From the outside, Central's architecture portrays a look of tradition. Tradition envelops the student body not only through the architecture alone, but also in the expectations and principles instigated. Central's Tradition of Excellence has been the standard every student measures himself to, as if it were Etched in Stone.

Even though the building and principles it stands for may be traditional, the students of Central stand apart as individuals. Each class consists of a variety of people. Students differ in their personalities, dress, musical preferences, interests and talents. With these differences, all students contribute to the diversity of Central, leaving their mark.

Looking through the 1992 O-Book, you can see the evidence of the marks made by the things people say, recorded in stories and the things people do captured in film.

Summertime is the exciting vacation everyone lives for during the school year. The students and staff alike thrive for each vacation, but summerbreak is the most rewarding of all of them. So what do students do over this vacation? Anything and everything that comes to mind.

Peggy Neutzner (12) played sandlot volleyball at Goddard's this summer with her friends. "We played just for recreation and fun more than the competition," Peggy said. Besides recreational activities, Peggy worked at the Gallop Poll and went on a "road trip" with her friends.

Going on trips is a popular activity to do during the summer break. Heather Brown (9) spent half of her summer in North Carolina on the beach with her family.

Mario Henderson (11) said he "went out of town to St. Louis with friends and family." He also played baseball and hung out with friends. One of the more exciting things he recalled doing with his friends was "shooting off bottle rockets at each other on the Fourth."

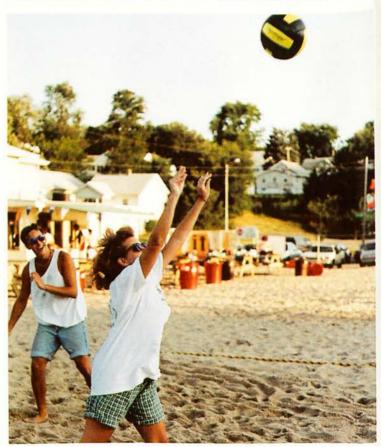

Recreation, travelling, and work are just a few of the activities students do during their summer break. The break everyone looks forward to.

Different levels of

Organization

By Heather Schacht

The typical scenario of an organized student is color-coded books and folders, an assignment notebook, and a neat locker with only the necessities needed for school. This person is the one you ask to find out when an assignment is due, and he can always find his assignment, never turning them in late.

It is great if a person is organized to this extent, but not everyone's organization is on this level. Others on different levels do have assignment notebooks: however, they still do not get their assignments in on

The different levels of organization are evident at Central as you pass throughout the halls. One person's locker has perfectly stacked books, while another can not open his locker without something falling on top of him.

Organization depends on the individual. However, some form of organization is necessary to get through high school as a graduating senior. You decide what level you're on in organizing.

Seniors Brian Campbell and Peter Thorson test out the new NeXT computer. Computers are definitely one source of organization as long as you are smarter than the average computer. (Photo: Kristen Steenberg)

The art of Vn ogan oton

by Jennifer Watzke

For everyone out there who is not organized, this story is for you. Not everyone chooses to have the next ten years of their life scheduled out this far in advance. Not everyone wishes to have their closets color coordinated. Organization may be the answer for some people, but for others, just the opposite is true.

Unorganization can be a lot of things varying from being late to an appointment to not being able to see the floor in your bedroom. For each individual, there are different levels of unorganization. Some people may be time conscientious, but could care less what rat's nest was forming underneath their bed. Others may keep a neat room, but when it comes to their lockers or schoolwork, they are as unorganized as could possibly be. Also, there are those people who absolutely can not tolerate neatness at all. Those are the people who freak out when their mothers clean their rooms for them, because they feel lost in a clean room.

Each individual has his own preference of organization, but it is definitely not uncommon to be unorganized in this world of chaos.

EQUAL for lefties RIGHTS

by Jennifer Watzke

What do Central's teachers, Mr. Andrews and Mr. Eck have in common with famous artists Michelangelo and Picasso? Both of these teachers along with these artists are left-handed. For all the right-handers out there, not much thought is really given to the very advantages they have compared to those who are left-handed. Simple things like the desks that are designed for those people who are right-handed, most scissors, smearing the ink as they try to write in a notebook and other trivial things such as eating and driving are more.

Because this is a dominantly right-handed world, people who are left-handed have had to adapt to the ways of everyone else. Central librarian, Mrs. Majeski, says, "I've had years to adapt to doing things right-handed. I taught myself to use my right hand. For left-handed people, it is surprising how many things are adapted to the right-handed." She went on to say how when she was growing up and was first taught how to write, the teacher instructed all her students to turn their papers a certain way and hold their pens in their right hand. Mrs. Majeski always had to switch it the other way. The teacher finally let her keep it that way.

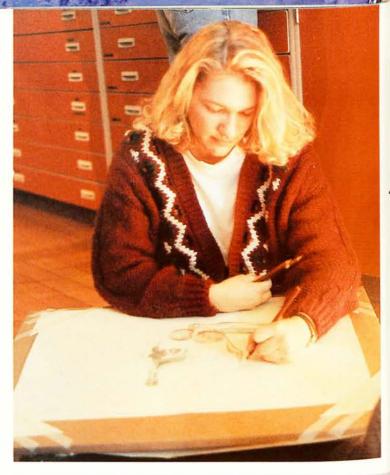

Nathan Rosenthal (10) commented for that him certain things like writing on the chalkboard, writing on paper and getting ink on his hand because of the way notebooks are designed, and sitting next to someone who is right-handed are all some of the problems he runs into being left-handed.

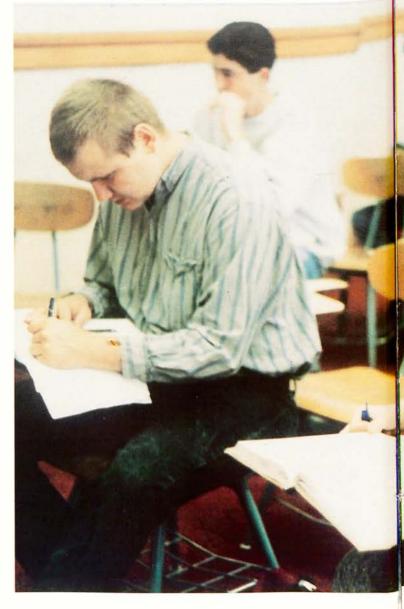

Mr. Andrews, Central art teacher, is particularly proud of the fact that he writes left-handed without using a hook while writing. He says he has always liked being left-handed, and it has always made him feel better knowing that a high percentage of people in fine arts are left-handed.

Central counselor, Mr. McMeen, is ambidexterous. He is able to do things with both his right and left hands. Not many people are able to do this, but he says, "I've always written with my right hand, but it has always felt more comfortable holding tools in my left hand."

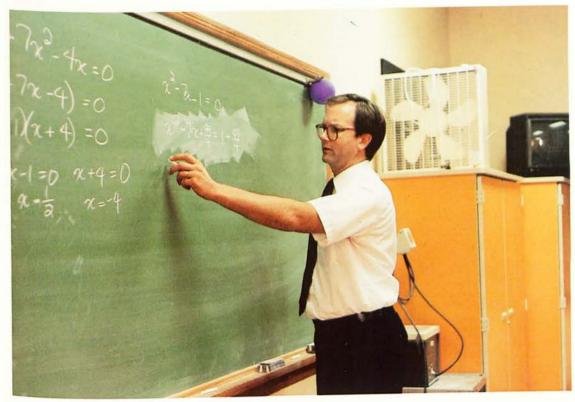

Out of 1644 students and faculty who were polled, 161 were left-handed. Next time, while taking notes in class, take a look around and see just who all is left-handed in your class. As Mr. Andrews says, "Lefties have rights too!"

SPRIRIT: Dead Alive

by Jennifer Watzke and Heather Schacht

Spirit can be defined as vigor, enthusiasm or loyalty when referring to school spirit. As with most high schools, Central tries to show school spirit for athletics as well as academic competitions. question arises, "Is spirit at Central dead or alive?"

Many times, there are events such as pep rallies. purple and white days, and Homecoming that attempt to show Central's students' school spirit. Just as many times you may see only half of the student body take part in these activities. And so the debate goes on as to whether or not Central's students have good school spirit.

Central administrator, Mrs. Nared, says, "All around the school spirit is good, but there is always room for improvement--individuals can get involved. On purple and white days, everybody should be dressed in purple and white."

As an incoming freshman, Rebecca Aden thinks Central has good school spirit. She believes a school needs spirit to stand up for itself.

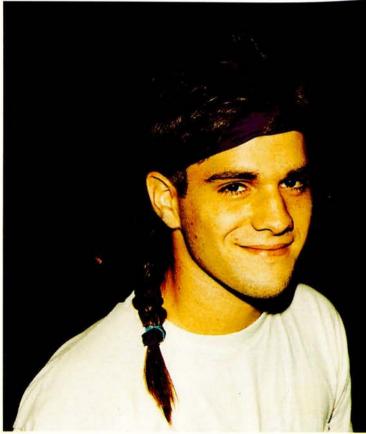

Central varsity cheerleading captain, Natasha Gromak, says, "I think we have good spirit, but I think the emphasis seems to be placed on sports such as football and basketball. We also need to give more attention to other sports like tennis, swimming, and volleyball." She says by attending athletic events for other athletic teams, that is school spirit.

She adds that over the last three years at Central the spirit has gotten worse. However, she says this year is better than last year. She says the cheerleaders can only do so much and that it is up to everyone else to show their loyalty to the school as well.

Stone Soula

By Heather Schacht

The words that come to mind, when hearing Etched in Stone, are solidity and tradition. However, the stone building is not what makes Central unique. It is the variety of people.

In the children's story Stone Source and tells a little, old woman that he can make soup from a stone. The widow is amazed and declare to help the man. The men puts assone in the pot, then he tells the woman all he needs is a little rational then some corrors, and later some chicken. In the end, the soup takes delicious because of the variety of ingredients the man added.

The building Central High School is like that glone Withautishingstudents and raculty added to the ingredients. Central is just a stone building with beautiful architecture.

Real world..... here we come

by Marni Berger and Erinn O'Hara

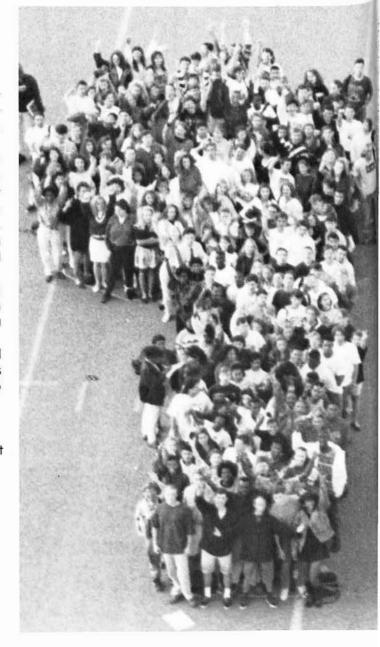

Well, it is finally here, 1992! According to Walter Buckley (12), "It seemed like this year would never come. It was like waiting for a birthday party that was 13 years away."

Now that we are finally on our way, entering into the "real world," we have to start thinking about how we want to spend the rest of our lives. There are many roads that we can take. Some of us will work in order to finance our futures. There is college, armed forces, work, and many people might even choose to start a family. Everyone has hopes of what their future will entail.

Mark Thylin (12) said, "I don't really care what I am doing just as long as I am at least 2000 miles away from Nebraska." Chris Meyer (12) said, "I hope to be a successful photographer with my own phat studio."

Although some of us may leave our friends and family to pursue our dreams, our high school memories will always live on. No matter which road you decide to take, may luck and good fortune be on your side.

The campaign started, the election took place, the voters marked their ballots, and the winners were announced. The senior class officers were Tom Rose, President; Josh Bahr, Vice President; Heather Holland, Secretary; Maggie Boyle, Treasurer; Liz Lieben, Girls' Sgt. at Arms; and Mark Rosenquist, Boys' Sgt. at Arms.

"Campaigning was difficult," said Tom Rose. Liz Lieben said, "I didn't dance or sing. I just made signs and stickers and asked people to vote for Liz!" Mark Rosenquist said that he got the idea for his very original campaign "because Bob Franzese recommended that I do something like that for attention."

Heather Holland said that the class officers talked about a lock-in, some sports activities with the seniors versus the faculty, and a scavenger hunt that's a lot more fun than the other ones. She added, "We have the best T-shirt we've ever had. We're really proud of the T-shirt design this year." Liz mentioned senior spirit week and the senior picnic. Tom talked about a skating pary. "We might rent a skate rink," he said.

Filling a class office was a learning experience for most of these seniors. "I have learned that it takes a lot of work to get everything organized," said Liz. President Tom Rose summed it up, "With any office you have to learn to take the heat."

NIGHTS MADE IN HEAVEN

By Emily Hooi

Everyone has their idea of a good date and a bad date. Who hasn't experienced the fun of a night out and the disaster of a failed date? Dating is an essential part of high school, but it can also be a source of unending torment.

What is the difference between a daie from heaven and a date from hell? Senior Brian Nelson said that he knows it's a good date "when conversation is good, and the atmosphere is relaxed." Michelle Ferrin (10) knows it's going to be a great night "when he shows up at your house at seven o'clock with flowers in his hand."

Sophomore Cathy Moyer added, "My idea of a perfect date is me and my dream date walking along the coast of the Atlantic on a warm night, hand in hand."

