Who can prove to your satisfaction that all your laundry troubles will cease at once if you have your linen finished

The New Way

We Press Shirts—do not iron them. Our Press Machines have one motion, i. e., upward pressure, and just enough of that to give a soft, even finish to the shirts. The old method of ironing them stretched upon a moving board and then passed back and forth under a heavy, heated iron roller destroys the linen in a short time. It cost us a lot of money to throw out the old machinery and install a complete set of Press machines, but we are now doing the best work in town and are able to satisfy the most critical. Ask your friend, who has his work done here, about us.

"What Would You Do if You Were a High School Graduate?"

—is the question that was asked of Civil Engineer Dangerfield Wanton.

"Well, first of all, I'd roll my High School Diploma under my arm and walk over and enroll in a good business college.

"There is no use talking, a business college education is the thing necessary if any man designs to be and truly desires to be a leading Civil Engineer, Architect, Lawyer, Doctor, or what not. To my mind, no man can become a leading man in any line of trade or any profession unless and until he has had a thorough training in a thorough business school.

"If I had had a thorough training in such a college as

BOYLES COLLEGE

I would have made a good living the first year I started in business for myself instead of just clearing my expenses. I would have known business principles and would have been conversant with money-making methods that I never learned until months after I started in business for myself.

"When my boy graduates from the High School, he is going to get a good business college training before he gets anything else. He is not going to be handicapped like I was."

A knowledge of Business Principles is essential to anyone entering any business or any profession. Primarily, you are working "for the money there is in it." You'll get that honestly and honorably, but you do want to get it—you do want to be considered so proficient in your profession and so business-like in your dealings that patronage will naturally come your way.

To gain the best knowledge of business principles—of keeping straight all the multifarious affairs of your business, go to the best business college.

That is necessarily the best business college to which the best and most business concerns turn for their business assistants. The business concerns have by their overwhelming applications for business assistants from Boyles College proved that Boyles College graduates are the best business men and women and that Boyles College is the best college for any young woman or young man who intends to equip herself or himself with a sound knowledge of sound business principles, to attend.

BOYLES COLLEGE,

H. B. BOYLES, President.

Athletics in the High School.

By A. H. WATERHOUSE, PRINCIPAL.

To adjust athletics in the High School so that there is perfect harmony between the enthusiasts in athletics, the student body, and those who are charged with securing and maintaining a high standard of academic work, the faculty, is one of the difficult questions in school management.

The difficulty arises probably from misconceptions on the part of both the student body, especially those who are the most directly interested, the players themselves, and the faculty. On the part of the players and of their immediate supporters, the natural tendency of youth to become thoroughly absorbed in the matter of immediate interest unfortunately many times causes the neglect of that attention to school work reasonably expected of them. The result is that too frequently the studies are neglected, and when the teachers become insistent in securing better work, the players assume that because there is not more leniency the insisting teacher objects to his being in athletics. On the part of the faculty, the natural tendency of efficient workers in a specific line to become absorbed in that line alone causes a neglect of the fact that it is not athletics proper which causes unsatisfactory work on the part of the participants, but a waste of time and energy in the assumed demands of it.

Both the players and the teachers can do much to reduce the diffaculties. The players should wisely hold to the fact that the schools are maintained, not for the purpose of fostering athletics as a major interest, even for a limited number, but for the purpose of securing to all of those who attend the most profitable expenditure of time and effort in such work as will the most contribute to later efficiency. They should endeavor so to adjust their practice for and participation in games as the least to interfere with the real objects of the school. If they would do so they would find that ordinary practice would not interfere with the study hours to such an extent as to cause weakening failures. Sometimes, of course, when there is a hard game on it is conceivable that there may be days once in awhile when lessons will suffer somewhat, but the true athlete, the one who can and wants to hit the line hard, will when the athletic game is off, hit the line to be translated, or to be interpreted, or to be written, or the problem to be solved, or the experiment to be made, whether in advance, or delayed because of extra practice, just as willingly and as hard as the line of the opposing team. The teachers should, and would readily, and, in most cases, at once see that such athletes are a real help to the school and would more and more stand with the teams who so well uphold the good name of the school not only on the athletic field, but in the academic as well.

