Maurtice also broke the state record for career points.

Victories, defeats taken in stride

by Andrew
MacCashland

"It's tough to come back after you've been thrown and pinned." Wrestling coach Gary Kubik cited this as one of the many aspects of wrestling which makes it such a demanding and a self-gratifying sport. Mr. Kubik explained that at the outset of each wrestling season he sees between 30 to 40 wrestlers come out for the team, but by season's end only about half at best remain.

Mr. Kubik went on to say that wrestling is a sport where there are no superstars, and no one individual who will be there to score the points. Of those that quit each year, Mr. Kubik said that some "go out for the team not knowing what to expect and simply don't care for the sport. Others can't accept their defeats and would rather quit the team than try to improve their skills. You have to respect those guys that come out for the sport and see it (the season) through," stated Kubik.

According to Kubik the wrestlers put in long hours off the mat as well as on it. Aside from practicing and perfecting holds, wrestlers must run to increase their stamina and train with weights to increase strength. Kubik said that when there is more than one wrestler available for a weight category they must have a wrestle-off, the winner being the one to compete in the meet. Wrestle-offs often take place a few days before every meet.

This season began with forty-eight would-be-wrestlers and ended with twenty-one, which is a good retention average according to Kubik. The team this year was a young one comprised of mostly sophomores and juniors with only six senior lettermen. Kubik said the team had a strong start, and he was hopeful that many of his older and stronger wrestlers would make it to the state finals.

Some of those wrestlers who received medals this year in meet competition were brothers Gabe and Frank Albanese, Wendall Duncan, and Ron DiBiase.

momentum for the team.

With a 2-4 record in dual meets most would look at the season as a disappointing one. However, senior Mike Pankow said, "A tough dual meet schedule and inexperience were the cause of our disappointing but very close losses." Pankow also pointed out that the team improved tremendously over the course of the season. The majority of this year's team was comprised of sophomores and juniors according to coach Kent Friesen.

"We performed much better in the invites due to the exciting atmosphere and strong competition." When asked about next season, Pankow said, "With hard work and dedication the team can look forward to massive success next season."

In summing up the season Pankow said, "We started out the season as the pits of the world but showed our powerhouse strength in the end."

The Varsity Cheerleaders

Leaders in Spirit

It's taken two years, but these girls have made it. They're Varsity cheerleaders.

One major task for the Varsity squad was planning Homecoming. This year's dance was "excellent," according to the captain, Beretta Smith. "I was disappointed in the lack of spirit shown during Spirit Week, and the lack of respect for the decorations."

The squad came to early morning practices. "I think the practice paid off," said senior Jeramiah Patterson.

Eaglettes cheer for victories!!

By Catherine Clarke

When people think of the Eaglettes, they might think of the performers who entertained at games. This is what they do but that isn't all that they do.

The Eaglettes not only entertained at home basketball and football games they "gave a great deal of support" to cheerleaders throughout the year. The Eaglettes worked with the Varsity cheerleaders in the planning of Homecoming.

By cheering along with the cheerleaders, they helped "promote spirit".

Activities or '3 R's'?

Recently, some critics of education have said that schools should cut out activities and return to the "3 R's" (Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic). But, others disagree and say that activities add to one's school life and personality. Are school activities an enhancement or a hindrance to one's school life?

Robert Edwards, sophomore and band member, said that being in the band enhances his school life because it stresses group involvement and improves his musical skills. He considered being in the band a hindrance because, "I have to wake up at 6:00 in the morning in order to be at school by 7:00 for practice."

Junior John Weston, said that JROTC adds to school because it helps to develop his leadership skills.

Senior, Margy Klosner, is a member of A Cappella and CHS Singers. She said, "The activities I'm involved in help me to sharpen my musical skills." As for deterring her from her school work, Margy said, "It is my choice, I would rather be a well rounded person." Roxanne Gryder is a photographer for both the newspaper and yearbook staffs. She likes being involved because, "I'm doing what I like to do." Basically, most people believe that their school activities add to school rather than to detract from the learning aspect of it.

Sheila O'Hara works diligently on her layout for the newspaper.

Why the Register?

In the spring of their junior year, students apply for staff positions on the newspaper and yearbook staffs. Why do students like to be a member of the newspaper staff and what do they enjoy about working on the staff?

