Now is the Time

In the early years of life is the time to learn to save. It's easier to learn then than after habits of extravagance are formed. The boy who spends his pennies foolishly will spend his dollars foolishly if he ever has any. Buy the boy a bank and teach him to save something. He'll be glad of it when he is older and wants to go into business for himself.

Pennies make dollars and dollars make a man independent.

WHY IS IT THAT girls are always chaperoned? Why should not the actions of boys be criticized more severely? If ever anything occurs a little out of the ordinary it is always the girl who is talked about, the girl who is reprimanded, and the girl who is punished. The boy—oh, well, he is all right, we expect such things from him. Perhaps in the near future things will be reversed a little. Gradually woman has climbed up and is on a level with man. Is it not reasonable to suppose that some time she will rank above man? Then perhaps the boys will be preached to, the boys will always be cautioned about their actions, and the boys told to beware of that monster—girl. Won't that be grand? The boy always looks on the girl as a poor weakling in need of protection. In that coming age, will not the boy look up to the girl for support?

This may be ideal, and girls may wish, sometimes, that it were so, but let us hope that in their more sensible moments, they will say, "Oh! that this may never, never, come to pass." There is, however, a gentle hint contained in this, which it might be wise for the persons to whom it applies (not boys only) to take.—B. C. '03.

BEGINNING WITH next month's issue, two new departments will be added to the REGISTER—Dramatic and Musical. In the Dramatic department will be found criticisms on all the entertainments and programs given in the school, excepting the musical numbers; these will be dealt with in the Musical department. Although we have always had very good programs, we aim, by means of these new departments, to have still better ones—for whether the criticisms are favorable or not will depend entirely upon the merits of the program. Miss Helen Buckingham will have charge of the Dramatic column; the musical editor will be announced next month.

The class spirit shown by the Juniors and the Seniors this month is something that all may be proud of in one respect, and is something that ought to benefit the school. But when class spirit, instead of being a benefit becomes a detriment to the school—then class spirit should cease for above class spirit should be school spirit and the love of our Alma Mater. The extent to which class spirit has been carried lately has seriously interfered with the good work of the school and any sensible mind can see it has reached the limit. There is a time and place for all things, and if class supremacy must be established, wait until the real contests come—wait until our Athletic Carnival.

FIRST AMATEUR PAPER IN OMAHA.

It doubtless will be interesting for the readers of this publication to read about the first one of its kind published in Omaha.

It was in the early seventies when the first issue of a tiny publication, "The Excelsior," was struck off on the proof press of the World-Herald office.

Its eleven year old editor and proprietor, "Clemie" Chase, had, ever since learning to read, haunted the printing offices near his home and watched the compositors. The men often let him set up letters to his friends, which he would compose as he went along and afterward print on the little proof press. He soon began to print a paper of his own. His parents, thinking he would lack perseverance enough to keep up the paper for long did not assist him much in the enterprise. Thrown on his own resources he obtained some old worn out type from the Herald office, made a case for it, and put together a "stick" or type holder of tin. With these rather crude implements he set up the first number of The Excelsior.

It was a very small paper, being only three inches long by as many wide, printed on one side of the paper only. But true to its name, the next issue was twice the size and printed on both sides of the paper. The Excelsior increased in size almost every issue after that.

As the price was not prohibitive, being for a long time, 15 cents per year and later on only 25 cents, the little monthly had quite a circulation among Omaha children and "grown-ups" too.

At this time the sixty pupils composing the High School occupied only the three rooms on the south end of the second floor of what is now the West Building. The rest of the old building was the Central School.

The Excelsior printed most of the happenings of interest both in the Central and the High School for seven years, during which time it grew to be a four page publication.

In 1877 it closed its career as an amateur paper with the record of being the oldest amateur paper in the United States, of not having lost on a single copy, and with a subscription list of 1,200.

THE OLD HALLS.

Have you ever stopped to wonder, as you pass along the halls Of that older high school building on the hill.
 Oh, what strange and wondrous stories
 they might tell to you or me,
 If we listened, but of course we never will.

Would they tell us of the pupils that they knew long years ago,
 In the days when they were young like you or me?
 Would they tell us of the teachers and their classes do you think Or of whom or what would all their stories be?

They might tell us of those seniors who are men and women now, Or of freshmen who once trod their upper floors,
 They might tell us of those graduates
 who, into that unknown, Called the future, have passed through their open doors.