Other people think the person on the date with you makes or breaks the date. Senior Jenny Hathoot says that her dream date is Tom Cruise. Another senior, Heather Holland, said, "My idea of a perfect date is Eric Behrens in his baseball uniform."

NIGHTMARES FROM HELL

By Emily Hooi

Nightmare dates can happen just as easily as a dream date. Some people can judge a date right from the start. Junior Taria Conley knew the date was doomed when "this guy took me to a big church convention on our first date."

Carri Conway (12) said, "You know it's a bad date when he shakes your hand goodbye."

"I knew it was bad when I took this girl out to dinner, and her parents were sitting at the table next to us," said Luke Wilwerding (12).

Mrs. Vicki Wiles, marketing teacher shared her worst date experience. "The car broke down, and we had to ride from Bellevue to Plattsmouth in the back of a pickup truck. It was cold, and we sat in the hay."

Whether a date is good or bad, it is interesting because people get the chance to meet new people. Dating introduces you to possible friends, and that is almost always a positive experience.

Central has earned a very prestigious reputation. The reputation of Central lies within its students. Many of the students who attend Central are very proud to say so. Madonna Mannhart (10) says, "There is no place I would rather go." She chose Central because of its reputation. Ben Fenner (11) feels that "it is not the building or curriculum which create its good name, but its faculty and students." The underclassmen plan to continue and improve the growing success of Central.

Students' Views...

Teachers are often portrayed in t.v. and movies as heartless tyrants whose sole joy comes from ruining the lives of as many students as possible. Many Central students, however, feel differently about their teachers.

"Considering how much people expect out of them, they do a good job," said Debbie Spencer, junior.

Teachers also have expectations of students. "You have to work for grades--they don't let you slip by," said senior Josh Cooper. Josh also added that he thinks Central teachers are "some of the best in the state."

Many students said they liked teachers because of the variety they bring to their classes. Michelle McCune, senior, said, "I like Mr. Daly because he tells stories and makes class fun."

Sure, teachers assign homework and give killer tests, but, for many Central students, this has little effect on the way they view them.

Sean Foster, senior, disagrees with Jack Blanke's, social studies department head, statement that Sean's opinions are "moot" and show signs of a "very naughty" character. (Photo: Jennifer Dreibelbis)

One would think that, with everything they have to put up with, teachers wouldn't like their jobs very much. Some Central teachers, however, say this isn't true.

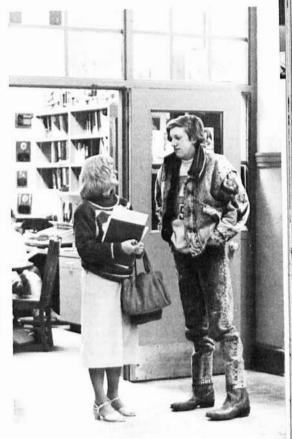

"I like the job because of the material and I like sharing the subject matter with the students," said Mr. Dan Daly, English Department chairman.

Mr. Gordon Thompson, drafting teacher, also said he enjoys teaching. "I don't think any other profession is as important to our society," said Mr. Thompson. Mr. Thompson also said, "I really enjoy when I know I helped prepare a student for the real world."

Another reason teachers enjoy teaching is the different ideas that students bring to the classroom. Mrs. Susan Roberts, social studies teacher, said she liked the "perspectives that they (students) have on different subjects."

Whatever their reason for entering the profession, many teachers say that students are the reason they continue.

As you enter the office of Central High, you are greeted by the friendly smilles of the office staff. The office staff is a very important part of Central High School. Without them, teachers wouldn't get their mail, phone calls from home to students would be pointless, and teachers wouldn't get a nice typed copy of the circular every morning. The office staff also does many things besides the aforementioned tasks. They answer phones, keep school records, and run the lost and found, just to name a few. Front Row: Joy Plummer. This year's tennis team is hoping for an eventual state title. The last Central team to take home the state title was in 1985. Both Coach Waterman and the rest of the team rely on each other for support under pressure.

Josh Cooper (12) refers to coach Waterman as being "pretty cool. He lets us do our own thing." "With Coach Waterman's motivation, we could conceivably place at least fourth at the state tournament," analyzed Andy Urias (12). Rob Anderson (12) agreed,"This year's team has the best chance in four years to do well in state. I just hope we can pull it all together before that time (state) comes."

According to the team, depth is the underlying factor that dictates their successful season. younger guys will be really good for the next couple of years," stated Josh. Coach Waterman added, "This is the deepest team that I have coached in twelve years. As a matter of fact, it is the best team I have ever coached." Although the eagles are graduating five seniors. the future of Central tennis looks promising. Next year's returning players are: juniors Adam Yale, Jason Hui, and Ric Fenton; sophomore Jeff Darst, and freshmen Grant Rozmarin, Clark Lauritzen, and Alex Yale.

"I will really miss those guys (graduating seniors). It will really seem strange without them. I cannot say enough about the contributions they have given the sport of tennis at Central," concluded Coach Waterman.

Unity was not an obstacle for this years varsity volleyball team. "This was the closest team we've had in the last four years. We didn't have any social disputes that affected how we played on the court which tremendously since helped volleyball is an attitude game," Mel Hoialmen (12), captain of the team stated.

Brooke Bahr (10) added "It was easy to get down on yourself after missing a ball, but the team's enthusiasm made it easy to get back up."

The varsity team consisted mainly of a new line-up with only two returning varsity players, Michelle Ludwig (12) and Mel Hoialmen (12). Many seniors graduated last year which placed some stress on the experience of togetherness on the team.

Jeni Hathoot (12) felt that the team together quickly. came "Sometimes our practices were off and frustrating but in our first game, we were a whole different group. I think its because we spent so mich time practicing. We held Saturday practices and worked hard to win."

Julia Armenta (11) stated, "Even though we were a fairly young team, we achieved more each game and

J.V. takes center court with unity

By Dana Souser

Working together as a team on and off the court has been the goal for this year's J.V. Team. Our team unity is excellent. The whole time we practice, we strive to put forth effort into everything we do, commented Dawn Smedra.

The team began its season with wins against South and Burke. The team also improved its serving average to 90 percent. The team's improvement has been credited to the conditioning program set up by Coach Pfeiffer and Coach Bryson.

According to Jessica Carlson the team did aerobles and ran a lot. But, as Lisa Hindgr commented, "The conditioning is very effective. Especially when you have three matches and the other teams are tired, we're still ready to play."

All the team members agree that Coach Pfeiffer is a great volleyball coach. 'Coach Pfeiffer is understanding and she also tries to make you understand your position out on the volleyball court,' commented April

Stevens

Even though the girls give much of credit to Coach Pfelffer, she believes that the girls' success has come from their hard work and dedication.

Freshmen volleyball team prepared for the challenge

By Dana Souser

Volleyball has been described as a sport that involves teamwork, communication, and hard work.

According to Andrea Nanfito (9), this year's freshmen volleyball team's success came from their sense of team

"The team unity is strong because there is a strong will to win," Annessa Landin added.

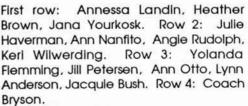

Jacquie Bush believes that the key to their success has come from the hard conditioning program set up by Coach Bryson. "It was hard work, but it has been rewarding."

"We did a lot of conditioning work before school started." said Coach Bryson. "That is why we are probably the best conditioned team in the state."

Most of the players agree that in order for any player to enjoy playing volleyball they must enjoy competition. As Angle Rudolph commented, "The freshmen volleyball team loves a good challenge."

CROSS COUNTRY IS ON THE MOVEIN

By Mike Callahan

Destination: unknown. This is the attitude of the cross country team this year. Even though there is a destination, it doesn't matter to the team. They are willing to run just for the thrill of accepting the ribbon when they cross the finish line.

"I love the feeling of the breeze caused by my brilliant speed," says Bobby Franzese, (12). "None of the other members of the team can match my agile, liquid, stride." About his teammates, Bob says, "They're a fun group of guys to run in front of ."

The team practices everyday except Sundays for about three to three and half hours at Elmwood Park. They are required to run anywhere from 10. to 12 miles each time they practice. "There is nothing like the feeling of running. Not even the pain takes away the enjoyment of the hot sun beating down on my back or the breeze blowing through my hair," says Bob referring to the practices. John Maaske, (12), says,"I was runnin' so fast the heart was just a pumpin'. I felt good."

Coach Carmichael says the team has a "very positive outlook" and "has a great attitude." The coach also states, "It's a young, talented team this year. The team looks very promising in the next few years." Bob says the coach "knows his running. He's a good coach." Chris Heimes, (11), agrees, "It's been a fun team this year with the help of the coaches."

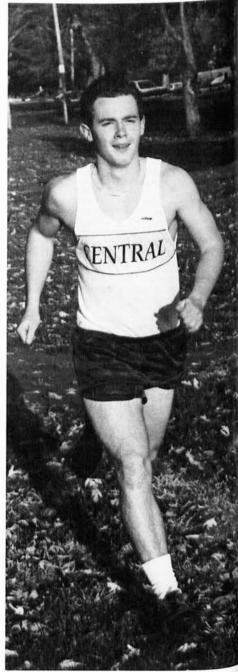

Chris says, "The seniors led the team this year but there will be many lettermen coming back next year." Chris also states, "It will be hard to replace Bob but I think the athletic ability I have will be able to take his place."

Football. The mere name brings hints of school spirit that is often lacking with other sports. Football. That time of year when students and faculty alike sit among friends on Friday nights and cheer the Eagles on to victory.

Central Eagles experienced many ups and downs this year. That made for an easy time deciding the high points of the year.

"The highlight of the year had to be when we beat Northwest, who was ranked eighth at the time, 40-7," stated Rob Partridge (12). Coach Joe McMenamin agrees. "We really played our hearts out that game. I think it might have had something to do with it being our homecoming game."

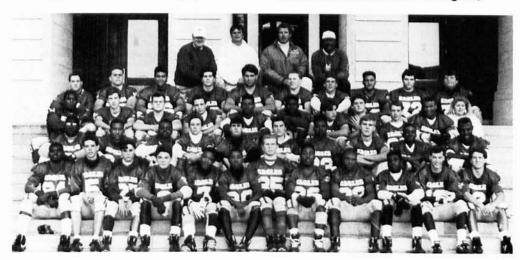

The Eagles started off slowly but took off as the season progressed. Many of the returning players are looking forward to a strong year in 92.

J.V. Eagles set high standards

by Mike Callahan

The Eagles football team has much to look forward to in the next couple of years. Many players from the junior varsity will be playing for the varsity team. Outstanding performances by Anthony Brown, Josh Cusworth, Joe Agosta, and Mario Henderson helped the team to victory over many opponents.

Coach Allner sums up this year and the next few years by stating, "The team is improving. Hopefully, they will be able to step right in and play for the varsity team when the time comes." The team's attitude towards the sport of football is extremely "optimistic." The team is also "very enthusiastic."

While practicing with the varsity team, the junior varsity is able to compete on another level. When game day comes, the team is playing at a varsity pace. Therefore, the team "never quits," stated coach Allner.

Even though the junior varsity does not have many players due to the number of students who have quit the team, they are still able to pull things together and win. Coach Allner said, "The team is gradually getting better."

Although the team will suffer a few defeats, it's the mental outlook that keeps them going.

FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES LOOK PROMISING

By Mike Callahan

The sophomore and freshman teams have done well in their seasons this year. Coach Eubanks of the sophomore team said, "The team has a very positive attitude." "Enthusiasm and morale is good," also stated Coach Dominguez of the freshman team. Even though it is the first time many of the kids have played organized football, "They are willing to learn," says Coach Dominguez.

Both the sophomore and freshman teams practice daily after school on Central's field. The players work extremely hard under the supervision and leadership of both coaches.

The freshman team plays mostly other junior high schools or other freshman teams while the sophomore team competes with other high school sophomore teams. Both coaches feel that the freshman and sophomore players this year are "as good as they want to be and will be even better as juniors and seniors."

Stacey Bolte (10), described gymnastics as "a sport that contains beauty, dedication, and is a way of life."

The team began its season with a four and one record and ended their season with a win at the Hallstrom Invitational. The team also had a two and four all around at Metro.

According to Gina Gomez (11), "The team unity is wonderful. We feel close to each other and look to each other for advice."

Shelley Loland (10), added that It is easy to become friends with someone when one is on the gymnastics team.

Lisa Asta (9) commented that this year's team goal was to incorporate a higher level of skills in the routines and to do well at state. Coach Kozak also stated that she would like to see them qualify for state as a team and to do as well as last year's team.

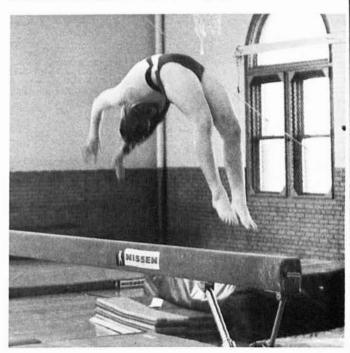

"Miss Kozak is a great coach," said Jenny Gruber (10). "She lets us go off on our own when we want to, but she also critiques us when we want or need it."

"Young and enthusiastic," according to Mandy O'Loughlin, is the best way to describe the girls' golf team. Although looking to the future, this year's team has had a winning season.

The team began its season with a third place finish at the Abraham Lincoln Tournament. Individual leaders were sophomore Leah Musselman with a sixth place finish, and senior Dana Souser with a score of 79 tied the tournament record to capture the title. Other members that participated in the A.L. tournament included Nicole Goldenstein, (11); Meghan Stanek, (11); Jenny Berg, (10); Mandy O'Loughlin, (10); and Robyn Fuksa, (9).