Senior, Erika Herzog, is the associate editor of the Central High Register and said that she wanted to be on the staff because, "I like layout and design and I love to write. I also think it will help get me into college."

Senior, Tracy Bernstein,

Editor-in-Chief of the Register, said that she applied for the position of editor because I enjoyed working on the 1983 staff as a junior assistant. "I also may want to major in journalism in college and I thought this was a good way to discover if I enjoy working on a newspaper."

The Central High School Register is issued twelve times a year. The object of the Register is to inform Central High students of issues and events in and out of school that are relevant to them.

Leslie Bowen, Natasha Brown, and Glenn Matthews eye a previous issue of the Register.

It's all in the job.

"I think the O-book is kind of neat and its fun to help," said Pete Tracey, Assistant Sports Editor. Pete's comments probably reflect the opinion of a majority of the 1984 O-Book staff.

Working on the O-Book staff includes designing layouts, writing copy, and meeting a series of deadlines. Catherine Clarke, underclass editor, said, "I wanted to work on the yearbook staff because I was interested in journalism."

Andrew MacCashland, Boys' Sports Editor, said he wanted to be able to see the finished product and be made a part of the student body.

Dimension -

Not just a book of poems

"Dimension" is the literary publication of Central High. According to Mr. T. M. Gaherty, advisor, "Dimension" is produced by the two creative writing classes.

Mr. Gaherty said that each class is developed into a staff with an editor, selection committee, layout committee, and a production and sales committee.

Most of the published work is done by the creative writing classes, but outside work is accepted. All work must go before the selection committee. "I really work hard to try and get my work published because it gives me a chance to share it with others," said Mike Hogan, Senior.

"Dimension" was started in 1968 and was originally published as part of the Register.

The 1984 National Honor Society consists of seventy-nine members. Dr. G. E. Moller, Central High principal said, "The National Honor Society is an honor roll of students who have been selected by a fifteen-member faculty committee on the basis of academic eligibility."

Students must have a 3.0 grade point average or better. The candidates are judged on academic performance, leadership, school and community service, and character.

The National Honor Society brunch, sponsored by InterNorth, was held at the Red Lion Inn on March 18, 1984, for honorees and their families. Each student received a National Honor Society pin and certificate.

Student Council

Closer ties to Administration

The Central High Student Council is composed of 27 members. To be a member one must have a petition signed by fifty classmates, the petition must be authorized by a counselor, and then nine are elected from each class.

According to Mrs. Vicki Anderson, Student Council Sponsor, the purposes of the Student Council are to aid in special projects for school service, to help complete community service projects (canned food drive, Honey Sunday), to plan Spring Prom, to promote school spirit, and to act as a liason between students and the administration.

"This year we meet with administrators every three weeks in hopes of developing closer ties with the administration," said Janet Kent, Student Council President.

What are the main goals of this year's Student Council? "We want to increase the awareness of the students and develop closer ties between the administration and the student body," stated Janet Kent.

Musical background expanded

by Raschelle Serghini

As one wanders past room 145, one can experience the results of hours of hard work. Senior Dave Albrecht said, "We are lucky to have such a highly respected group." Dave was referring to Central's A Cappella choir.

In order to be a member of A Cappella the interested student must audition with the choir director, Mr. Robert McMeen. Junior Brooke Rose said that the audition involved singing and sight reading.

Mr. McMeen said that he chose most of the new members from Jr. Choir but that Jr. Choir was not a prerequisite. This year marked the second year that sophomores were allowed to audition for a place in A Cappella.

Junior Carrie Roberts was in A Cappella as a sophomore and she said, "It was a great honor for me to be selected as a sophomore." Mr. McMeen said that along with an audition the sophomores had to have teacher's recommendations. Sophomore Travis Feezel described A Cappella as "so organized compared to my junior high choir. You've just really got to be on the ball in here."

The idea of sophomores in A Cappella was still relatively new this year. Senior Dave Albrecht explained, "I think we needed sophomores because there really weren't enough upperclass males who showed interest in vocal music. It's also good because it gives them a chance to develop their voices."