They might tell us of weird legends or might sing us happy songs,
 All recalled from out the long forgotten past,
 They might keep on telling stories,
 strange, as long as we would hear,
 And each might seem stranger than the last.

We can verily but guess what they might reveal to us,
 Of that grand old high school building on the hill,
 Or what strange and wondrous stories
 they might tell to you or me,
 If we listened, but of course we never will. —H. W. '03.

MARCUS BRUTUS.

In the play "Julius Cæsar," the character which stands out above all others is Marcus Brutus. As leader of the conspiracy against Julius Cæsar his character is strongly contrasted with that of Cassius, another of the conspirators. It is the purpose of this essay to portray the character of Brutus by showing its weakness and its strength when compared with the character of Cæsar and Cassius.

In many ways Brutus was like the great Roman whom he helped to assassinate. Both men were calm in time of danger, unemotional and reserved.
 Both were proud. Brutus had a modest pride in his ancestors. Cæsar possessed a haughty and arrogant, even kingly pride. Both men were patriotic and thought they were serving their country, though Cæsar at the same time was gratifying his personal ambition and Brutus was weakly yielding to his ancestral pride. In direct contrast to the character of Brutus was that of Cassius.
 These two men belonged to different schools of philosophy which accounts for their difference in thought and action.
 Brutus at all times was calm, unperturbed and unemotional, while Cassius was hasty, excitable and easily angered. His excitement was shown on the morning of the assassination of Cæsar when he said, "Casca, be sudden, for we fear prevention, Brutus, what shall be done?"
 Brutus coldly and calmly replied, "Cas-sius be constant."

Cassius was impetuous and adopted plans hastily and often rashly. Brutus entered into plans with deliberation and forethought. Before he joined the conspiracy against Cæsar, he had, in a long struggle with himself, come to this conclusion: "It must be by his death." In their judgment of men, Cassius was far superior to Brutus. His knowledge was gained through actual contact with men, while Brutus, who was a great student, gained his knowledge from books. Cæsar said of Cassius, "He looks quite through the deeds of men," and this same knowledge of men stood him in good stead many times, while Brutus made many mistakes because he did not understand men.

Brutus had a high sense of honor; he once said in a conversation with Cas-sius:

"Set honor in one eye and death in the other, and I will look on both indifferently: For let the gods so speed me as I love the name of honor more than I fear death."

Cassius had a low sense of honor and his motive for entering the conspiracy was quite different from that of Brutus.
 Cassius was jealous of Cæsar's power, and it did not please him to be an "underling" or to realize that,—

"Cæsar is now become a god and Cas-sius is

A wretched creature and must lend his body,

If Cæsar carelessly but nod on him."

The most noble trait in Brutus was his patriotism, a virtue which Cæsar lacked. The trait in Brutus led him to enter the conspiracy against his friend, which act he explained by saying:

"Not that I loved Cæsar less but that I loved Rome more."

If Brutus had not possessed that one great weakness, family pride upon which Cassius cleverly played, and if he had realized the wise words of Cassius:

"Therefore 'tis meet
 That noble minds keep ever with their likes

For who so firm that cannot be seduced?"

we should not have Brutus as portrayed by Shakespeare, the leader of a conspiracy against the greatest Roman the world has ever known.

JESSIE L. WILLIS.

Now that our sorely troubled minds are at rest in regard to football, we take up the next sport in the annual routine.

This year's Basket Ball team bids fair to be the best ever supported by the Omaha High School. Every night after school, in the erst-while girls' gymnasium some two dozen enthusiasts of the manly sport work flesh off their bones in trying to "make the team."

Several interesting out-of-town games have been scheduled and it is to be hoped that Basket Ball will receive the hearty support it deserves.

The schedule for local games is as follows:

Bellevue at Omaha Jan. 30th.
Lincoln at Omaha Feb. 27th.
Sioux City at Omaha March 27th.

The candidates for the team are:

Forwards: Cherrington, Thomas, Devalon and Laubach.

Center: Meyer and Cooper.

Guards: Kelley, Walsh, Patterson, Durkee and Goodman.

The O. H. S. Bowling Team, organized early in December by Howard Barnard, has so far acquitted itself with great credit to the school and to the members of the team. Being a comparatively new sport, not only to the High School but to Omaha, this branch of athletics may be cried down by some, but those who know it in its best form can truthfully say that it is one of the cleanest and most enjoyable of sports.