Leah Musselman believes that even though the team consists of young players they will be able to grow and mature together.

"I feel this year's team has had a good positive attitude," said Coach Dusatko. "That is why they have been so successful."

Pom Squad

changes "before Pom makes Squad the music" "after the jam" and

By Mel Hoialmen

Pom Squad, "before the music" was doing a lot of changes this year. Even 'after the Jam,' they are still making alterations. They were full of changes this year, continuing the ones from last

A big difference was the halftime outine for the football games. Instead of being completely separated from the band and performing on the track, this Year the squad was on the field. The change was a positive aspect that the members of the squad wanted to change from the previous year.

Marni Berger (12) stated, Even though we were not incorporated in marching With the band, it was nice to be Performing together rather than separately.

Erinn O'Hara (12) added, "I felt more a part of the spirit of the football game this year. Last year wasn't as fun because we just did a little dance on the track and left. This year, we did a whole routine with the band."

The squad experienced a change of sponsors in the middle of the year as well. Mrs. Bender, the former sponsor took over the squad again with the assistance of Ms. Merrigan-Pothoff. Mrs. Gatewood was the sponsor last year and at the beginning of this year

Even though the squad will have to adjust to another new addition, Jessica Whitney, captain of this year's squad, feels that 'as a former sponsor, Ms. Bender has had the experience and I believe that she will be more of a benefit for the squad than any sort of setback."

Leah Mussleman (10) commented, Since this was my first year on the sauad, it was not as difficult for me to adjust as the members who have been part of the squad two or three years."

More changes will be made next year when the squad loses eleven seniors, but Liz Lieben (12) concluded, 'The overall attitude of the squad is positive. The upcoming years will be more stable when everything is settled."

Cheerleading: A truly bonding experience

By Sean Foster

Cheerleading is a tradition of fun and excitement at Central High School. Many of this year's team members look at cheerleading as an escape from the normal everyday life of the student.

Heather Holland (12), a four-year cheerleader, says, "I wear my (cheerleading) skirt so I don't spend too much time in front of the waredrobe trying to decide what to wear in the morning." Natasha Gromak (12), varsity captain, agrees, "Deciding what to wear on game days is made easy by being a cheerleader."

"I think that being a cheerleader causes a type of bonding. Memories that will last a lifetime were made with this year's squad," stated Heather. She also added that Natasha was the best captain that she can ever remember.

This year also marked the first season of Mrs. McConkey's reign as Central's cheerleading sponsor.

The To Best Yet Come!!

By Mike Callahan

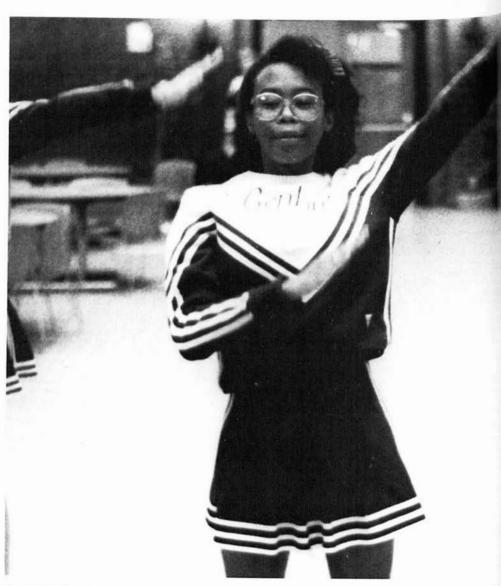

Not only is cheerleading a "unique experience," but it is also "loads of fun," says Meghan Stanek (11). This year, the junior varsity cheerleaders have indeed put on a show for the sports fans at Central.

Many of the girls on the squad this year will be returning next year to take the place of the graduating seniors. Megan Young (11), the captain of the j.v. squad, led them in their cheers and victory cries this year. "I like doing cheers for all sports," stated Megan. She thinks that the other cheerleaders this year are "nice and talented girls." Almost all of the girls are close friends with each other and rarely get into arguments.

According to Meghan Stanek, "We have a hard act to follow but, the best is yet to come. Good luck to all the girls on the squad, and see you next year!"

By Sean Foster

The Reserve cheerleaders have practiced hard and are well rehearsed when it comes to their cheers. They are looking forward to the upcoming year with extreme anticipation. Tryouts for the varsity squad during late spring will certainly prove exciting for this year's team.

Michelle Buller (10), reserve squad captain, has an optimistic look on her future as a Central High School cheerleader. She said, "Almost everyone on this year's reserve team has a great chance of making next year's varsity squad. I'm real excited." Nicole Offner (10) agrees, "At the beginning of the year, I wasn't too sure about the cheers. Now I feel totally comfortable with all of them (cheers). I can't wait for a shot to make the varsity squad."

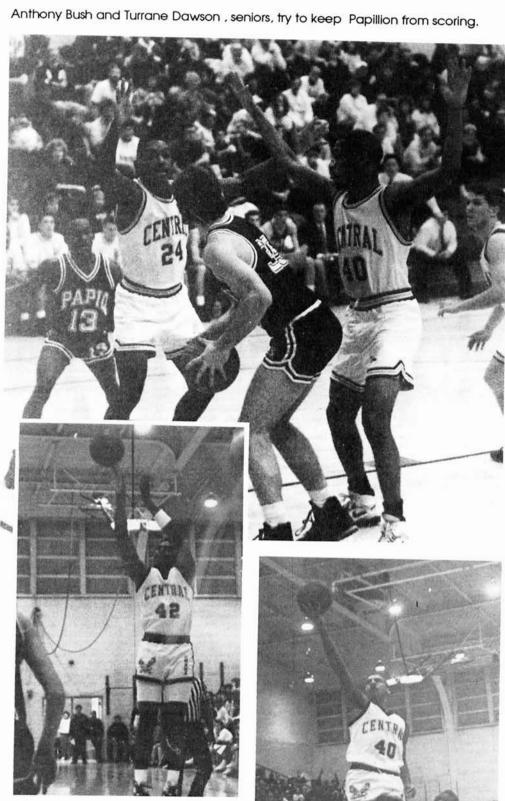

Kara Willits (10) just enjoys being a part of one of Central's great traditions. "Cheerleading is one of the best things that could have ever happened to me at Central. The people I met will be treasured for a lifetime."

Varsity Basketball: Off and running

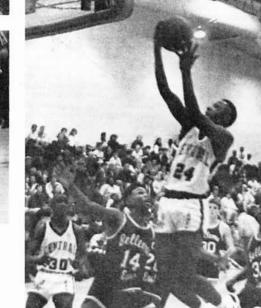

by Sean Foster

The Boys Varsity Basketball team is off and running under the coaching of second year coach, Rick Behrens. "I think that we wll do all right if we come up with some big victories in the tougher games. Perennial powers such as Prep and Millard South are those games that make or break a season."

Many of this year's team members are looking forward to a potential playoff berth. Anthony Bush (12) said, "I can't wait to get on court with some of those schools; especially Benson." Other players, like Eric Behrens (12), look forward to the big crowds at the Friday and Saturday night games. "Playing in front of a large crowd gets me more psyched up, a little more ready to play," Eric commented. "Although it can work in reverse if you are having an off night." In addition to the large crowds, rowdy fans are well-liked by the players. Randy Davis (12) enjoys hearing the fans 'boo' the referee when he/she makes a poor call. "It shows the ref that someone is listening and that he screwed up," stated Randy. "It also shows the players that someone is supporting us while we are out there."

Along with the crowd participation, the band, Pom Squad, and cheerleaders get involved in the basketball games. The noise level in the gym becomes almost deafening. This year's varsity basketball team is off and running to another winning season.

Lady Eagles bounce back to defeat Westside 46-33 in Holiday Tournament

By Dana Souser

The girls' varsity basketball season began with the Holiday Tournament held at Central Dec 23, 26-28, and 30. After a devastating loss to Papillion the team bounced back to beat Westside 46-33. The team's victory was led by senior Tamara Morrow's 18 points, junior Jade Turner's 12 points, and senior Washington's 10 points. Jade Turner added that the team really wanted to win after the Papillion game. "We really played hard."

According to Coach Stan this year's team was young and inexperienced. With only 5 seniors, 4 juniors, 1 sophomore, and 3 freshmen they were hoping to establish a basketball program based on fundamental skills and a great defense.

Senior Donna Calloway shoots the winning two point shot in order to defeat the opposing team.

3...2...1...The Eagles win another one!!!

By: Sean Foster

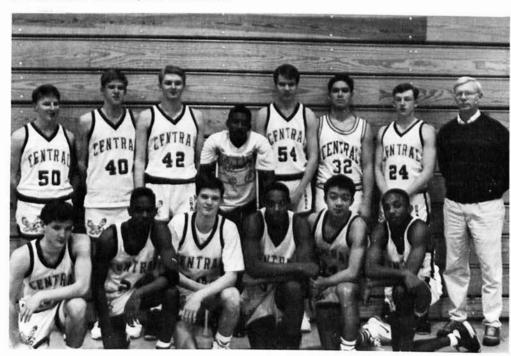

The junior varsity basketball team is off and running under the helm of Coach Peterson. Recent changes in the strategy of the game has given Central's j.v. team a reason to smile.

One, two, three... "Runnin' Eagles". This is the cry of the j.v. team before they take the court. The majority of the team consists of juniors while the rest of the team is made up of sophomores. Run and gun is the name of the game when the j.v. team hits the court. "It's a combination of fast breaks and counterattacks," says Coach Peterson. "It's a real up-tempo type of game."

Tommy Huey (11), who is looking forward to a spot on the varsity team next year, said of this year's squad,"We have much potential and hopefully we can carry on the proud Central tradition of fine basketball teams. I also look forward to the opportunity to be coached by Mr. Behrens."

Jeff Berg (11) takes pride in wearing the Central uniform. "Practicing hard and always displaying a winning attitude is the key to success," he said.

Future Looks Bright For Central Basketball Teams

By Mike Callahan

The Central varsity and junior varsity basketball teams will be surprised in the future. Due to the success of the sophomore and freshman teams, they will be receiving a few, if not many talented young athletes in the up coming years. According to Coach Herbert of the sophomore team, there will be "at least a few players on the varsity team next year."

With outstanding performances from Billy Vogt, averaging 17 points a game, and Lenoard Knight, averaging 10 points a game, the sophomore team has overcome many opponents. "The team has very many good athletes and they all work exremely hard."

As for the freshman team, Coach Galus says the team is "getting better as they go along." While Matt Johnson and Luther Hall are the leading point scorers for the team, "the rest of the team works just as hard and gives it their all," says Coach Galus.

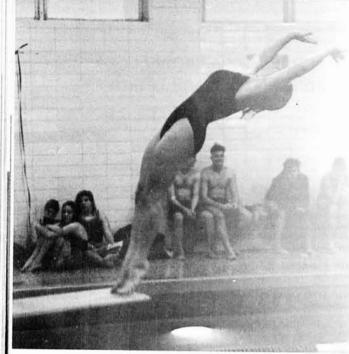

The coach feels that "there is a lot of growth from being on the freshman team and continuing on to the varsity and junior varsity teams." He also thinks that some of the players "have the potential" to be on the two teams.

Diving: A fast growing team sport

By Mel Hoialmen

This is the first time in Central's diving history that the longstanding individual diver has turned into a diving team. The coaches and team members are hoping that diving will continue to grow and stay a team sport.

Diving has become a fast growing sport at Central.

According to junior Genisa Zaremski diving is a challenging sport and is also a good way for a person to build up their self-esteem.

"Diving is not only challenging but is a sport that sometimes involves very dangerous maneuvers. I am so afraid of the reverse dive," commented Misty Haberstall (9). She continued, "It's a forward approach but, you're diving backwards towards the board."

Even though the diving became a team, a diving coach has not been made available to them.

"I do not take any specialized diving training, so not having a coach is a detriment," stated Kim Scofield (12). She added, "I took gymnastics, so that helped a lot."

Kim, a first time diver for Central, has placed second or better induals against Marian, Bellevue East, and Ralston.

JV Basketball's a winning success

By Dana Souser

This year's junior varsity basketball team has turned out another successful season. But, according to Coach Bryson the team's success has not come through their wins, but through the team's togetherness.

The team also contributes their success to the team's competitiveness and their love of basketball. "We just like to go out and have a good time while we play," commented Michelle Fogarty (9).

According to freshman LaToya Prince, the team mainly practices fundamental basketball skills and defense. Rachael Newsome (11) added that the fundamental basketball skills include dribbling, ball handling, and shooting.

"I really like playing for the Central girls' basketball team because it is so much fun and the team members try to accept each other for the way they are," commented Laura Dinger.

Coach Bryson concluded with the statement that "the team has to climb over the fence, look over, earn their wins with hard work, and the pasture will be greener."

"The spirit for team members and fo accomplishing the best was incredible this year, stated Connie Braesch (12) four-year letter winner.

Natasha Gromak (12), captain of the Vigirls' team, added, "For a basical vigingly land to the land of the Vigingly individual sport, we demonstrated real great spirit.*

The team accomplished much at the beginning of the season. The boys too first and the girls second at the Holidal Tournament at Bryan junior high, th second meet of the year.

Todd Reiser commented, "We reall for pulled together at that meet. We were missing one of the guys, which cost about fifty points, yet we still pulled out first. We won because everyone trie harder than they thought they could.