It is a pleasure, at this time, to make acknowledgment that athletics in the Omaha High School this far this year has been of the high type so nearly ideal. The season has but closed the football series of the games, but so well have the boys met the highest expectations of the faculty in the quality of their athletic work, in their character as hard but absolutely square players, in their bearing as gentlemanly representatives of the high school, in their thoughtful attention to visiting teams, not only thereby enhancing the reputation of the high school for hospitality, but that of Omaha as well, and in their attention to their studies, that we feel that it is almost impossible for the other teams to follow to fall below the standard.

While there is not the slightest intention to render to any less than the praise due for a prosperous and pleasant beginning of the year, we do feel that to two members of the team is owing much of the better understanding and adjustment of athletics in the High School, viz.: to Captain Frank Latenser and to student coach, Merle Howard. Many times it has been the wish of the office to communicate with the team on matters of plan or purpose, and there has always been on the part of these a hearty concurrence in those things for the good of the school and the team. This would, of course, have been impossible had there not been concurrence on the part of the players.

Basket ball is now next before us. This should have a hearty support from not only the student body, but the faculty as well. There is a series of hard home games to play and as in football, the games are the best played when there is the presence of a large crowd of school backers.

It is hoped that this year more than any heretofore there will be an interest in the track meet. Last spring it was shown that with all of the interest in football and in basket ball, there was nothing so general in interest and in participation as the track meet. This year this should be made a whole school event. If there are any who have no interest in this they should be seen, and if possible, interested. A day in the bright sunshine, a day in the midst of contest and enthusiasm, a day to test our ability to uphold our standard with other schools, would surely be a day of pleasure.

It is a matter of regret that the great game of base ball cannot be self-supporting any more. This condition is found not alone in Omaha, but in most school and colleges. Its decadence as a school sport is not owing to the fact that it has lost its general drawing power, but to the fact that it is played more universally by teams outside the schools than any other game in which schools engage. This being true, the professional, the semi-professional, the amateurs, and the corner lot players, all tend to take the cash and to satisfy the interests of those who would otherwise patronize the school games.

With such excellent performance for the fore part of the year, and with such fair promise for the remainder, here is New Year's greeting of the faculty to the athletically inclined student body, coupled with an assurance that the faculty will honor any draft upon their interest and assistance so long as the drawers of the draft will keep up the good record made thus far this year.

Samuel Brown Millard

Died Jan. 6, aged 18 years.

The announcement of Sam Millard's death came as exceedingly sad news to his many friends.

Sam Millard graduated from the Omaha High School in the class of '06, he was beloved by all, being a special favorite with the men of his company and the members of his class. He won the following honors in High School:

Pitcher on the baseball team, silver drill medal, president of Cadet Officers club, treasurer of the Lincoln Debating society and captain of Company F, which won the flag in the competitive drill.

He was appointed second sergeant in his freshman year at Cornell and his work as an athlete and as a student, both this year and last, was of a high order.

Why one with such possibilities should be called home so soon, is a thing which none can explain.

Editorial

Our campus, halls, classrooms and the streets bounding the High School have often presented a most untidy appearance during the past semester. This condition of affairs is due to the careless and disorderly habits of a large number of students rather than of a few. The matter has gone so far that people living in the vicinity of the High School have often complained of the actions of these same pupils who deliberately scatter waste paper and throw bits of refuse into the yards and streets.

While it would be impractical to deal with this matter by means of rules, yet some measure is needed to call a halt to the actions of those who persist in marring the beauty of our campus and building and annoying our neighbors in this way. The most simple and effective solution of this problem lies with the student body. It is for each one of us to take a little personal pride in this matter and to practice those habits of neatness which are taught in the home.