The team has so far won fourteen out of twenty-one games. Two matches have been played with Fremont High, each team winning on its home alleys. The loss of the match at Fremont was due unquestionably to the absence of two of the team's steadiest bowlers, Pierce and Sterricker.

The average of the "Regulars" up to date are:

Benson	.....18	2847	158	198
Greenleaf, captain	..21	3296	157	200
Pierce	.....14	2126	152	199
Sterricker	.....15	2269	151	201
Munger, Mgr.	.....18	2627	146	187
Team average	....86	13165	153	201

Now that the football season is over we can look back on the record of our pigskin heroes with a feeling akin to regret. We hate to say it, but almost "all was lost save honor." However the season served to develop enough raw material to promise a good reliable team for next year.

There is considerable interest in ping-pong in the O. H. S., but it would be criminal to treat it under the head of "Athletics."

The girls are back to Gym work again in real earnest after vacation. The apparatus is not yet in use by the girls hope it will be in a few weeks. Basket ball has not been begun but teams are being formed now, and the girls hope to be champion players soon. Exercise is essential to all and a great opportunity is given the girls in the gymnasium. The only expense is the cost of the suits. The exercises are such that develop all the muscles. The girls are very enthusiastic over their drills and game. At first they made a great deal of noise but all that has been prohibited because it disturbs other classes. Miss Macomber is very much liked by all of the girls and they are always anxious for "gym" hour to come. The mistakes that the girls make are generally in "right and left facings." The girls forget which is left and which is right. But they make fewer of these now than at first and show much improvement under Miss Macomber's directions.

B. J.

TO SEVENTH HOUR.

I'm called upon to give a toast,
I hope you'll think it's not a "roast,"
O, would that I but had the power To 'nihilate Thee,—Seventh Hour!
Thy name we cannot but detest
For when we've done our very best,
To have our lesson and be good,
We're often quite misunderstood,
And from a teacher, given power,
We hear this sentence,
"Seventh Hour!"
It falls upon the ear like death,
Because it takes away the breath,
It robs us of a trip down town,
And causes many an ugly frown.

Thou art indeed the "Bogie-Boo"

That scares the Freshman, through and through.
For them thy terror most excel—
An office call, we all know well.
The Sophomores fear thee less, they say,
They get thee almost every day.
The Juniors will not look on thee
With pleasant thoughts in memory.
The Seniors tell no tale of woe
Of past experience, "don't you know!"

Yet after all, we must admit Thou are considered to be "It!"
Without thee, what would teachers do?
Just ask assistant Miss McHugh, She'd say that school would surely be
A novel thing—for lack of thee!

ERLA CORAL, '03.

The Ex-Officers' Club gave a delightful hop at Metropolitan hall Thursday evening, January 1st, 1903.

The Seniors will give a hop February sixth at Metropolitan Hall.

Miss McHugh has arranged for a series of Saturday afternoon teas to be given by the Senior class. The first one will be given Saturday afternoon, January seventeenth.

So far the P. G. S. has been entertained by Madeline Hillis at an informal reception and by Sadie Bernstein at an afternoon.

Mr. Waterhouse has formed the Lincoln Debating Society for the benefit of freshmen boys who are interested in debating.

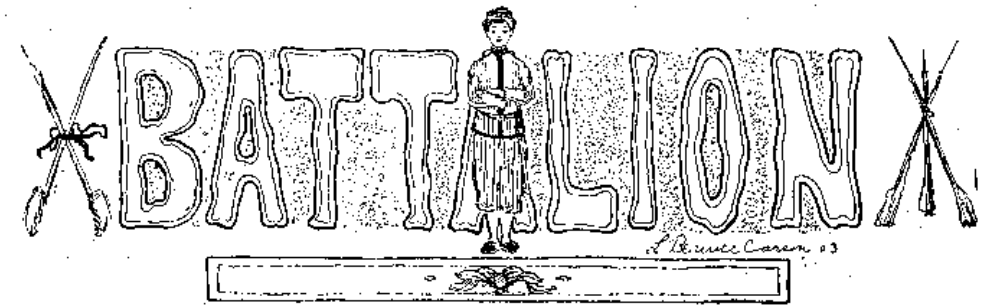

There were a number of interesting program meetings given by different societies just before the holidays, also a very enjoyable musicale given by the Band.

A number of societies are planning to hold elaborate program meetings in the near future. Among them are the Browning, Elaine, P. G. S., Clio, and Alice Carey Societies.