The strength of the team was ever more evident when five member qualified for state in the first meet of the season: Cate Townley (9), Gretche Pfeiffer (10), Julie Neary (11), Me Hoialmen (12), and Todd Reiser (11).

This year's team had three, four-year letter winners: seniors, Connie Braesch Mel Hoialmen, and Kim Scofield.

After three years of this, my last year to seemed mentally easier because I knew ible what to expect at practices and where 12 my times should place, Connie added.

Coach Mark Allner stated, "The the Younger members were very impressive all with their dedication and improvement."

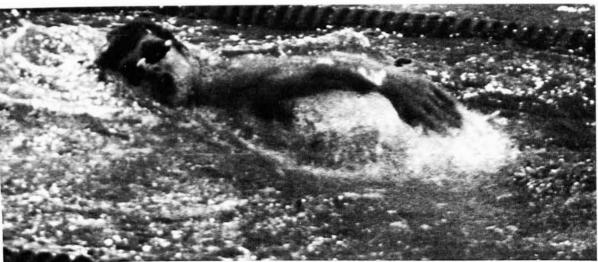

The teams' dual season was tougher this year. Coach Allner made changes in the schecule in order for the team to cut their times in faster pools.

Metro and State were the major th concerns of the swimmers.

"We have to concentrate on our times for qualifying for state and not so much winning a dual meet. Most of the time, to we are swimming against our own team in members for times rather than other rie schools for places," Jon Wendt (11) commented.

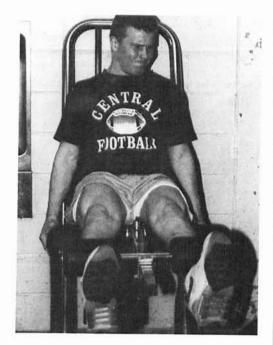

Coach Allner concluded, "We per improved on our finish from last year. the Metro and State are what it is all about; our dual record doesn't matter as much as our individual qualifiers. I could put swimmers in events just to win the duals, but that is not what matters. What matters is being in the top twelve.

Pump it Up!

By Sean Foster and Mike Callahan

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of the winter months, you will find the Central High Powerlifting Team in the weightroom giving it their all to improve the total amount of weight they can lift.

Coached by Joe McMenamin, the powerlifters have placed at the top of the weightlifting charts for many consecutive years. Brian Nelson (12) looked forward to competing this year. "My goal is to break the city record for the squat this year." This is Brian's second year competing on the powerlifting team for Central.

Several of this year's powerlifters are lifting weights as a type of winter conditioning for the upcoming football year. Since Coach Mac is in charge of the lifting, he ensures that the powerlifters are using the proper techniques so they do not hurt themselves.

Rob Anderson (12) said, "If it wasn't for powerlifting, I wouldn't go to Central. Between powerlifting and religious affiliations there is barely enough time to think."

Central's team ended the season with a fine showing in the city competition.

The Central High wrestling team started the season by running to get into shape. They ran to Elmwood park and back for their pre-season conditioning. Throughout the course of the season, the wrestlers engaged in several duels with different schools throughout the metro region.

Wrestler John Kolvek (12), champion of the Prep Invitational Wrestling Tournament, said of the season,"We have shown a great deal of improvement during the course of the season."

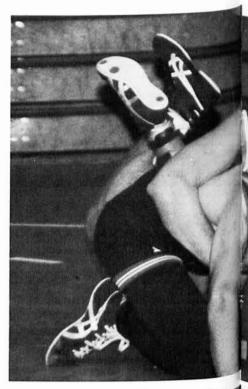

Kacasha Station (12) was ranked in the top five wrestlers in the state of Nebraska. He had a strong showing in the state tournament.

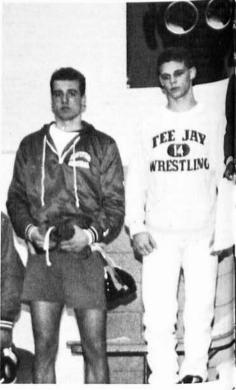

Senior Mike Taylor says that wrestling has helped his weightlifting and vice versa. The city champion weightlifter can bench press 330 lbs. and only weighs 145 pounds.

Coaches Kubik and Marsh said that the wrestlers work very hard, but in the long run all running and hard work pays off. "There are very few people that go out for the wrestling team. But those that do are in a class by themselves," said Coach Marsh.

Not everything is academic when it comes to one's high school years. Activities are a significant part of the memories becopie will have when they look back on their school days.

people will have then they look back on their school days.

Activities such as the school musical. Christmas From spirit week, debate. A Cappella and student council are just a few of the things that require time but also provide memories during high school.

For some people, different activities will be more important to them than to someone else. Everyone has it is own preterance which you can see as you flip through the pages and examine the different faces of students at Central as they take part in certain activities. The activities one is active in tells a lot about that person. Define your style with the activities you enjoy during your years here at Central. After all, they do not last forewell.

Student council more involved

By Rob Anderson

"Student council provides me with an excellent opportunity to develop my leadership qualities, which will help me in the future," says Quatesha Kern (11). This year's student council describes itself as more enthusiastic than ever. According to Maggie Boyle(12), student council president, more enthusiasm exists this year than ever before. Student council sponsor Mrs. Bender agrees. She also feels that the "quality of leadership is outstanding."

Although most student council members agree upon the high level of enthusiasm, they also feel that the student body needs to be more involved in the activities voted on by the council.

"We need to become more approachable and identifiable as a group," says Maggie. "Students also need to believe in us and realize that we are their link to the administration." "The council needs to become more visible as a group," says Mrs. Bender.

In addition, Mrs. Bender feels that the council is an extension of past councils and is continuously building and improving. The ambitions of the council are providing possibilities for more activities this year. "State student council activities as well as community service projects are increased this year," says president Maggie Boyle.

Register Staff

While many Central students are getting ready for dates or sporting events on Friday evenings, it is not unusual for members of the Register staff still to be in school. By their own choice and sense of responsibility, staff members devote their study halls, class time, and any extra time to conducting interviews, writing stories, and laying out pages to meet deadlines.

The staff holds its story sessions on Tuesday afternoons. They discuss possible story ideas for the next issue. The ideas come from staff members, "teacher beats," and other students. While the editor makes the final decision on what news stories will be done, the whole staff votes on the editorials and the stance that the Register will present.

The staff meets daily sixth and seventh periods under the guidance of Mr. Gaherty, creative writing and journalism teacher. His role is that of consultant. For 29 years he has answered staff members' questions and given them advice.

The Register staff is under the direction of Josh Cooper, editor, and LaVonya Watson, executive editor. They make sure that the newspaper gets to the publisher on time, in its finished form. Their jobs include editing hard copy, laying out pages on the computer and manually, and occasionally writing articles.

The goal of the Register staff is to produce a paper that serves all students, a paper that people want to read and look forward to receiving. Central's reputation for producing a professional newspaper continues because of the dedication of the staff members.

O-Book staff grows

By Rob Anderson

This year's O-Book staff has undergone some substantial additions and changes. One major change is the increase in staff size as compared to staffs of the past.

Additions have occurred in the areas of photography and advertising. With an increased amount of staff members who are able to perform the required duties, the production of the book is done more efficiently. Mr. Gaherty, adviser for the yearbook, is enthusiastic about the increase.

"With the growing amount of interest in working on the yearbook, it is possible and helpful to have more advertising and photography staff members," said Mr. Gaherty. Since many more business as well as personal advertisers are eager to advertise in the O-Book, an increased staff can make the production smoother and more efficient.

In addition to the increase in the advertising and photography staffs, a new position has been added. The position, which is referred to as promotions editor, is responsible for promoting yearbook sales. This position allows for more recognition of the yearbook during the sale period.

The enhancement of the staff is very encouraging to the entire production of the O-Book and its staff.

Dimension a culmination of creative writing's hard work

By Adam Yale

Each year, all Central students have an opportunity to showcase their literary and artistic talents in Dimension, Central's annual publication produced by creative writing students. The process begins near the end of third quarter and continues for two to three weeks.

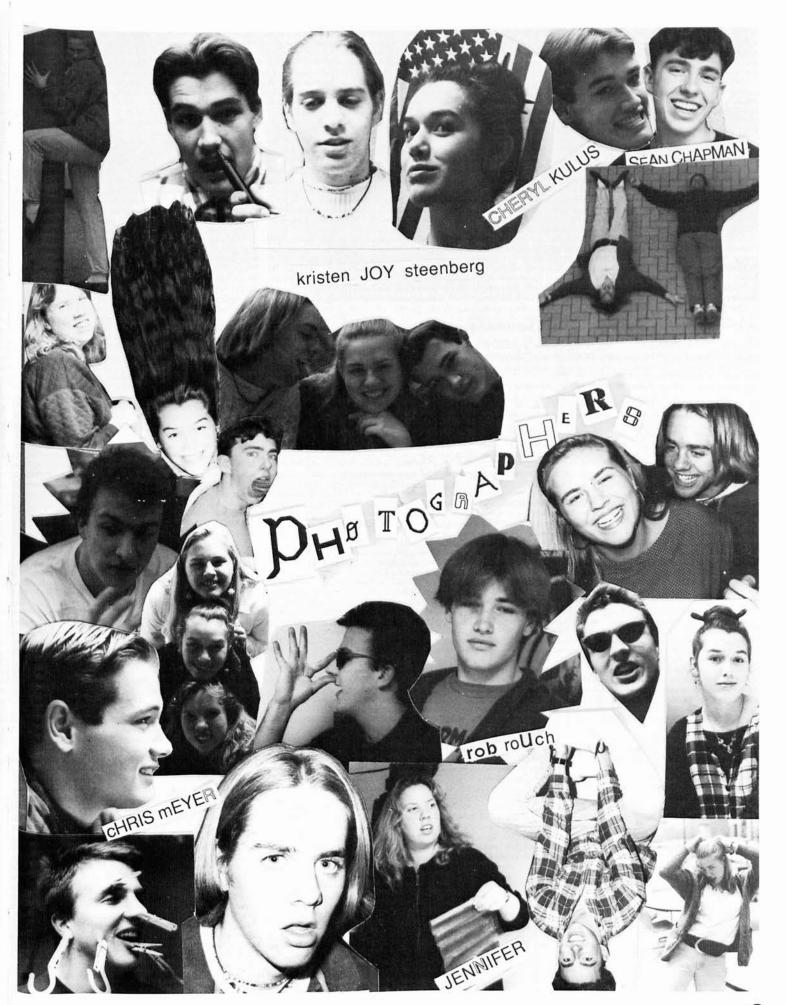

"Each person applies for a position on the layout, selection, or publicity committee," explains Christi Klein, senior. "We probably receive a couple hundred entries." Any Centralite may submit poetry, prose, or artwork. Once the selection and layout are completed, the finished product is sent to press. It is then the job of the publicity committee to sell the book to their classmates.

"I like Dimension," says Cassi Swisher, junior. "It allows students to give their viewpoints on a variety of subjects, and you learn what it takes to produce a literary magazine."

Good grades are not the only criteria for being inducted into the National Honor Society. In addition to maintaining a 3.5 grade point average, students must also be involved in extracurricular activities and perform community service work. Once the student earns this prestigious honor, he must continue his academic excellence and attend one-half of the scheduled meetings held monthly.

Some of the activities the students were involved in this year were helping serve dinner at the Sienna Francis House two days in December and Honey Sunday, which benefited the Greater Omaha Association of Retarded Citizens. In addition, NHS members attended a seminar on writing college application essays and hosted an annual potluck dinner for NHS chapters in the Omaha area.

"I think NHS is a good idea, " said NHS vice-president, Jcsh Cooper. "It rewards hard-working, diverse students, and it shows that Central cares about its academics."

The NHS sponsors for the 1991-1992 school year were Mrs. Faye Johnson, Mr. Robert McMeen, and Mr. Jack Blanke. The officers of NHS were Else Festersen, president; Josh Cooper, vice-president; Liz Lieben, secretary; Emily Hooi, treasurer; and Rachel Tomlinson, sergeant-at-arms.

In-depth research, a logical approach, and a forceful attack are three elements of a successful debate. Debate students must employ these tactics to enhance both affirmative and negative cases to a proposed resolution. This year's topic questions whether or not the government should increase social services to the homeless.

Members of Central High's Forensics Team also have opportunities to participate in speech competitions. Categories include interpretations of prose, poetry, and drama, original oratory, and extemporaneous and impromptu speaking. Students who work well together often choose to compete in duet and group events. Tournaments are held every weekend from November until April, and students attend them on a voluntary basis.

Central's debators and speakers meet daily to give mock debates and practice speeches. Mrs. Bertch, instructor and coach, suggests ways that they can improve their cases and techniques. The two divisions, novice and advanced, are taught according to their abilities. Classroom discussion topics cover inductive and deductive logic and debate and speech theory.

During debate season, members of Central's team organize and run the junior high tournaments. Serving as judges, tabulators, and award-presenters, Central students listen to the young debators and give them advice on how to improve their style.

After debate season ends, the team participates in Student District Congress. All schools submit bills, ten are chosen, and students, acting as members of Congress, try to pass them. Forensics students are divided into houses according to their level of experience, and they use the procedures that members of the United States Congress use to pass legislation.