The investigation of the social clubs in the Omaha High School by a committee from the board of education showed that there was little or no foundation for the charges made by the Gamma Sigma Fraternity. The decision was reached without much difficulty as the members agreed to disband their clubs if they were found to be a menace to the best interests of the High School. The evidence showing that there had been a tendency to practice many of the evils condemned in the fraternities also failed to substantiate any of the charges.

However, the investigation has not been without results. It will act as a warning to the present clubs and also those which might organize in the future to keep school and social interests separate and also to keep their methods above suspicion.

THE LINCOLN DEBATE.

Friday, the thirteenth of December, Omaha held its twelfth annual debate with Lincoln. But instead of crowning its eleven former triumphs with the final victory of the dozen, Omaha was most soundly defeated. The reasons for this defeat vary with the testimony of the witnesses of the debate, some placing the reason on one point, some placing it on another. But the underlying reason probably lay in the fact that Lincoln turned out a stronger team than Omaha. However, the Omaha team was nothing for Omaha to be ashamed of, doing strong, thorough work, and holding together better, probably, than the Lincoln team. At any rate, Omaha can afford to lose this year. Omaha, the invincible, Lincoln defeated in debating; but Lincoln, the invincible, Omaha defeated in football. Certainly we are willing to exchange victories for a year at least.

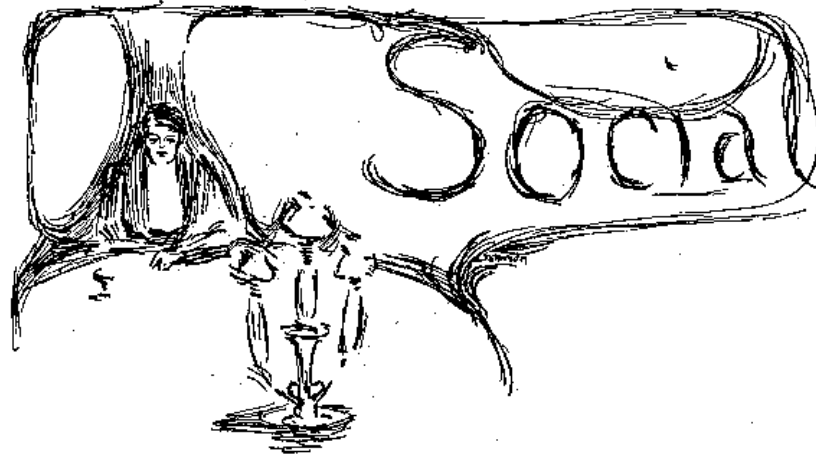

Miss Janet Wallace gave a stereopticon lecture Monday afternoon, December the 16th, to a large number of the English students. The talk was of scenes and places in Great Britain connected with English literature. Miss Wallace has given a number of these lectures, which are made especially interesting by the beautiful slides produced from photographs she has taken.

We are greatly indebted to Miss Annie Dennis for the beautiful original cover design which graces our front page.

Miss Belle R. Wilson, after a year's leave of absence during which she was much missed, is back again. She has charge of Miss Borglum's classes.

At noon, on Friday, December 20, the Iowa College Glee club sang for us in the hall outside of 204. Their catchy little melodies deserved all the enthusiastic praise of the students. A little later on a few prominent Juniors and Seniors organized a Glee club in the lower hall, which was soon deserted by everyone.

Mr. T. W. McCullough delivered a very interesting lecture on the making of a newspaper to the tenth and eleventh grade English classes. As these classes were then doing newspaper work the attention was very concentrated as Mr. McCullough told of the duties of each reporter, of the editors and of the business manager.

This vacation has been a round of social events for the High School crowd as well as those back from college.

THE SENIOR HOP.