The High School was honored by a few selections from the Oberlin Glee Club while the Club was in town.

Miss Ester Cockran entertained the Alpha Beta Gamma very delightfully at a "Kensington."

Miss Olive Carpenter entertained a number of her High School friends at a most delightful party, at her home Monday evening, Dec. 29th. One of the most enjoyable features of the evening was an auction in which all participated. We would not dare to mention here the article purchased, in one case, for the awful sum of eight hundred dollars. If the boys and girls do not know the profile of one another's countenance, it is to be wondered at, since they partook of such a deep study of the same.

The reappointment of Mr. J. M. Tompsett, by the Board of Education, to the position of Commandant of the Cadet Battalion, was the signal for general rejoicings on the part of all of the cadets.

To all those who appreciate strict military discipline and the good it does, Mr. Tompsett's worth as a Commandant is at once recognized.

Thursday, Dec. 4th, Mr. Tompsett called a meeting of all commissioned and non-commissioned officers. The object of this was to decide whether to reorganize the "School of Instruction" again this year. All agreed that it was a benefit to the High School battalion in every respect, and by a unanimous vote it was decided to reorganize. The following officers were elected. Captain, J. M. Tompsett, unanimous; First Lieutenant, Ernest Kelley, unanimous; Second Lieutenant, Roy Sunderland, unanimous. Mr. Tompsett reserved the right to appoint the sergeants at his own discretion.

It was decided that the "School of Instruction" should be held every Monday, half of the time to be devoted to an oral "quiz," the rest of the time to instructions in the Manual.

The private who studies his tactics assiduously, has under the new system, as good a chance as any man in the battalion to secure advancement. Promotions in the future will depend upon efficiency in drill, and that only.

At the first meeting of the Cadet Officers Club, Commandant Tompsett, Captain Kelley and Lieutenant Meyer were appointed a committee to arrange for the annual encampment.

Instructions in the Manual of Arms will commence in about three weeks.

The following orders, both general and special, have been published.

HEADQUARTERS SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION.

Exchanges

A number of new exchanges have come to our table this month and we extend to them a hearty welcome. We have exchanges from the four extremities of the United States, namely Texas, Washington Wisconsin and Massachusetts.

By the cover of the Reflector one might be led to suppose there was a paper famine. But the old saying: "Do not judge a book by its cover," fits well.

The Voice from Chicago, one of our most welcome visitors, contains a very interesting story, and the paper is, as a whole, well gotten up.

The December number of the Pedestal contains a story which has an excellent moral to it.

The Argus from Bloomington, has a very artistic color of purple and gold. The prize story, "An Unexpected Christmas Present" is very interesting.

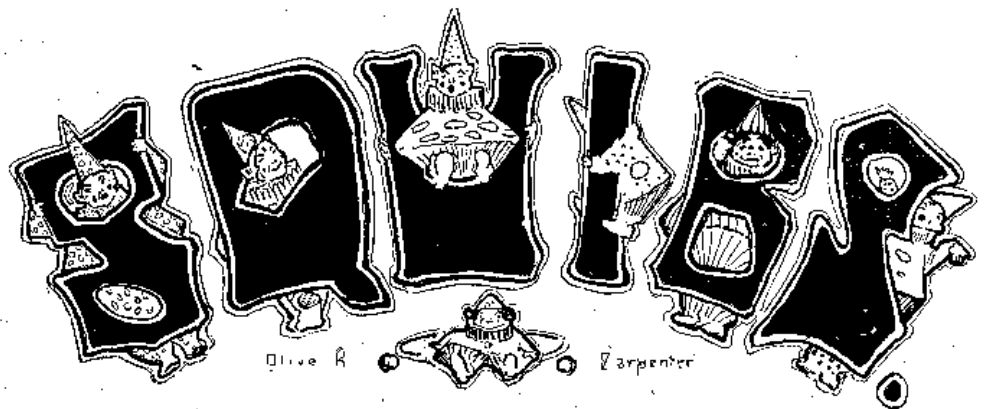

The Student from Covington has a very suggestive cover for the December issue.

The Olympia High School, to all appearances, has a number of people attending it who will surely become prominent in the literary world.

We would suggest that everyone read the article "On the Gentle Art of 'Butting In'" in the High School World.

One of our new exchanges is the Ball High School Review from Galveston, and we hope to have the pleasure of reading it again in the near future.