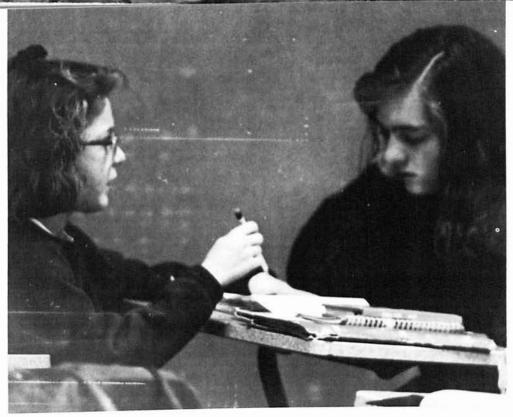

Whether a person debates out of a love or fear of speaking, debate is a learning experience; it exposes students to public speaking, helping them become comfortable around others.

Young Decathlon team excels

By Rob Anderson

This year's academic decathlon team consisted of a yery young, yet very strong group of students. The team was made up of roughly an even number of juniors and seniors. In addition, all members of the team including the seniors were new to decathlon. With this in mind, the team had an excellent season. The team placed third in regionals, which is a competition against eight other Omaha area high schools. This qualified the team for state competition at which the team placed fourth. This was an excellent performance considering the team scored 40,000 points in comparison with last year's team scoring 38,000 points and winning the state competition.

"This team did very well," said team sponsor Mrs. Kovarik. Medals were won in the state competition by Mary Campbell (11), Mindy Drake (11), Angela Henning (12), Pete Thorson (12), Cynthia Garner (12), Michael Rolleigh (11), Sarah Moss (11), Nicole Engelke (12), and Shannon Kopf (12). These medals were won in the areas of essay, interview, fine arts, math, language/literature, social studies, economics, hard sciences, soft sciences, and humanities.

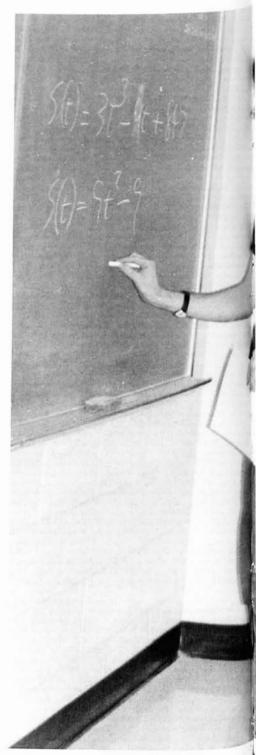

As far as the decathlon program is concerned locally as well as regionally and nationally, the program is improving. "The competition is getting tougher every year," said Mrs. Kovarik.

Band marches to the tune of a new instructor

By Angel Henning

"Band is very rewarding. It's a lot of hard work, but it's a worthwhile experience," said senior Nicole Engelke.

To prepare for a year of musical madness, band members began meeting weekly at the end of July for practice sessions; they practiced in the student lot from 7:00 until 9:00 P.M. Most members then attended Band Camp at Peru State College for four days in August. Participants got a head start by learning their marching routines, setting them into motion for the school year.

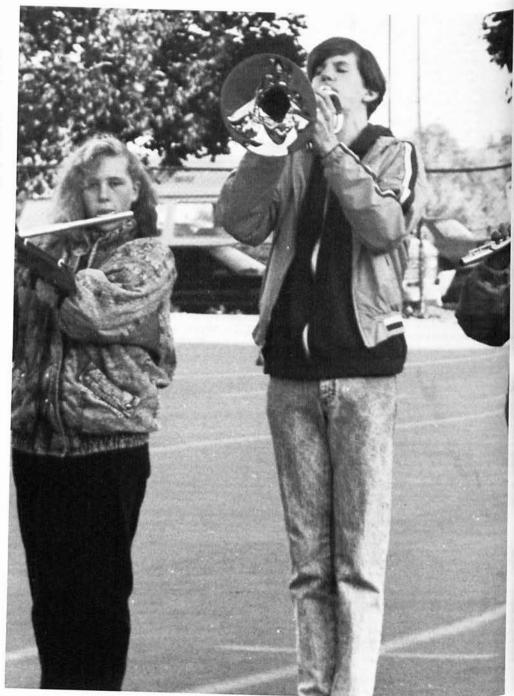

When school began, the band could be seen and heard as they practiced on the football field from 7:00 A.M. through first hour. Under the direction of Mr. Wilger, the new instrumental music instructor, they rehearsed their music and marching routines in preparation for marching season.

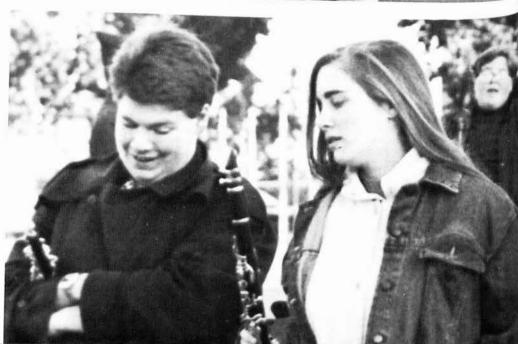

During marching season, the band entertained the spectators with their musical performance during half-time at home football games. They also attended the Omaha Marching Invitational and the Nebraska Bandmasters Association State Championships.

As the weather turned colder, and football season ended, Central's Marching Band became Concert Band. As Concert Band, they performed in Road Show and in a spring concert and participated in the District Music Contest in April.

Orchestra sees new direction

By Rob Anderson

This year's orchestra is the first group here at Central to be under the new leadership of Mr. Wilger. Mr. Wilger is the new instrumental music teacher here at Central. In addition to orchestra, Mr. Wilger is responsible for the band, jazz band, and private music instruction. Before Central, Mr. Wilger spent six years teaching music in Yutan, Nebraska. At Central, Mr. Wilger is "getting used to the many different types of students."

This year, as in the past, the orchestra is involved in several performances. They perform in the following: open house, the musical, Road Show, programs at Central's adopt-a-school partners, Adjudication night, the district music contest, and the spring concert in May.

In addition to getting used to all the different students, Mr. Wilger is getting used to the musical and the Road Show in that they are different types of performances than what he is used to. Overall, this year's orchestra was a successful, "enthusiastic" group.

All that Jazz

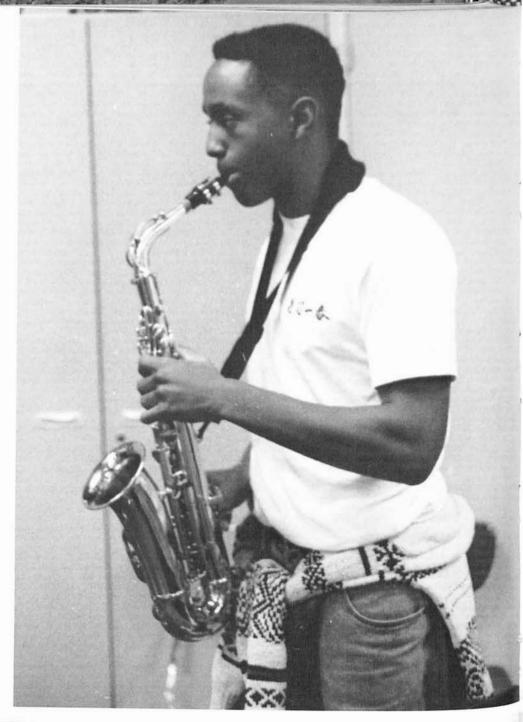

By Angel Henning

Central's Jazz Band is composed of sixteen students who meet daily tenth hour under the direction of Mr. Wilger, instrumental music instructor. They perform annually in Winter and Spring concerts and Road Show and occasionally at various Jazz festivals.

A student must be enrolled in another instrumental music class to be in Jazz Band. Although this is the only requirement, aside from having an interest in the class, the group's number remains relatively small. The smaller number gives individuals a wider range of personal interpretation of the music.

Returning Jazz Band members enjoy Mr. Wilger's positive outlook. Seth Noseworthy, junior, said, "He's enthusiastic; he really likes Jazz Band. He's having us look at a lot more music, which gives us more experience with different styles."

Introduction to new material and expansion upon those forms leads to one's own interpretation of jazz. Each Jazz Band member's experience influences his style, which adds to the group as a whole

Pit Orchestra: Strings N' Things

By Angel Henning

Central's Pit Orchestra provided the music for the production of The Music Man this fall. The Pit Orchestra was comprised of volunteers who auditioned for their places. According to junior Nels Noseworthy, as many parts as possible were filled, and because of schedule conflicts, some "Pit" members were not enrolled in an instrumental class.

This year eighteen students participated in Pit Orchestra, and they were accompanied by Mrs. Allender. Directed by Mr. Wilger, instrumental music instructor, the group practiced for three weeks from 3:00 P.M. until 4:00 or 4:30 before they joined the cast and crew for rehearsals.

The Pit Orchestra faced and overcame some obstacles this year. Returning members had to adjust to a new director, and all students had problems with the musical score.

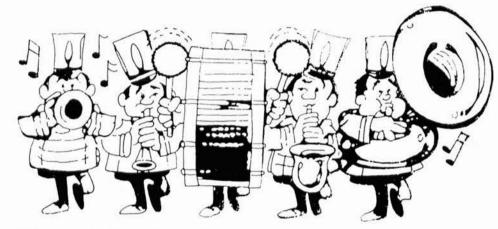

Sydney Foster, junior, said, "It was easy to get used to Mr. Wilger, but it (the music) was challenging for everyone. The music was hard to read; it was all hand-written, and we had to share copies, so everyone couldn't see."

Pit Orchestra takes time and dedication to produce the quality of sound for which Central is known. Nels summed it up best when he said, "It took a lot of time in which most people would be doing homework."

The Music Man visits Central

By Angel Henning

Music Man to Central's stage for four performances this fall. Presented from November 7-9, including a student matinee, it told the tale of Harold Hill, a swindler and pickpocket, and his adventures in River City, Iowa.

Matt Hovde, changes the stubborn townspeople of River City into enthusiastic, fun-loving folk by forming a quartet, a dance group, and a boys' band, even though he does not know anything about music. Harold uses his old trick of the "think system" to "teach" music, and it seems to work. While the town is falling for Harold's antics, he is falling in love with Marian Paroo, the librarian, played by senior Heidi Hausman.

the truth. He professes his love for days."

A railway coach brought The Marian and admits that he knows nothing about music. Marian and the "River Citizians" forgive him when the boys' band arrives, playing for the townspeople by using the "think system."

The cast, crews, directors, and pit orchestra devoted hours of Harold Hill, played by senior rehearsing to the musical's production. Two snow days and a cancellation of the final dress rehearsal almost postponed the performances, but "the show went on," and the student matinee became the final dress rehearsal where all problems were worked

Despite facing numerous problems, the show was a success. Senior Dan O'Dell said, "Even though we all complained about the long rehearsals, I think that was what For once in his life, Harold tells saved us when we had the snow

A Cappella is 'one of the very best in Omaha'

By Angel Henning

A Cappella, Central's largest choir with 95 members, originated in 1930. Students auditioned last spring and were chosen for their sight-reading ability, tone, and voice quality.

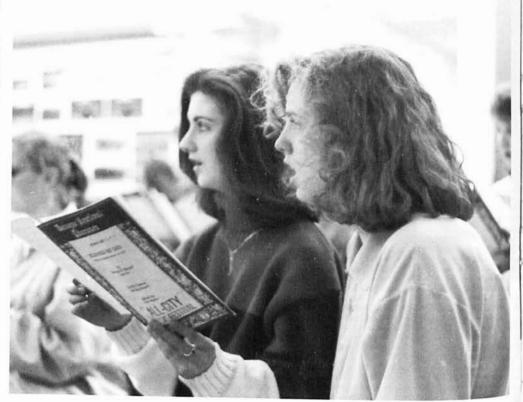

Under the direction of Mr. Finch, the new vocal music instructor, the group generally sang religious and classical pieces. They occasionally sang jazz or popular music for variety.

Jessi Haubrich, senior, said, "We've become a more professional group." A Cappella president Tristian Walker (12) added, "This year's group is much more mature; more are willing to work to make A Cappella better."

A Cappella performed in a winter and spring concert, All-City, and Road Show. They also participated in the District Music Contest in April and went to a contest in Kansas City.

Jessi said, "We've become a better singing group." "The group is one of the best in Omaha," said Tristian. Shannon Malone (11) and Sarah Bahr (12) rehearse their music for All-City. (Photo: Kristen Steenberg)

"You really have to like music to be in Singers," said senior Matt Hovde. This year the group was composed of twenty Singers and junior Michelle Dowd as accompanist. They met third hour under the direction of Mr. Finch, the new vocal music instructor.

Being relatively small in size, the group was able to perform many out-of-school concerts. Their small size did not detract from their vocal power; it instead allowed members to work individually on their accuracy. As a group, Matt said they learned the music quickly and were able to learn a greater quantity of music.

Matt said that this year the Singers were flexible, and the music was varied. At concerts they sang formal madrigals, but they also sang a variety of jazz, pop, and show tunes. This year they concentrated on the music instead of a lot of choreography, letting the music speak for itself.

All CHS Singers must be members of A Cappella, but they are not an elite group. Matt said, "The people are dedicated, and they are doing it (singing) because they like it."

Junior, treble choirs enjoy new leadership

By Rob Anderson

This year's Junior Choir is a large and "enthusiastic" group consisting of about 51 members. This choir, as well as other branches of the vocal music department, are headed by a new member of Central's faculty, Mr. Finch. Mr. Finch is new to Central this year and is in charge of Junior Choir, Treble Choir, A Cappella, CHS Singers, and Mixed Choir.