A Cappella is organized just as many other activities. The organizational council is known as Choir Council. The council members were Sheila O'Hara, President; Margy Klosner, Vice President; Amy Thomas, Secretary; Bruce Lockwood, Treasurer; Tracy Bernstein, Senior Representative; Mark Buckner; Junior Representative, and Sophomore Representative

Wendy Novicoff.

According to President Sheila O'Hara, "The council is responsible for the organizational side to A Cappella. We were in charge of events like the picnic and fundraisers."

Most members agreed that A Cappella was more than just a singing class. "A Cappella taught me more self-discipline and it helped to broaden my musical background," said Junior, Steve Berman.

A Cappella members got their chance to "show-off" during Roadshow. Dave Albrecht said that although Roadshow "wasn't our biggest performance it was certainly the most fun."

This year A Cappella performed an arrangement from the Broadway musical "Cats" for Roadshow. "I enjoyed Roadshow because the music was new, upbeat, and exciting," said Senior Margy Klosner. Cory Davis summed up by saying that "A Cappella was an experience I'll never forget!"

Singers teach, learn, and enjoy

by Diane Vazzano

One who has attended any of Central's vocal music concerts this year, may have been surprised by the talent of the CHS Singers.

This group of twenty Central students, selected from A Cappella Choir, has gained city-wide acclaim for its performances.

Tryouts for Singers were held in the spring. To try out, the students sang first in octets, then quartets before the final choice was made.

This year's selection proved to be a younger group than in recent years. In addition to Seniors Sheila O'Hara, Ann Ostermiller, Anne Welty, Lessa Sundt, Margy Klosner, Matt McGuire, Karina Lathrum, Amy Thomas, Tracy Bernstein, Bruce Lockwood, Cheryl Schlagenhauft, Juniors are Chris Kennebeck, Tim Gaherty, Jill Anderson, Mark Buckner, Mike Rheiner, Kerry Roberts, and Tracey Sampson. There are also two Sophomores, Wendy Novicoff and Pete Holmes, in this year's Singers.

Aside from school concerts, CHS Singers can be found singing for anyone from a group of senior citizens to Nebraska Supreme Court Justices. Many of the requests CHS Singers received this year stemmed from their performance at a meeting of Nebraska educators held at the beginning of the school year in Central's courtyard.

Depending on who the engagement is with, vocal music director Mr. Robert McMeen, may ask for gratuities. This money is either used for new music or uniforms.

According to Mr. McMeen, the yearly plan for CHS Singers is divided into 3 programs. First semester they work with chamber music. For the holiday season, a sort of "Christmas package" of traditional and contemporary music is studied. During second semester, they concentrate with the music styles of swing or jazz.

CHS Singers is a learning experience for its members and Mr. McMeen. Senior Margy Klosner and junior Mike Rheiner both feel they have improved their vocal skills. Junior Mark Buckner adds that he has become more interested in music.

Tying all of this together is a bond of mutual respect and admiration between CHS Singers and Mr. McMeen. Mr. McMeen feels that both Singers and A Cappella are challenges to him. These allow him to push his abilities and apply techniques he has learned. The Singers describe Mr. McMeen as a man who "is great with kids," "very patient," and who "really knows his stuff."

"Junior Choir is a select group of sophomores and juniors who must audition to enter," said Mr. Robert McMeen, vocal music director.

According to Jill Stommes, sophomore, "Junior Choir is a stepping stone for A Cappella." Mr. McMeen said that Junior Choir is the main source of future A Cappella members.

Senior, Calvin Minor, who is a member of A Cappella and a former member of Junior Choir said, "It's a class where you learn about music so that you can be prepared to sight read in A Cappella.

Mr. McMeen said that the Junior Choir performs in the Winter Choral Concert, the All-City Music Festival, and the Spring Musicale.

When asked what she had to say about Junior Choir, Jill Stommes replied, "I've learned a lot about my voice and feel it has improved."

Vicki Bowles, sophomore, summed it all up when she said, "It's fun!"

All-State Musicians: A Select Group

The title "All-State Musicians" applies to a select group of musicians who must audition for the title.

According to Mr Warren Ferrel, instrumental music teacher, "To become an All-Stater in the string category, you must be a sophomore, junior, or a senior. In the wind and percussion categories, only juniors and seniors may qualify."