The Senior hop given on the evening of December 23 proved a great disappointment to everybody but the committee in charge and perhaps a few other immediate friends, and it certainly deserves all of the unfavorable criticism it received from both students and alumni. The decorations were more appropriate for a country dance than a High School hop. The numerous decorations of maroon and white which the newspapers reported were a minus quantity, the punch bowl was emptied before the eighth dance and remained in that condition for the rest of the evening, there was also a shortage of programs. In fact, the only successful feature of the hop was the attendance, which was very large.

The committee who undertook to manage this hop were three members of the Gamma Sigma fraternity, viz.: Fred Wallace (an employee of Emerson & Hall), Lloyd Smith and Robert Arther.

There is no objection to fraternity men managing High School hops if they will not abuse the privilege and if they will give us a square deal, as Charles Meyers, Jack Welch and Rodger McKenzie did last year with the Senior hop. Furthermore, the High School hops should be given by High School students and not ex-pupils, and in future if any member of the committee is not a bona fide student of the High School, it is the duty of all High School students to withdraw their patronage.

The Junior hop, which took place on the evening of January 10, proved a most enjoyable occasion for all. The attendance was not so large but that all could enjoy the dancing. Herbert Ryan, chairman of the committee, had tastefully decorated the room with school colors.

On the afternoon of December 30 Miss Corrine Searle, president of the Margaret Fuller Society, gave a reception to the members of the society.

Miss Helen Wright gave a beautifully appointed luncheon to a number of her girl friends on Friday, December 27. After luncheon the girls played cards and enjoyed a musical program.

On Friday evening the Phi Lambda Fraternity gave a most elaborate and enjoyable dance at Chambers'. The hall was beautifully decorated in the Fraternity colors—red, gold and white. The programs were clever souvenirs, being bound in red leather, with the Fraternity seal in wax on front. A supper was served at small tables downstairs.

The Gamma Sigma Fraternity gave another delightful dance at the Rome Hotel on Monday, the 30th, at which over a hundred were present. The hall was beautifully decorated in palms and Fraternity pennants. The programs were in white, with old rose and gold decorations. A dainty supper was enjoyed by those present. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McGrew, Dr. and Mrs. Lord and Mr. and Mrs. Thummel.

The members of the Rolyé Club gave a dance New Year's night at the Normandy.

Mrs. Helen Sorenson entertained at cards on the afternoon of January 2.

In honor of her guest, Miss Katherine Price of Chicago, Miss Jasmine Sherraden held an informal reception at her home on Friday evening, December 27.

Miss Mona Cowell entertained at an informal party on Tuesday, December 31.

Would you like an education that will help you to earn a large salary?

A thorough course in the Mosher-Lampman Business College will greatly increase your earning capacity. Students are entering this school at a rate that proves that the public appreciates the superiority of experienced teachers, fine courses of study and first-class equipments. No other school in Omaha ever opened with anything like the number of students enrolled in this school. The undertaking has proved to be a huge success from the very first day. If you are busy so that you cannot attend our day school, you should by all means enter our night school. It is the best in the city. By spending three evenings each week with us you can learn bookkeeping or shorthand before the winter is over, or you can learn to write a fine hand or double your skill in figures.

Athletics.

Our football boys are going to have sweaters, thanks to the faculty.

Basket ball practice has been under way for over a month, and the squad is working into fine shape. Herb Arnstein of last year's team will be with us again to "shoot" some of his special brand of goals, and Ed Burdick is also as shining a star as ever. "Dutch" Nagl, who played guard last year, is putting in a strong bid for his old place on the team by fast, "heady" playing, and Neavles, who captained last year's five, is doing good work at present as coach and manager. Among the more promising of the other candidates for team honors are Carrier, Deams, Dodds, Doud, Howard, Kiewit, Larmen, McWhinney, Pagels and Parish.

Early in December the boys showed up well in a practice game with the Crescents of the Y. M. C. A. The High School won, 18 to 15, with this lineup: Forwards, Burdick, Carrier, Deams, Dodds and Parish; centers, Arnstein and McWhinney; guards, Doud, Howard, Nagl and Neavles.