The Junior Choir meets everyday and works not only as a music class, but a performing group as well. The group consists mostly of underclassmen. Members of the Junior Choir normally plan on continuing their pursuit of vocal music by joining A Cappella as juniors and seniors. Mr. Finch refers to the choir as "a real quality group with a bright future in singing."

The Treble Choir is another vocal music group led by Mr. Finch. The group is small, consisting of nine members. The group's members are of all ages, although most are underclassmen, preparing for work in A Cappella and other groups who perform.

Stagecraft builds support

By Rob Anderson

Have you enjoyed the productions seen here at Central High? Not only the participants are responsible for the excellent programs that Central produces. The stage crew, who are members of stagecraft class, play a large role in the production of the finely polished productions that appear throughout the school year. The stagecrew consists of a highly-skilled group of students who are capable of building, electrical work, sound, and other varieties of technical work. The stagecrew is responsible for large contributions to the musical, play, Road Show, prom, the scholarship auction, nighttime programs, and other various productions put on at Central.

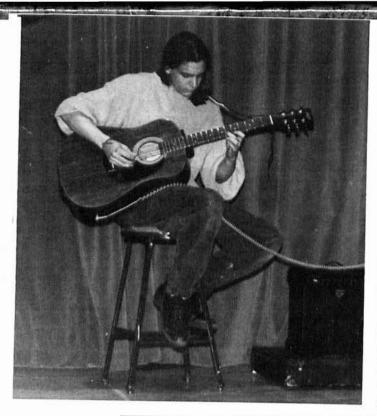

Stagecraft class meets everyday during ninth and tenth hours. During this time the members of stagecrew either construct or go over plans for future constructions. Mr. Larry Hausman, teacher of stagecraft and stagecrew advisor passes on a great deal of technical knowhow to his students. "We are a skilled group and we are capable of producing some fine work," said Mr. Hausman.

Seth Perlman (12) says," Stagecraft is a great class, I've learned a lot!" This seems to be a common feeling for stagecrew members to have. "Stagecraft is a fun and delightful experience, it's also hard work," said Brian Christiansen (10).

Variety makes Road Show 'A Night to Remember'

By Angel Henning

Entitled "A Night to Remember," Central's 78th annual Road Show included changes in management and a new set of rules. Mr. Wilger, instrumental music instructor, directed the show and required all students who tried out to attend one of three meetings that explained the new rules. According to Mr. Wilger, this was "to let students know what was expected of them, and so no one could say that they didn't know the rules."

Once that was out of the way, students auditioned the week after winter break. In hopes that the acts would appeal to more people, a racially balanced group of student judges was selected. With a committee of teachers, they chose 28 acts based on their universality. The abundance of talent appeared in the form of solos, dances, skits, and a variety of music. A Cappella, CHS Singers, Band, Orchestra, and Jazz Band all made their annual appearances.

The after school rehearsals culminated in four performances for which stage crew constructed all of the sets and props. A student matinee was held first through fourth hours on Wednesday, February 26, for S. A. ticket holders; the evening performances began at 7:30 p. m., February 27, 28, and 29.

Rain does not dampen spirits at Christmas Prom

By Angel Henning

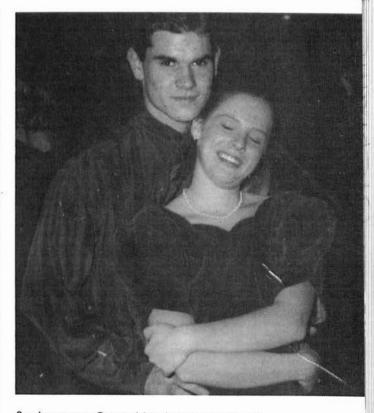

Christmas Prom was held in the Peony Park Ballroom on Sunday, December 22. This year, couples had to fight the wet weather to attend the only formal dance that includes students from all Omaha Public and District 66 schools.

Unlike previous years, a band did not provide the music. The radio station KXKT supplied a disc jockey to play tunes for the holiday couples.

Christmas Prom is the only formal dance for Central students that is traditionally a "Sadie Hawkins" dance. It is a girl's responsibility to invite a guy and pay for the tickets and dinner. Senior Michelle Ludwig said, "If you have someone special, you take him; otherwise you just don't go."

Michelle said the best part was seeing all of her friends in their finest holiday attire. She said, "Everyone looked nice, and there was enough room to dance or talk with friends."

Sophomores Gerard Leahy and Joanna Morley share a special moment apart from the dancers.

"I joined ROTC because I wanted a class that would help me develop my leadership skills," said Karen Bostic (12). ROTC provides Central students with a means of pursuing their military interests. Although some say that ROTC is nothing more than an alternative to gym class, it is Many students much more. become very involved with the activities conducted by the ROTC program. Several students spend a large amount of time on ROTC. "I spend approximately 20-22 hours in the ROTC office a week," said Chad McCarthy (12). The duties of the higher ranking ROTC members can be quite demanding. Dawn Uehling (12) spends approximately "20-25 hours a week" on ROTC.

In addition to the normal activities of the ROTC students, out-of-school time is spent as well. Each year the group spends time at a camp in Ashland, Nebraska. This camp is designed to give the students a taste of military life. "I think it's a wonderful experience that teaches teamwork, discipline, and physical stamina," says Karen Bostic (12).

Under the direction of Major Yost and Sergeant Middleton, the group strives to achieve discipline, leadership qualities and selfconfidence.

Rifle Team shoots up the competition

By Rob Anderson

This year's rifle team consists of an experienced group of cadets. The rifle team competes in several local competitions against other area high schools each year. Last year's team was undefeated and most of the team members remain. "We'll have to be beaten, we won't beat ourselves," said Major Yost. The team also feels they will be "as good as last year."

The rifle team practices daily, both tenth hour and after school. First Sergeant Middleton is in charge of the rifle team. Most of this year's team consists of upperclassmen. The team is positive about this because these older team members have valuable experience. The members of Central's rifle team not only participate to compete, but also to gain merit and awards among the ROTC program. The rifle team is one of the many possible activities available to ROTC members to participate in.

In addition to the rifle team, the ROTC program offers the color guard. The color guard is a highly esteemed group that is responsible for flag bearing at various school functions as well as competition with other schools. Major Yost is in charge of the group.

Drill Team tradition marches on

By Rob Anderson

Central's Drill Team is a well-known and prevalent department within the ROTC program. Members of the Drill Team practice several times a week to prepare for competitions that take place throughout the school year. The Drill Team not only competes with other schools in the metro area, but also competes in a video competition. Each year, the team is videotaped while performing their routine. The tape is then sent to a regional competition.

The Drill Team works not only on marches and structured drills, but also creative endeavors. During competitions, the Drill Team performs normal marching as well as group creations.

The group competes together and in male and female groups at various competitions. Major Yost is responsible for the direction of the Drill Team.

Lock-In and activities make Drama Club more enjoyable

By Walt Buckley

You see a bunch of people sitting in a circle. Someone yells "Murder!" and points at someone across from them. Is this a meeting of some weird cult? No, it is only an average meeting of Central's Drama Club.

According to Shawn Lanz (12), Drama Club president, "We do activities after all of the Drama Club meetings." Alexis Richards (12) said "Interacting with all different kinds of people makes Drama Club great." Drama Club does various activities during the year. The annual trip to World's of Fun and Tiffany's Attic (Dinner Theater) in Kansas City is one such event. Drama Club also attends several plays throughout the year. The Lock-In Initiation in December, and the Homecoming parade were other Drama Club activities.

Thespians gives greater theatrical understanding

By Walt Buckley

Thespians is the "honor society" that coexists with Drama Club. Thespians gives students another opportunity to show thier interest in the theater.

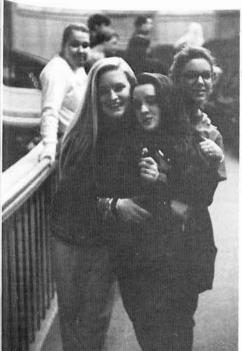

President Matt Hovde says "positive, imaginative people make Thespians what is it." To become a Thespian, the student has to fill out an application including a list of their theatrical experiences. Then the president reviews the application and assigns points for the various activities the student has participated in. Then, if the student has a total of ten points or more, he/she is accepted as a member.

Pegi Georgeson is Thespians sponsor.

"Bona Praeda!" cry of JCL

By Andy Benkis

"Bona Praeda is my goal for this year's Latin Club as well as my own personal objective," said Jamy Champenoy (12). The Junior Classical League has been part of Central High for 88 years. Central's Latin Club is the largest in the state. J.C.L has over 100 members.

This year, J.C.L won the foreign language soccer tournament for the third straight year. J.C.L. also got second place in the Homecoming float competition. JCL activities included a hayrack ride, All-City Roman Banquet, All-City Certaman, a state convention, a dinner at Piccolo's with other High school Latin clubs throughout the state, a volleyball tournament, teaching Latin to elementary students, a trip to Joslyn, Lancers games and a bowling tournament.

The J.C.L. officers were: Senior Consels: Jamy Champenoy (12), and Steve Fontaine (12); Junior Consels: Sean Foster (12), Scott Sheehan (12). Represenatives are: Duncan Joyner (12), Nicole Trotter (12), Mel Hoialmen (12), Jeff Pospisil (12), Mike Buckley (11), Rosetta Scholar (12), Rachel Pettit (12) and Angela McAcy (11). Sean Foster (12) said, "In keeping with the tradition of former Latin Club officers, I plan to follow in Calvin Jones footsteps; since he was such a great leader and all."

The only requirement to join J.C.L. is you must be a current or former Latin student.

The Latin Club is sponsored by Miss Ryan and Dr. Shawver.

German Club grous

By Walt Buckley

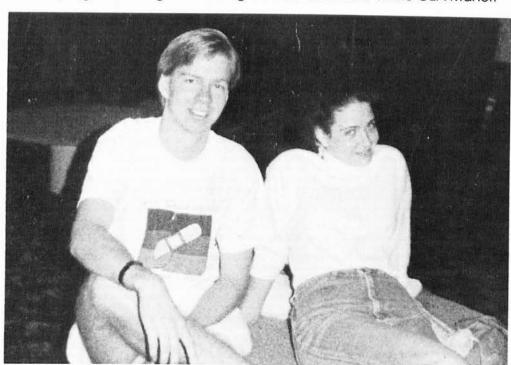

German Club's ranks have doubled over last year, and president Karen Bostic (12) says, "The members and the officers are a lot closer this year and there's more cooperation."

Karen thinks that this year's German Club will be one of the best ever and that "everyone is cooperating to learn and have fun and that is our key to success." Tom Oakes (12) says that "I think German Club provides an excellent outlet for students, like myself, who are interested in the language beyond what the classroom can offer."

German Club again went to the OEA Manor and caroled for the residents

That, along with Student teaching, are some of the activities that German Club did with the community this year.

German National Honor Society is designed for those elite German students who are in their third year of German at Central and have earned the required grades in German. President Pete Thorson (12) says that "GNHS provides a special opportunity to upperclassmen to have a club without worrying about the schedules of underclassmen." Every year GNHS participates in the Project We Care program, a community volunteer service program, and goes caroling with German Club at the OEA Manor.

"You don't want to be taking that picture." says Mary Campbell (11) with Pete Thorson (12) lounging at the German Club Rollerskating Party.

Le Cercle Français enrias la connais culturelle

By: Andy Benkis

"The French Club is a way for French students to enhance their French skills," said Mrs. Fellman, one of the French Club sponsors.

French Club participates with many other clubs in various events. There are over 100 students involved in the French Club. Half of these students also are on committees dealing with certain assigned activities. French Club is a very popular club with the French students and has grown over the last years. Mike Langan French Club president said, "The members are very helpful in giving input for new ideas to improve the French Club." The French Club sponsors are Mrs. Bayer, Mrs. Bascilico and Mrs. Fellman.

French Club activities include: apple picking, progressive dinner, a hayrack ride, ice skating, Christmas carolling, picnics, bowling, skiing, volleyball, a soccer tournament. French Club also took third place in the homecoming parade for their float. Tiffany Lehn (11) said, "My favorite activity that we did was the apple pickin'."

Spanish is a very active club at Central. "Spanish Club gives me an opportunity to meet other individuals interested in the Spanish culture," said Rose Peterson (12). Eric Behrens (12) says, "Being in Spanish Club has made me a born again Spaniard." Eric also said the difference between Spanish Club and the other clubs is that "I am in Spanish Club, not in any other."

"There are a lot more students in Spanish Club this year," said Eric. Rose noted this is because of the club sponsors, "Mrs. Anderson makes all the difference."

Spanish club participated in many extra-curricular activities with other clubs such as a soccer tournament, and a volleyball tournament. Spanish Club also participated in various other activities throughout the year, one of which was Omaha Olè, a city-wide competition for Spanish students.

Along with Spanish Club there is Spanish National Society. In order to be in SNHS, a student must maintain a 93 percent in three semesters and have two positive teacher recommendations. "Being in Spanish Club and in SNHS also looks very good when filling out college applications," said Heather Holland (12).

Spanish Club sponsors are Mr. Dominguez, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Plata. Spanish National Honor Society sponsor is Mrs. Anderson.

FBLA is a club open to students who have taken a business or economics class and are interested in improving their leadership, competitive, training and social qualities.

FBLA activities this year included: help with Honey Sunday, the Toys for Tots Campaign at Central, work at the Sienna Francis House, and work with the Special Olympics. FBLA also attended district, state and national competitions in all areas of business. FLBA also took first place in the Homecoming float this year.