Both vocal and instrumental musicians interested in trying out for the position donate many hours of their own time to practice. Vocal musicians learn music in morning sessions with Mr. Bob McMeen, vocal music instructor, before school.

Marching Band: What does it take?

What does it take to be a member of the Central High marching band? According to Mr. Warren Ferrel, band director, band members go through two weeks of "band camp" which involves four to five hours of practice every day. Once school starts, band members practice at 7:00 in the morning and after school four to five days a week. Also, there is a commitment of time on weekends to play at games.

The Central High Marching band played in the OPS Festival, the Lincoln band clinic, at Burke High School, the River-City Round-up parade, and they achieved a superior rating at the Wisner-Pilger competition.

Does all the practice and performance time hurt band members' grades? "A band composed of high-achievers and low grades is usually not a problem," said Mr. Ferrel. "If a problem exists, we go to the student's teachers and work something out."

Many students enjoy being in the band because they like to perform at games and it gives them a sense of involvement. "It's worth all of the hard work, it really is!" said Jane Kurtz, junior.

Central's Stage Band and Pep Band both originate from Band, yet they differ in their purposes.

All band members are also members of Pep Band. There is a requirement set for how many games each member needs to play at. This group plays at home games, pep rallies, and anywhere else where there is spirit needed. Mr. Ferrel considers the purpose of Pep Band is "just to have a lot of fun." Stage Band is a select group, hand picked from Band. It is primarily composed of upperclassmen. Stage Band played at several functions this year, including private parties, parks, businesses, or for senior citizens. Band director Warren Ferrel described the purpose of this group as "strictly for performance only."

'Orchestra best in 5 years.'

by Diane Vazzano

Central's Orchestra and Pit Orchestra lent their talents to many in and out of school gatherings this year.

This year's group performed at the school musicals, concerts, and Road Show to name a few. They also spent time with all-city and districts.

Mr. Warren Ferrel, the group's director, explained that first semester is spent "building on the old and new players' abilities while second semester many individual students are busy with competitions or Youth Orchestra, these offering them more of a challenge.

Pit Orchestra is a group hand-picked from Orchestra to play at school musicals. The size of Pit Orchestra is limited because of the small size of Central's Pit.

A small string ensemble is also pulled from the orchestra frequently to play for private businesses and clubs.

Mr. Ferrel feels that the "building" of this year's group has been successful in producing fine performances. He adds, "This is the best orchestra I've seen in the five years I've been here."

Members also busy with competitions or Youth Orchestra.

Snow delayed show; 'Carousel' big success

'Carousel' involves Billy Bigelow, sophomore Pete Holmes, a charming ne'er-do-well who is killed while trying to steal money to provide for his wife, Julie, senior Lessa Sundt, and his unborn child. Billy is allowed to revisit Earth when his daughter is fifteen.

In contrast, Carrie, junior Jill Anderson, a friend of Julie's, is married to Enoch Snow, junior Ray Johnson, who has provided her with wealth and status.

In an effort to do something good for his family, Billy, makes his love for his wife and daughter felt so strongly that an entire gathering is transposed. As the curtain drops, everyone knows that Billy was able to give a priceless gift to his family.

Lessa Sundt, senior and the character of Julie Jordan, said, "At first, I didn't really like the part, but once you get into the character you can't help but see the redeeming qualities."

Michelle Seizys, sophomore and chorus member, felt that the part she had was perfect because she is involved in other activities.

Lessa Sundt also said, "A musical is a difficult thing to do and I think that we pulled it off very well."

"Spanning the Generations," the theme for the 1984 production of Road Show. 1984 marked the 70th year of Road Show. Mr. Warren Ferrel, instrumental music instructor, said he felt that this year's Road Show was "... real fine, I think we put on a strong show."

Matthew Gurciullo, Sophomore, played the part of Myron. Myron served as a scene change act and was a vital part of the show. One orchestra member, senior Natasha Brown, said, "I think Myron made the audience react and become more alive and responsive to the other acts."

Other acts included gospel singers, break dancers, and performances by all of the vocal and instrumental groups.

Mr. Ferrel said that the instrumental groups had been practicing for at least a month and a half prior to Road Show.

"Overall I feel that the show went exceptionally well. However, I feel that the larger groups had a more difficult time getting off stage," said Natasha Brown.