A later game with the Tigers showed that we have the material for a winning team, for the Y. M. C. A. men won by only two points after a hard contest with our boys. When High School players can defeat experienced men, or hold them down to a lead of two points, the championship pennant looms up large in the eastern sky of the basket ball world. The High School lineup in the Tiger game was as follows: Forwards, Carrier, Deams, Arnstein and Burdick; centers, Arnstein and McWhinney; guards, Pagels, Kiewit, Nagl and Neavles.

Our first game will be played with York, in the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Saturday evening, January 18. The other games that have been scheduled are as follows:

- February 1—Lincoln, at Omaha.
- February 7—Sioux City, at Sioux City.
- February 15—West Point, at Omaha.
- February 21—York, at York.
- February 22—Lincoln, at Lincoln.
- March 7—Sioux City, at Omaha.
- February 28—West Point, at West Point.

As this issue of the Register was going to press, our basket ball team was chosen. Burdick and Nagl will be forwards, Arnstein center, and Neavles one of the guards. The other guard's position will be filled at present by Howard, the final disposition of the place being postponed until after the team plays a few games. The substitutes will not be chosen immediately. Carl Nagl, '08, was elected captain of the team. Herbert Arnstein was the other candidate.

THE OPEN PROGRAM.

A long-felt want of the literary societies was most successfully filled in our open program December 13th, in the two large study halls. In 204, the program opened with a clever song by the Elaine chorus, in which O. H. S. was duly praised. Mark Savidge gave an oration on "The Advancement of Our Era," which brought honor to the Ciceronians, of which society he is a member. Marjorie Beckett, of the Frances Willard Society, followed with a very interesting recitation, "The Swan Song." The German Society chorus next rendered very sweetly a folksong, entitled "Treue Liebe." The fifth number was an essay, "Travel," given very well by Perl Janney, a representative of the Lininger Travel Club. The next number was a clever original story by Ruth Partridge, from the Hawthornes, entitled "Janet's Christmas." The program closed by an original poem, "Uncle Remus' Haut Story," by Mary McCague, from the Priscilla Aldens, and another stirring song by the well-trained Elaine chorus.

The program in 304 was of great interest. The first number was a very cleverly written paper, "A Philippic Against Cicero," by Helen Wright, from the Latin Society. Following this, Jasmine Sherraden recited "A Legend of Bregrews," with great credit to the Margaret Fullers. Next in order, Miss Eloise Wood rendered Chopin's "Ballad in A" in a way that warranted her fine reputation as a musician. The Graduate Club has reason to be proud of their representative. After this, Hannah Calder, of the Pleiades, recited a very humorous sketch, called "The One-Legged Goose." A debate followed between William Ross of the Webster, taking the affirmative, and Fred Carlson of the D. D. S., as negative. The question, "Resolved, That Japanese immigration should be restricted by the same laws as Chinese immigration," was decided in favor of the affirmative. Last, but not least, came the Browning representative, Elsie Bolln, in a very well-written poem, entitled "Imagination."

Although programs given by the three debating societies are not given here, their work has progressed in a manner which is very creditable. The Demosthenians have devoted their chief amount of time to the work of debate. Their efforts have been met by repeated success, and the old interest in debate, by which the society has been known in the past, has been considerably revived. The members are all working diligently in their endeavor to make the society stand for what its name implies.

The Webster Society has had a very successful year. One who visits the meetings cannot help but be impressed by the splendid work, considering the society lost many valuable men last year. Under their able president, Harry Drucker, the society has made great steps toward perfection.

The Ciceronians, we regret to say, are very shy of public inspection, and, consequently, we can say very little of their meetings, since most of them are held behind closed doors. However, their programs, as published, indicate that the society is not wasting its time, but making use of it by applying themselves to the rendering of good selections.

GERMAN SOCIETY.

On December 18 the German Society gave an exceedingly interesting Christmas program illustrating the typical German Christmas. The program, which was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience, was as follows:

Song—Chorus.