Karen Bostic (12), FBLA president, described FBLA as being "for students who are interested in any and every aspect of business." Mrs. Murphy and Mr. Harkey are FBLA's sponsors.

Having fun; drug free

By Andy Benkis

"Youth to Youth is a club for students that want to have fun and be drug free," said Mr. Herbert, sponsor. Youth to Youth is an organization created to show that students can have fun without using drugs. "The way to be is drug free," said Julie Germer (11). Youth to youth is a club that takes a unique approach to drug abuse and peer pressure of teen-agers in today's society. The objective of Youth to Youth is to promote self confidence and to reduce the effects of peer pressure of drugs.

The club is open to everyone but members must pledge to stay drug-free while they are members.

Activities include lock-ins, a state wide Youth to Youth conferences and a Halloween dance.

Carrie Howard (11) summed it up by saying, "If you take drug's you're missing out on life."

Softball big hit

By Andy Benkis

"Excitement" was the word used by Sara Swisher (10) to describe this year's softball season.

This year central received its first softball club. The club was formed due to the large number of interested girls. A varsity team and three J.V. teams were formed because so many girls showed interest.

Since the Nebraska High School Athletic Association does not recognize softball as an official sport, softball is considered a club. Rose Peterson "I think softball should be recognized as a sport, not just a Central's softball team cannot receive funding from the school's athletic funds because of this. The varsity uniforms were provided by the Metropolitan Sports Foundation. The J.V. uniforms, however, had to be bought by the girls themselves.

Norman Custard is the softball sponsor. The varsity team was coached by Jim Kozak. The J.V teams were coached by the following: J.V Silver, Tom Rassmussen; J.V. Purple, Dave Thomas and J.V. White, Central teacher Tim Herbert. The Softball club officers are: President, Emily Hooi (12); Vice President, Laura Rasmussen (11); Secretary, Anna Thomas (10) and Treasurer, Heather Skinner (12).

Softball cuts were not made due to all the benefits received from the softball organization.

Rose Peterson (12) also made the all state team and Emily Hooi (12) made second team all state.

UCAN promotes unity

By Walt Buckley

UCAN is Central's Club designed to combine students of various cultures and backrounds to form a special club together. The club has an overall membership of around fifteen members. UCAN stands for United Colors and Nationalities.

Among UCAN activities this year were a trip to the Black History Museum and the annual food fair in February held at Central's courtyard.

"UCAN Is a really good club for promoting all the people, but not too many people realize it's there and what the club is about," said Angela Splittgerber (10).

Mr. Eck and Mrs. Eure are UCAN sponsors.

Minority students decide future in engineering

By: Andy Benkis

MACESA is a club designed to help minority students interested in Pursuing engineering as a career and helps their all around academic standings in a attempt to fill the gap in qualified minority standing in the engineering field. MACESA has become more popular at Central this year. The club currently has approximately 25 to 30 members. This growth has enabled MACESA to survive as a club. Two years ago MACESA was almost dropped as a club at Central, but due to the recent Success MACESA can now stay at Central as a club.

MACESA usually has a club meeting every week. MACESA activities include: participating in field trips to utilities districts dealing with engineering and attending camps and seminars.

MACESA sponsors are Mrs. Arroyo and Mrs. Els.

Spike it to 'em

By Andy Benkis

Volleyball was a new club this year, mostly due to the overwhelming demand of guys wanting to play volleyball. The school formed two teams that compete with several other teams around the state.

Boys' volleyball was not a school sponsored activity, but all the players are Central students. The team was funded by the team players. The team had to pay a league fee and a uniform fee. Practices were held at Central, but games have to be played at community centers.

Boys' volleyball was a popular activity at Central and is growing. With the success of volleyball, it could soon become a school sanctioned sport.

Ms. Vicki Wiles was the club sponsor. Ms. Wiles said, "This is a learning process and I see a lot of potential on this team."

Students have many different reasons for playing volleyball. Jeff Gillespie (12) said, "An advantage of playing volleyball is that it keeps me in great physical shape for the upcoming soccer season."

Sean Foster (12) wanted to "spike it down their throat as hard as I possibly can."

Kyle Hovorka (11) said he plays "just for the fun of it."

Todd Coniglio (11) played "to show off to the girls and show them that we can play volleyball."

Latino Student Alliance breaks cultural barriers

By Walt Buckley Andy Benkis

The Latino Student Alliance was a newly formed club. The purpose of the Latino Club is to promote Hispanic awareness. The students learned more about the Latino culture.

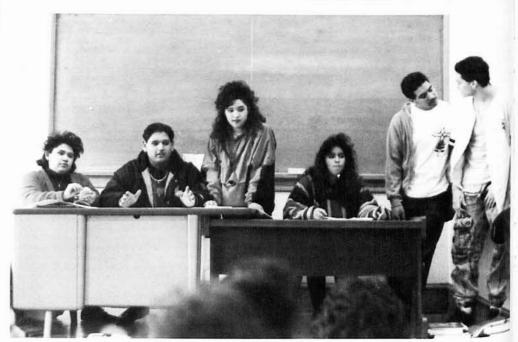

In the Latino Student Alliance students learned how to break the barrier culture and negate outated stereotypes.

Students learn first hand from the experiences of their club sponsor, Mr. Dominguez. Elvis Dominguez is from Cuba and teaches the students of his personal experience of growing up in Cuba, as well as his growing up in the United States.

's 'Bike riding healthy' New Bike Club arrived at Central

By Andy Benkis

The Bicycle Club was a new club introduced at Central this year. The club was introduced due to the amount of students who ride bicycles and wanted to form a club. The club was organized by Mr. Roeder, who is the club sponsor.

Bicycle Club members included: Brian Johnson (11), Adam Nosbisch (10), Doug Liebman (11), Chris Meyer (12), Erik Dickes (11), Zach Hogya (10), Rob Anderson (12) and Eric Behrens (12).

Eric Behrens (12) said, "My favorite thing about bicycling is feeling the breeze whistling by my ear as I speed down hills on my bike."

Josh Cooper (12) and Rob Anderson (12) also participated in BRAN (Bike Ride Across Nebraska) this year which was sponsored by Omaha Pedalers.

Ann Bach (12) participated in RAGBRAI (Register Annual Great Bike Ride Across Iowa), a bike ride across Iowa sponsored by the Des Moines Register.

"Bike Club is fun and has great potential"--Ann Bach (12)

Math Club continues successful ways

By: Walt Buckley

"Rigorousness is meaningless" and "modus poneus" are ways Bryan Campbell (12) describes this year's Math Club. Math Club periodically met after school and most of the members of Math Club were in the Enrichment Math Class that met 6th and 7th hour. In order for some of the students to be in this class, they are allowed to eat lunches during class.

Math Club participated in many math exams during the year. One of which was the AHSME (American High School Math Exam). Central has finished first in the state for the last 34 years in this contest. Math Club is a member of the Atlantic Pacific Math League (ATPAC) and the American Scholastic Mathematics Association (ASMA). Math Club participates in many math contests with these groups. Central's Math Club finished well in both of these leagues.

At the UNL Math Day, students from all of the state took a series of math exams. Central's Pete Thorson (12) finished second in the state and Jan Romberg (12) finished 6th. For finishing second, Pete received a $4000 scholarship to UNL and Jan received a $2000 scholarship to UNL.

Other Math Club activities included math tutoring in the math office and their spring trip to Chicago.

Native American Club organizes

By Andy Benkis

Native American Club was a new club introduced at Central this year. The club members learned about customs, Indian movements and about Indian history.

Native American Club learned a lot from Kathy Peltier (9), who is a Navajo Indian. She teaches from first hand experience about Indian life in the United States.

Eric Behrens (12) said,"Native American Club has taught me alot about my Native American ancestors."

Rose Peterson (12) said "I feel being in Native American Club has helped me fully understand the Native Americans of our country."

Club sponsors were Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Olson.

Three Central High wrestlers have made it to the "Top of the Nation," wrestling camp held each summer in Estes Park . Colorado. Juniors Jason Brilz, James Mullen, and Mike Watkins attended.

The camp, held at a YMCA center about five miles out of Estes Park, had participants from such states as New York, New Mexico, and Colorado.

The camp schedule consisted of many wrestling sessions competitions.

Unlike former years, only three central students attended. Jason Brilz hopes that "more people go out for wrestling," in the future.

Ann,

Eighteen years ago you came to us - 8lbs., 15 oz. of screaming potential. You have come so far and accomplished so much. You've barely started....

Congrats Banana! Go for it.

Love Mom

Lucy,

You always shown to be disciplined when it came to school. As you entered your first years of school you showed signs of being a good student.

So Lucy, keep up the good work and hold on a few more months and you will have accomplished what you had set out to do almost 12 years ago, which is to graduate, and most of all you would have made your parents proud of you.

DECA helps you:

- Do challenging activities.
- * Learn about the American free enterprise system.
- * Learn to think for yourself.
- * Develop "people" skills.
- * Get a head start on life.
- * Get ready to be a business leader through maturity and dedication

Marketing Education-Skills that last a lifetime!

1991 National DECA Champion, Emily Hooi, "DECA gave me more than I ever expected. It was truly a learning experience that I truly enjoyed."

Central High School Marketing currently provides marketing education to over 300 students. It is one of the largest and most successful marketing programs in the midwest. The marketing club, DECA, is available to all students enrolled in Marketing and Fashion Merchandising. The Central DECA Chapter has had state and national medalists every year since 1985. The chapter has earned national titles in management projects and public relation projects. It is currently the only club in Nebraska to have won Pepsi stock for two consecutive years at national competition. Individual state and national winners have earned scholarships and financial awards. Membership in this leadership group can provide you with unlimited opportunities and recognition in the business community while in high school. DECA is a nationally recognized organization with over 200,000 members in the United States, Canada, and U.S. territories.

College graduates in marketing are among the highest paid. In high demand by businesses all across the world, marketing students can choose many different career directions. Marketing Education programs can help you decide which career path to follow and let you know about the steps you'll need to take to reach your goals.

To be a part of DECA's success, see your counselor or talk to a marketing instructor in room 326.

The 1992 O-Book consists of 248 pages, 31 flats. The first two flats are done in full color. The book was completed in six deadlines, beginning in mid-October through early March. Taylor Publishing Company completed this book in Dallas, Texas. The cover is a duro-litho marble screen with a purple dye. The lettering on the cover is debossed Chaucery. The entire book is camera ready with the use of the Macintosh Computers and the Laser Writer. All copy within the book is done in avant garde.

This book would not be possible without the dedication of the entire staff. Special thanks to Mr. Gaherty for his guidance and congratulations for completing his 29th year without missing a yearbook deadline. The staff is: Heather Schacht, editor-inchief; Jennifer Watzke, executive editor; Rob Anderson, activities editor; Angela Henning and Adam Yale, assistant activities editors; Emily Hooi, senior editor; Marni Berger, assistant senior editor; Eve Broekemeier, underclass editor; Jamie Myers, assistant underclass editor; Lori Myers, faculty editor; Christi Klein, assistant faculty editor; Sean Foster, boys' sports editor; Mike Callahan, assistant boys' sports editor; Mel Hoialmen, girls' sports editor; Dana Souser, assistant girls' sports editor; Walt Buckley, clubs editor; Andy Benkis, assistant clubs editor; Anne Bach, business manager; Lucy Garza and Angela Retman, assistant business managers; Connie Braesch, marketing manager; Erinn O'Hara, name checker; and Shanna Whittle, index editor. Thank you to Devin Ferguson for his artwork on the folios.

The yearbook would be incomplete without pictures. Thanks to the photography staff: Kristen Steenberg, chief photographer; Rob Rouch, Chris Meyer, Tim Galligher, Jennifer Dreibelbis, Cheryl Kulus, and Sean Chapman, photographers. The O-Book staff appreciates the work of Jack Martin Photography, Bezy's Photography and Arnold Clark. Thank you also to Mr. Finch, Mrs. Kovarik, Mr. Kubik, DECA, and Ms. Anderson for contributing pictures to various sections. Thanks to Tim James and Chris Becerra for taking the senior class '92 picture. Finally, special thanks to our Taylor Publishing representative, Debra Waterman.

The Central Boys track team is off and running this year. With outstanding performances from Corey Foster in the sprints and Biff Roberts and Josh Cusworth in the hurdles, the team is performing extremely well.

The relay team comprised of John Maaske(12), Bob Franzese(12), Tye Thomas(11), and Tim Petersen(12) compete in the 1600 meter relay and the 3200 meter relay. Bob Franzese(12) says, "The only way we won't win at state is if one of the guys goes down."

With Coach Georgeson as the head of the track team, many of the team members feel they owe their success to him. John Maaske said about the coach, "I like Coach Georgeson. I think he's really nice."

Unfortunately for the team, Chris Heimes(11) sprained his ankle and is unable to compete at his normal pace. Chris runs the long distance races such as the mile and two-mile jaunt. According to Chris, "I really wish I didn't sprain it. I could've done a lot better this year."

The 1991-92 girls track team is off to a running start. The team placed second in the Grand Island relays and fifth in the Burke relays.

According to Coach Georgeson most of the team's strength is in the hurdles and middle distance. Yvonne Andrews, Sarah Briggs, and Becky Tworek are a few of the medalists who participated in these areas.

The size of the track team is thirtyfive students. Traci Warren, senior, feels that the size of the team "influences the performance."

According to Ms. Wiles, assitant coach, This year's team is mainly underclassmen. "It is a young team and I feel like it's a new start. The upperclassmen have to show them the ropes," says Traci Warren.