Senior, Ann Ostermiller, said, "I think it was a good mixture of drama and music."

Stage Crew: 'A Family Affair.'

Have you ever thought of who is behind the productions you see on the CHS stage? Well, it's the stage crew, under the leadership of Mr. Larry Hausman, art teacher.

According to Mr. Hausman, the members of the stage crew are responsible for making the sets for the fall musical, Road Show, and the spring play. They work with Mr. Bob McMeen, vocal music teacher, and Mr. Warren Ferrel, instrumental music teacher, to plan the curtain timing and the lighting.

Mr. Hausman considers stage crew "an integral part of the whole communication arts program at Central."

Mark Rice, senior and stage crew member, said that stage crew has become a major part of his school day. "I've been active with stage crew for two years. If I had discovered stage crew earlier, I would have been a member for three years." Both Mr. Hausman and Mark agree that the stage crew group is "more like a family than anything else."

JROTC thrives on tradition.

Since 1893, Central's JROTC battalion has been helping interested students learn techniques of leadership, basic army training, and marksmanship.

There is a JROTC class held almost every period for sophomores, juniors, or seniors. By senior year, a JROTC member is able to have up to four years of experience.

Every member of Central's JROTC classes plus freshman JROTC students at Norris Junior High, make up Central High's battalion.

The same ranks as the army are used with Senior Army Instructor Major Richard Yost, First Sergeant Middleton, and Battalion Commandore Michael Gearhart at the top.

Once every two years, the battalion meets for the Biennial Federal Inspection, when they are inspected by members of the army. There is a general inspection of each individual cadet plus an inspection of the battalion's clothing issue and administrative records.

Central's JROTC battalion is the oldest in a twenty state region. Since its formation, it has served as courtesy patrol and colorguard for various school events. For the past fifty-nine years it has been colorguard at Ak-Sar-Ben's Coronation Ball.

Possibly due to the location of JROTC classes (held on the 'O' floor) many students are unaware of their accomplishments.

However, one look at Central's JROTC trophy cases, shows one the high caliber of this battalion with a large number of awards dating back to 1925.

Clubs abound

Clubs at Central vary from one extreme to another. These clubs cover Foreign Languages and Sciences to Athletics. Most people don't realize that members often spend more than just after school time with the clubs. They spend time at summer camps, workshops and competitions during weekends, all for just their interests. With all the involvement, club members find that they have many memories of high school, none of them disappointing.

JCL/Latin Club celebrates

JCL offers much to Central High students

Central's chapter of the Junior Classical League is one of the oldest clubs in the state of Nebraska. According to Miss Rita Ryan, club sponsor, Central's JCL celebrated its 80th birthday this April.

Krissy Smith, a member of JCL this year, is one of the three Centralites that hold both a chapter and a state office. Linda Rock and Larry Anderson being the other two members holding offices at both levels. Krissy Smith said, "I wanted to devote my time to something worthwhile."

Devotion of time is almost a requirement of JCL. Events run from the common election of officers, to the not so common Chariothon between the area schools. City contests give members the chance to show their knowledge of Latin, resulting in competition for state, local, and national trophies. There are festivals throughout the year also. Saturnalia, the festival of December, goes back to Roman times, when Masters and slaves switched places for a day, with the festival lasting twelve days.

Banquets are a common sight in JCL. There are: the All-City Banquet, held at different high schools every year, the International banquet between foreign language clubs at Central, and the annual banquet/slave auction at the state convention, held in April.

Exams are plentiful in the spring. Along with the National Latin Exam in May, Centralites participate in exams honoring past Latin teachers, Bessie Rathbun and Susan Paxon. These exams provide JCL members with a chance to win prizes and scholarships.

JCL is a lot of fun too. According to Larry Anderson, "I joined JCL so I'd have more time to hassle Miss Ryan." Other members agreed with Larry.

Spanish Club participates: Activities rate high on agenda

The Central High Spanish club is extremely active during the school year. According to Mrs. Vickie Anderson, club sponsor, "There is at least one activity a month for everyone to do." This can include a skating party, swim party, picnics, along with the inter club activities such as bowling or volleyball.

During the year, Spanish club has to put up with the competition of the other foreign language clubs as to who is the best. "Sure we're the best," said Laura Murray, Central sophomore.