Recitation—Leon Haglund.

Tableau and Recitation—Marion Dietrich.

Violin Solo—Charles Havlicek.

Recitation—Henrietta Schnetz.

Song—The Society.

Recitation—Emeline Pettingill.

Song—Chorus.

Recitation—Georgiana Eisele.

Violin Quartette—Elizabeth Becker, Charles Havlicek, Jennie Undeland, Clarence Patton.

Dialogue—Minerva Quinby, Will Richeson.

A Christmas Play—The Christmas Dream—Dora Sass, Georgia Taylor, Frank Greoger, Marie Slovaek, Helen Harper, Beulah McCaw, Mabel Kelley, Lester Philipps and Will Richeson acted as Santa Claus.

Following the program, the two Santas gave stockings full of candy and popcorn to each one present. The Society wishes to extend its thanks to all who took part in the program, and especially to those who do not belong to the Society, who so kindly contributed to the program.

PLEIADES.

The Pleiades met in room 108 on Friday, December 6. A most interesting program was given by Freda Cayley's division, which was as follows:

1. Reading—Gladys Thompson.

2. Isabelle Shukert.

3. Story—Jeanette Muir.

4. Recitation—Ruth Cowgill.

5. Society Prophecy—Martha Wallace.

P. A. S.

The Priscilla Aldens' last program, in charge of Louise Northrup, was on the past, present and future of the P. A. S. girls. Ramona Taylor had the future of the old members; Louise Northrup, the future of the new members; Irma Weidemann, the past of the members, and Irene McKnight, the present career of the Priscilla girls. Verna Hayes played a very enjoyable solo.

HAWTHORNE.

The Hawthorne Society gave an entertaining program on Friday, December 6th. The numbers were as follows:

1. Violin Solo—Eloise West.
2. "Origin of Thanksgiving"—Helen Pavolik.
3. Recitation—Isabelle Smalley.
4. "Colonial Thanksgiving"—Wilhelmina Fulton.
5. Quartet—Giselle Rodman, Elsa Haarman, Georgia Miller, Ruth Waterhouse.
6. "Diary of a Young School Boy"—Ruth Waterhouse.
7. "Modern Thanksgiving"—Florence Rosenweig.
8. Recitation—Mabel Wirt.
9. "Thanksgiving Story"—Georgia Miller.
10. Violin Solo—Eloise West.

The program was followed by a fudge party.

ELAINE SOCIETY.

This society gave an interesting program on December 6th. Mona Cowell, in quaint costume, recited the "Virginia Reel"; Gladys Gifford gave a monologue, "The First Visit to the Butcher." Then followed a reading by Clara Jones and a recitation by Miss Fearon. A playette, in which Mona Cowell, Theresa Dreyfoos, Louise Fearon, Claire Fearon, Beulah Hunter and Ruth Stonecypher took part, closed the program and was much enjoyed. A fudge party followed.

MARGARET FULLER SOCIETY.

A short but interesting Thanksgiving program was given on December 6, under the leadership of Grace Gilmore. In place of the regular meeting for Friday, December 20, the society was entertained at the home of Henrietta and Anna McCague on the Thursday, the 19th. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent. One of the chief features of amusement was a small tree covered with presents, which were distributed to the members by Santa Claus.

BROWNING.

On December 6th the Browning Society enjoyed a program, entitled "Women," under the charge of Ethel Richter. The first number was "Women's Occupations," by Fanny Rosenstock; next, "Women's Philanthropies," by Mary Ringwalt, and "Man's Opinion of Women," by Ethel Richter. The program concluded with a play,

"Women's Courage," or better known under the title "The Burglar." The cast was as follows:

Mrs. John Burton.....	Ethel Richter
Mrs. Valeria Chase Armsby.....	Helen Shireman
Mrs. Chas. Dover.....	Dora Sass
Miss Frieda Dixon.....	Mabel Sherwood
Miss Edith Brent.....	Fanny Rosenstock

LATIN SOCIETY.