Some of the changes which Traci feels would improve the team are a variety in events. "There are too many sprinters and not enough people for other events."

The team is looking forward to improving their record and focusing on "rebuilding the team," says Ms. Wiles.

Baseball: "hitting well, playing good defense"

by Jennifer Watzke

"Take me out to the ball game, . . . I don't care if I ever get back."

The varsity baseball team officially began its season March 27. Already, the Eagles have a 2-1 record, their only loss to Milliard North, one of the tougher teams in the metro area.

Varsity coach, Mr. Dominguez, explains the team is balanced, but "we are inexperienced in some of the key positions." He adds, "We're going to score a lot of runs. We have been hitting well and playing good defense." He says pitching seems to be their weakest part.

Both Mario Henderson (10) and Eric Behrens (12) agree that hitting is the teams' main strongpoint. They both feel the team plays really well together.

Scott Sheehan (12) hit at least over 350 last year, according to Mr. Dominguez. Mike Kay (12) has been hitting over 400 already this season. Mr. Domiguez says both of these hitters will score a lot of runs for the team.

Over 120 boys tried out for this year's baseball teams compared to 30 or 40 in the past years. Besides the varsity team, the junior varsity and reserve team began its season.

Junior varsity coach, Paul Blazevich, says, "The boys have a lot of fun together and play well as a team." He says his main job, however, is to get them ready for varsity in the seasons to follow.

Wheras Eric decided to take the season off last year and play again this season, Mario played on the junior varsity team last year and says "it prepared me well for varsity." He adds, "Coach Dominguez is a great coach. He should be in the pros."

Mr. Eubanks coaches the reserve team and is the assistant coach for the varsity team.

Young Golf team right on par

By Rob Anderson and Adam Yale

This year's golf team is comprised of mostly underclassmen. "We have both talent and potential," said Dan Shearer (12). The team's attitude is that of a "giant killer" said Robert McCormack (12). "Our objective is to continue improving as the year progresses so we can make a run at Metro," said Robert. The golfers hope that their determination and perserverance will yield success.

"This group is as good as any I've seen," said coach Jim Galus. "I like their chances."

The future of golf here at Central looks bright in that many underclassmen are showing promise. "We'll definitely be a team to contend with next year," said John Farrell (11). "I hope everyone continues playing in the following months because I think we have a chance."

Tennis team makes a lot of racquet

by Lori Myers

Full of talent, team spirit, and dedication, the 1992 Girls' Tennis team battled towards a successful season.

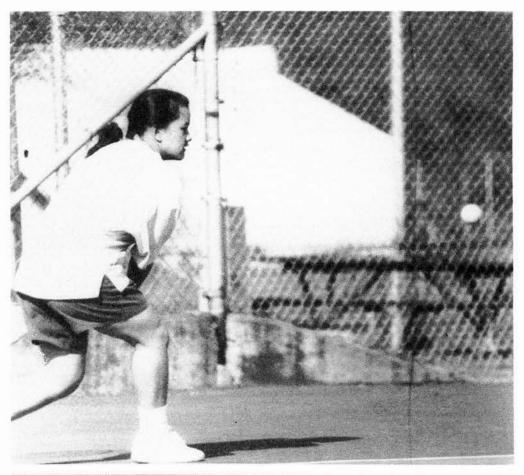

Girls' tennis coach Larry Andrews was confident when he began the season with a hardworking, enthusiastic team. "The girls are fun to work with and are more unified than last year," said Mr. Andrews.

With their goals set on Metro and State, the team practices hard five days a week. Mr. Andrews said that he likes to see the girls practice hard and set expectations for themselves.

Senior Michelle McCune likes how the team works together. "We play hard and treat the new members as equals."

Skill, teamwork, and dedication are just a few elements that led the Girls' Tennis team to a successful season.

Energizing Eagles, they keep going and going and...

by Sean Foster

It began with conditioning and running the 3rd floor. It continued with skill training, hills and unity. It ended with victory.

The girls' varsity soccer team had the energy of the energizer batteries thanks to the conditioning throughout the season. Hills were the main source of the test of physical stamina.

Laura Rasmussen, 11, stated,
"We never got down on each other,

no matter what; we kept going without ever giving up on the team."

"It was a young team that pulled together with experience and the leadership of the seniors brought them together," assistant coach Brad Sortino commented.

The team had four captains for each game. The three permanent captains were seniors, Maggie Boyle, Mel Hoialmen, and Megan Horton. Before each game, they selected a team member who revealed enthusiasm, leadership, and communication on the field to be the captain for the next game.

"This was to push for the morale of the team and it psyches the players up before the game," Maggie stated.

For the first time, the team participated in a tournament. The South Tourney, April 9-11th, proved the lady Eagles to be a tough and lasting team.

by Mel Hoialmen

The j. v. girls' soccer team was "together on the field and always had a good time," according to Laura Rasmussen, 11.

The team was young and not used to working together, but they came together for a productive season.

"I had a lot of fun playing with a team like we had. It was fun because we were out there to learn," Anna Thomas, 10, stated.

"It is not as competitive as varsity, but we still want to win. It just makes the winning more fun," added Laura.

The season started off slow because of the snow storm in April and the previous rain-outs which cancelled many games. The rescheduling of them causes games to be played up to four times per week, and sometimes on Saturday.

Cassie Otto, 10, commented "Our practices were either muddy or in the gym, which isn't too practical."

Let's Play Ball!!!

"Unity is the key to our success."

by Mel Hoialmen

Soccer. A game, no, a religion that many Central students live and die by. So great is the sport on their lives that almost every thought revolves around this effervescent game. To the untrained eye, soccer is a simplistic game that involves the kicking of the ball into the opponent's goal. However, the game of soccer is not that easy, especially on the higher levels.

"Soccer involves the use of your skills to interchange, overlap, and partake in intricate passing schemes to win a game, " said Josh Bahr (12). "Anybody can kick a ball, but only a select few are able to shoot the ball into the upper corner from a dead sprint," he added.

"There are many facets to the game of soccer," stated Jamy Champenoy (12). "Among them are: heading, flicking, shouldering, chest trapping, thigh trapping, shin trapping, passing, shooting, dribbling, and learning how to slide tackle properly with authority," concluded Jamy.

Sean Foster (12) says of the upcoming season,"I think we stand a good chance to qualify for state this year if we can have team unity. This is the key to our success."

Coach Tim Herbert had an optimistic outlook for the season. "I think that the team performed well throughout the season," he stated of the team's stellar year. "The seniors will be missed dearly as they are the best bunch of varsity players that I have ever coached." This was Coach Herbert's first year at the helm of the varsity squad.

Team members included: Sean Foster (12), Jamy Champenoy (12), Josh Bahr (12), Jeff Gillespie (12), Andy Benkis (12), Keith Caven (12), Steve Fontaine (12), Brian Goeser (12), Zach Urwin (12), Mike Langan (12), Mark Thylin (12), Owei Belleh (12), Seth Farrington (9), Alex Matos (11), Jeff Berg (11), Ian Barnes (10), Zach Hogya (10), Alfredo Franco.

J.V. Soccer Kicks

By Sean Foster

This year's junior varsity soccer team is full of promise. Under the tutelage of first year coach Frank Tworek from Norris Jr. High, the junior varsity team improved throughout the season.

"Many of the players are from Lewis and Clark," said Ben Cruz (9). "I think it helps us in that we get to play with kids older than we are," he added.

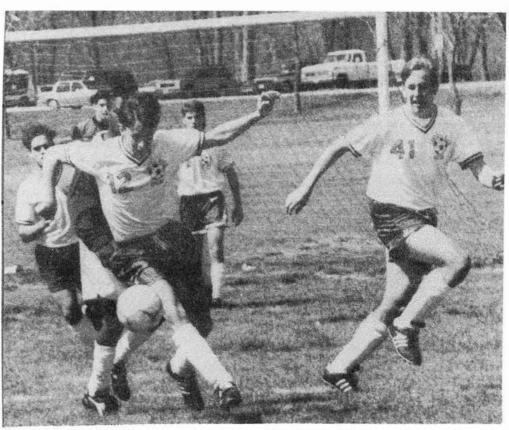

Dominique DiGiacomo (9) said of this year's team, "It (playing with the j.v. team) is giving us a chance to ease into the high school type of play. Playing high school soccer is a whole different game than in junior high."

Kyle Hovorka (11) looks forward to next season on the varsity squad. "I am looking forward to playing on next year's team. We did well this year for being so young, but I think that next year we can improve."

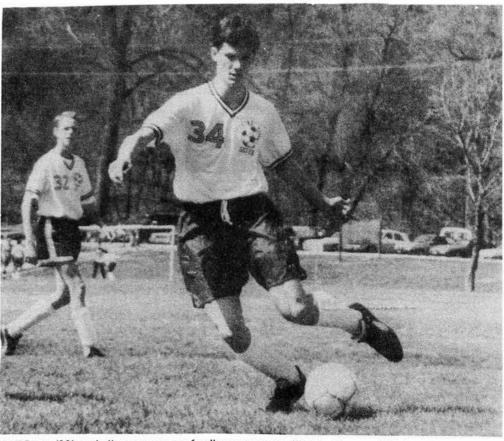

The junior varsity soccer team faired well this past season and continued to improve throughout. All the players are looking forward to a shot on the varsity team next year as twelve seniors are graduating.

William Gleason titled his play The Pink Panther Strikes Again, but this spring was the first time it was performed on Central's stage. The play follows the humorous escapades of the Chief Inspector of the Surete, Jacques Clouseau. Portrayed by senior Thomas Rose, Clouseau often finds himself facing death at the hands of international assassins, including the beautiful Russian agent, Olga Berriosiva. Throwing caution to the wind, Olga, sophomore Nicole Blizek, finally lets herself fall in love with Clouseau.

With over 70 cast members alone, a total of 134 students was involved in the production. Mrs. Georgeson, director and drama teacher, said, "This is the largest cast I've ever worked with in all my years at Central."

Freshman Damion Smith said, "I don't ever think there was a problem. Working with a large cast is fun, and you get to know a lot of people." Kevin Cody (11) stated, "The people are all very professional; everybody is very supportive."

The blossoming romance of Clouseau and Olga evolved into three performances. A student matinee was held on Thursday, April 30, first through fourth hours. The evening shows were held at 7:30 on Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2.

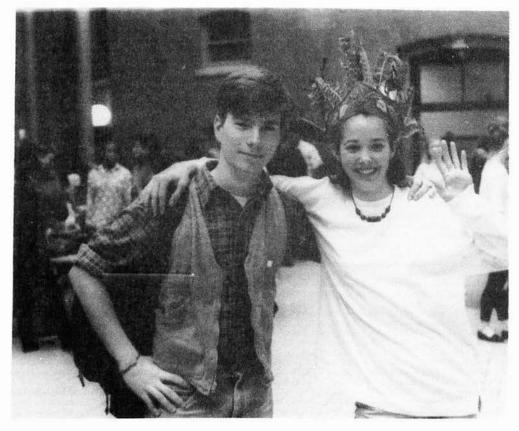

A mentally ill patient, Wayne Rasmuss (11), thinks he is an Indian, who is trying to kill Clouseau, Thomas Rose (12).

"It's the most exciting time I've had since birth," said Robert Rouch, senior, in regard to senior spirit week. Senior spirit week was held March 16 through March 20 and gave "seniors an opportunity to show their senior pride," said Senior Class President Tom Rose. This year's spirit days included: Pajama Day, Green Day, Lone Ranger and Tonto Day, Disco Day, and Purple and White Day.

Unfortunately, not everyone was satisfied with the daily themes. Randi Carey, senior, felt that "more people would have gotten into it if there would have been variety in the days picked." Although some people always dressed up, Josh Bahr, senior class officer, was "disapointed in the way the seniors displayed their lack of spirit." Senior Lisa Gomez added, "Hardly anyone dressed up for it when it's supposed to be a senior thing."

For the most part, people thought that the week went well. Robert Partridge, senior, said, "It was really swe!! seeing all the seniors in their fancy garb, dressed up and full of spirit."

Military Ball recognizes the excellence of ROTC

By Jamie Myers Dana Souser

Senior Maurcey Clark was chosen to represent Central as Batallion Commander. Maurcey was also chosen Brigade Commander. There are seven positions in the Batallion but only one is awarded Brigade Commander.

Maurcey was the first Brigade Commander from Central since 1988. She was in charge of over 400 cadets and coordinated the Brigade Review which took place in May.

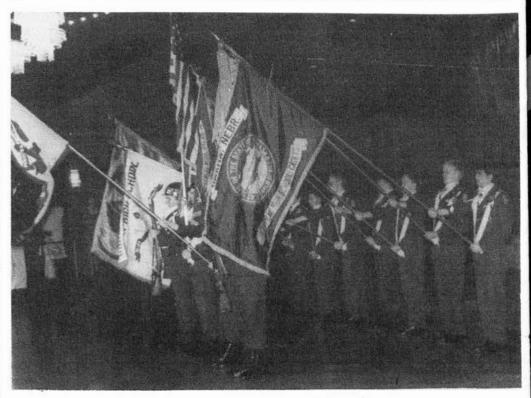

This year the Military Ball was held in the Peony Park Ballroom on March 12, 1992. The Military Ball is a ceremony in honor of senior cadets and staff members.

The evening began with the announcement of the cadets and their escorts. Other ceremonies were the flag presentation and entertainment presented by North High School.