Also, some Spanish club members are looking forward to a trip to Spain this summer, one way or another.

Scholarship, convention

French Club rounds up the year with firsts

by Julie Sutton

"French Club is a way to gain a different aspect of French culture that's not found in a classroom." With this statement, Anna Kurtz tells why Central's French Club has grown in the recent years.

Through the year, French Club at Central kept busy. With candy and bake sales, club members raised money for a spring picnic, the traditional progressive dinner at Christmas, and a $100 scholarship given to an outstanding French student.

According to Mrs. Daryl

Bayer, club sponsor, a city-wide convention of French students took place for the first time this year. This city convention was planned by Central's chapter and took place in March.

Along with the convention, French club sponsored the annual soccer tournament at Central and competed in the volleyball and bowling tournaments.

Last fall, French Club earned its mark of distinction by winning both first and second places in the Homecoming Parade.

Brenda Gray says that she'll "always remember being in French Club. It's a lot of fun at Central, and if I can, I want to continue in college."

French Club members have the chance to visit France in the summers through NACEL, North Atlantic Cultural Exchange League.

Nani Soares talks about her three years in French club. "It's always been a fun and educational experience." This seems to reflect most members' attitude towards Central's very own French Club.

German Club expands horizon

Caroling, skiing and trade fair were Central's German Club, sponsored by Ms. Gretchen Schutte, was very versed in their activities. The members, according to senior Cheryl Schlagenhauff, worked well together. "I think we've improved a lot over the year. We're a work-oriented group."

Among the activities this year were caroling at the Lutheran Nursing Home, skiing at Trail Ridge Ski Lodge, and, new this year, a trade fair.

The trade fair involved the club members selling ice cream makers to the German city of Wiesbaden.

Anthropology club digs around.

Central's Anthropology club was active this year in going to various functions. The Anthropology club members traveled around the state of Nebraska, from the museum of Lincoln to the Oregon Trail at Logan Valley. Club members also attended a lecture in Fremont by Palentologist Dr. Michael Voorhies. Club members come from Mr. Gary Kubik's eighth and ninth period classes, where they learn how to distinguish pieces of flint from ordinary rocks.

DECA works towards future employment

The Distributive Education Clubs of America at Central High has had a busy year. In the beginning of November, nine DECA members attended the DECA Central Region Conference in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The officers attended the fall Officers Training Workshop on September 28.

The marketing program at Central has also found employment for Centralites at surrounding businesses such as McDonalds and Runza Hut.

Debaters state the facts!

Criminal Justice was the topic for this year's high school debate teams. Major competitions were held during the weekends from September through March, covering a three-state region of South Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa.

Debaters attended intensive workshops to learn various speech tactics.

Meeting tenth period everyday, debaters did research, and practiced argumentation over current issues under the eye of Mrs. Ellen Prichard.

Math club sums up a good year

The Math and Science club has many plans for this year, culminating in a five-day trip to Tulane University in New Orleans this upcoming August. The trip will include a convention, with math and computer contests during this time.

Math club members had the chance to practice for New Orleans during the year, in the form of contests sponsored by various universities, such as Creighton University, or University of Nebraska at Lincoln. Club members also traveled to Northwest Missouri State.

Central's Math/Computer club also sponsors a Jr. High math contest during the school year, under the watchful eyes of Mr. John Waterman, club sponsor.

Chess club has a winning year

As the only club that can say "we're undefeated in major competitions," Central's Chess Club has had an outstanding year. Club members meet once a week to practice and to compete against other schools, according to Mr. David Martin, club sponsor.

Chess Club at Central is the smallest club, but talent makes up for size. Chess Club has only lost one match this year, to South High. According to Arthur Kosowsky, Junior, this year's chess team has an "excellent chance to win at State this year"

Also this year, a freshman from Lewis & Clark, Rob Holuturff, competed with Central. Mr. Martin commented that he is looking forward to next year's team, as most will be returning as seniors.

English club reviews literature

Emerging new on the scene this year was the Central English Club. Sponsored by Mr. David Martin, the English Club met once a week to discuss the different forms of literature.

Topics of discussion ranged from current movies to both current and classic books. Members of the English Club also exchanged views on controversial matters such as the made for TV movies "The Day After" and "Something About Amelia."