On December 4th a program, "The Roman at Home," was given by the Latin Society, and consisted of the following numbers: "The Apartments of His House," "The Construction of His House"; recitation, "Let Me Dwell in a House by the Side of the Road"; "His Household," "Roman Woman of Fashion" and "His Food." At the close of the program the "Satura Romana" was read by Jeanette Muir.

This Society also gave an open program on December 18th, which opened with a song, "Integer Vitae," by a dozen girls dressed as Roman maidens. A play in Latin followed, entitled "The Roman School 90 B. C." Those taking part were as follows:

Magister	Howard Roe
Judices.....	Merill Rohrbough, Stanley Beranek
Servi.....	Robert Howe, Allen Tukey
Pedagogus	Stanley Beranek
Crassus Adulescens	Philip McCullough
Disipuli
Marcus Tullius Cicero.....	Arthur Rodgers

The Register staff, on behalf of the students of the High School, wish to express their sincere sympathy for their beloved schoolmates, Marion and Harry Carpenter, who suffered the loss of their father the latter part of December.

We wish to extend to John Chambers, a member of the Junior class, our most sincere sympathies in the loss of his father, whose death occurred in the early part of December.

Squibs.

Two Freshmen were discussing the various books they'd read:
 "Have you read 'The Eternal City'?"
 "I have."

"Have you read Marie Corelli's works?"
 "I have, surely."

"Have you read 'Looking Backwards'?"

"Well, that's too thin. How on earth could I do that."

Said the stuttering baritone Gantz,
 When asked by the chorister Rantz,
 If it was his desire
 To sing in the choir,
 "I'd j-j-j-j-jump at the Chants."

Oft in the stilly night
 When nightmares prance around me,
 And shadowy shapes delight
 In coming in to hound me—
 I think of cards I brought.
 When as a Fresh I studied of yore
 Before as a Senior I got
 To bluffing and cranning more.
 The smiles, the tears of childhood years,
 Ah! Let them go to thunder!
 Each day a new low mark appears,
 When will it end, I wonder?

A DRAMA IN FOUR ACTS.

Act I.

Mary had a mule
 It followed her to school
 Which was against the rule.

Act II.

The Teacher was a fool—

Act III.

He got behind the mule
 And hit it with a rule,

Act IV.

He had to let out school.

If the Paper is late the Subscribers blame the Editor, the Editor blames the Department Heads, the Department Heads blame the Printer and the Blamed Printer—well, he gets paid for being blamed.

THE SCHOLASTIC VAMPIRE.

A fool there was whose head was swelled,
 (Even as you and I);
 His gift of bluffing supreme he held
 (But his exam went down like a tree that's felled)
 And ruin for that same fool was spelled,
 (Even as you and I).

It's not only the point that thus we've lost
 That stings like a red hot brand.
 It's the coming to know that the teachers know much
 (Seeing at last we can never know much).
 But they'll always understand! !

Little boy—banana stand
 Ate too many—Happy Land.

A party of gentlemen were discussing the fighting merits of the different nationalities, and one said that in his opinion the Irish were the best fighters. A Dutchman, hearing the remark, stepped up and said: "Oh, I don'd know about dat. Me und mein brudder und two udder fellers licked von vunce."

That the late commercial panic seems to have seriously affected the price of decorations. Too bad Maroon is such an expensive color to decorate with!!

That the exams as they now loom up in the distance mean all work and no bluffing—the result won't hurt Jack's dullness at all. (There is nothing personal in this).

That many college people came home during the holidays to make great and dignified impressions. But when it comes right down to Genuine Big Head, the Seniors easily take first prize.

That the Squib Editor needs material badly and if the Squib Box is not more liberally patronized it will be hard to make both ends meet.

Many wonderful gowns were seen at the Senior prom, but unfortunately their beauty was somewhat over-shadowed by the elaborate Hall Decorations.