Margaret almost "Krieder" eyes out when he left her classes.

Quite a change, Harris, from B(ad) company to crack company.

Bernie Johnson has a fancy for a certain "Kid!"—"Kidder" about it!

Why do the Juniors hold on to their colors? Because they are not fast.

Mr. Bernstein: "If you think so every body please raise my right hand."

Frank Willy was up in the tower the other night, that's as high up as he will ever get.

If a LITTLE knowledge is a dangerous thing, then the Juniors are to be feared.

The signal corps believes in signs, while the band believe in blowing themselves.

Fred Thomas had the "ringing of the ears." The cause of it was Mer(ely-a) "Bell."

Wanted—a bid to the Senior Prom;—$25.00 reward. Inquire for particulars at the office.

Look out for May. M., she has a very contagious malady, the "blues." She "blew" herself.

Though Paul Werner has left school, he still has a lively interest in it. He Grace-fully remembers us.

Miss Pfeiffer (1st hour): "Now let us hear what the girls have to say about it. Bert Minor may rise."

Higgins: "Chaffee looks crushed,—as if he had something heavy on his mind."

Wallace: "A thought, perhaps."

If the boys expect-to-rate as gentlemen, they will please not expectorate on the floor, or walls of the library.

The Juniors should only wear yellow as they are green enough to make the combination "green and yellow."

Professor: "What English words are taken from 'due' and 'tres'?"

Simply Green: "Deuce and tray."

Creedon the circus wonder with his vegetable head. He has reddish cheeks, a turnup nose, carrotly hair and a sage look.

Why is R. Hart like a volcano? He has a large "creator" in the middle of his face and belches forth gases and hot air.

R. West: "What are you trying to do with all these dictionaries?"

Stanley R.: "Am looking up words of love to tell ———."

There is just one hope for Lowney, and that is he take some "Bleaching Powder" and begin life anew with a clean white record.

Miss Paxson (3rd hour): (Bellis being fixed). Class dismissed. Wait—perhaps -- ! -- ? - ? ! ! GIRLS take your seats. Why where are those "giddy" senior boys?

We all have our sorrows and joys, but you ought to see Joy's little joy:— Yelmont Yap!

(To receive correct inspiration read backwards.)

They were talking about trees: "My favorite," B. said, "is the oak. It is so noble looking, so magnificent in its strength. But what is your favorite?" "Yew," K. replied.

"Why is it, Jim, that Al Fairbrother can be heard less distinctly when he plays alone than when he plays in the band?" "Why, I didn't know it was so—suppose it must be because he plays so-lo!"

Physics teacher (to Effie): "Give me an example that to every action there is an equal and contrary reaction."

Effie: "At first an owner breaks his race horse, than the race horse breaks his owner."

"Walter," screamed the sophomore girl, seated beside her deaf lover, "leave me along!" Walter astonished cried, "Why, I ain't a-touching you!" "No," replied she, "but you might have done—if you liked."

"Isn't it a shame, Earl?" asked Mr. Waterhouse, "This is your second year in one class."

"Shame?" said Earl, "my teacher is twelve years already in the same class, and nobody thinks it is a shame."

School-teacher (to freshman in philosophy class): "How many kinds of force are they?"

Freshman: "Three."

Teacher: "Name them."

Freshman: "Bodily force, mental force and police force."

Tommy Van—hung up the mistletoe and swore he would kiss the first woman that passed under it.

The first woman that passed under was the colored cook.

Did he kiss her? No! Nobody dares to take any liberties with the cook.

Harris: "Talk about cheap postage rates! Why, the other day I saw 350 pounds going for a two-cent stamp."

Devalon: "You must have been dreaming."

Harris: "A stout lady asked me for a stamp, but I did not have one."

Teacher: "What is the past of sec?"

John: "Seen."

Teacher: "No, it is saw, now remember that."

John: "All right. Then if a sea-fish swims by me, it becomes a saw-fish when it is past, and can't be seen."

Little Johnny (coming home from school tired and hungry): "May, mayn't I have some jelly?"

"No," said the mother sternly.

Johnny: "Mayn't I have some pie?"

"No," again replied his mother.

A few moments later Johnny was seen eating both jelly and pie. "Didn't I tell you not to touch them?" asked the surprised parent. "You said no twice, ma, and my teacher says two negatives are equal to an affirmative, so I thought you meant that I should eat them."