Along with the discussions, the English Club took field trips to Joslyn Art Museum, Red Cloud, Nebraska, and members were raising funds for a trip to the New England states this summer.

Club member Jackie Hynek stated, "It's a chance for people interested in enriching their vocabulary and cultural experiences to get together."

All of the extra work is worth it, according to Jackie. Some English teachers offer extra credit for membership in the English Club.

Acting not all

With 1984 drawing to a close, Drama Club can tack an eventful year away.

In the beginning, secret initiations brought new members into the world of action. A hayrack ride soon followed, complete with a bonfire to roast hotdogs by.

Monthly meetings took place at Central where upcoming events were discussed, and improvisations occurred.

During the Christmas season, members were caught up in secret santas which resulted in a get-together where the santas were revealed.

Drama members also went to Kansas City in the spring, by means of fund raising such as candy sales.

Guest speakers came to discuss various techniques and pointed out ways of improvement to members.

Club members take note of dramatic instruction.

Soccer club experiences growth

Calling Dodge Park home field, the Central Soccer Club got off to a good start in March.

Their first major tournament of play was during the week of March 11-16 at Creighton University. After this tournament, both the girls' team and the boys' team averaged two games a week, girls on Mondays and Thursdays, and boys on Tuesdays and Fridays.

According to Mrs. Gambaiana, Club sponsor, soccer is not a sanctioned sport.

The Soccer club has officers for both the guy's and girl's teams. Presidents are Mary Zinn and Brian Hildreth; Vice Presidents are Erika Herzog and John Fogarty; Secretary is Janet Kent; and Treasurer is Becky Welk.

Here's to us - Good People are scarce

A TOAST TO THE GOOD LIFE:

Here's to a milk-splattered courtyard, Joe's high school politics, Lorraine's MTV sticker, Cathy's Register car, a hearty Perkins' meal, Gwen's and Susan's twin shoes, summer in snow-covered Central Park Mall and frostbitten toes, Bill's Eddie Murphy tape, the lunch bunch, Dave's enactment of a purse rack, Sheila's all-night Flashdance party, Bishops red-carpet service, Sarah's boxer shorts, smiles from the Rea and Van duo, Erika's Jimmy Jeep, Tracy's driveway driving, and Bryan's vans. But most of all, here's to us — good people are scarce.

I can't stay out very late, have to go to court tomorrow. A very memorable Memorial Day. First to Tom's then to Catherine's then to Tom's then to Catherine's then to Hinky Dinky etc. Hi, I'm Teresa Svoboda. Then the summer began. Stand Back! Gotta get the gamma rays who cares if it's only 50° out. Oh no it's the 4th of July. No car. Let's take the beast to Sam's. Park as far away as possible. You're yellow polo gone, cutlass cruise, hey Knothead, Susie we need to take a shower, July 5th, Terri's on the phone! Merit Beach here we come! What county is this officer Godfrey? My dad's cabin my dad's at his cabin, the faithful cooler. Let's lunch at Maxine's. Whaley bank time, swim in sweat pants at Stock's, Your 17th birthday, party, party, party, the ROMANTICS. Hey Boda - it's close to midnite. Did you know Maui is an island in Hawaii? Love Marly

Colophon

The 1984 Central High O-Book is the 78th edition of the book. Again this year the O-Book was published at Walsworth Publishing Company in Marceline, Missouri. The company sales representative was Mike Diffenderfer.

This year the typeface throughout the book was Bookman. Captions were done in 8 pt. and all copy was done in 10 pt. Headlines varied according to the section editor's taste.

Also new this year was the switch to a four column layout plan. This switch gave the book an updated look.

Many themes were discussed by the staff before the "Time" theme was decided upon. Time was expressed through calendars rather than the traditional clock.

The months of the school year were used to cover the book. For the section pages the month was replaced with the title of the section to unify the book.

The O-Book staff would like to extend a special thanks to the following people for their personal contributions to the yearbook.

Sabrina Curto, pictures; Mr. Dan Daly, Mrs. Jo Derry, Mrs. Martha Rasp, Mrs. Lu Schaaf, and the Central High Faculty, sales; Bob Allen, table of contents design; Mike Diffenderfer and Christine Norris for all their help.
