Educate for Success

You Have a Better Chance than Abraham Lincoln Ever Had

Quite likely you have as much latent ability as he had. You know, Abe never was so very "smart"—he just studied and worked just about twice as much as most boys and men of his day and so he knew just twice as much as most people of his day. When his great opportunity came he was more ready than anyone else.

That is the simple story of the most simple but the greatest President this country ever knew.

You can make your life story read something like his—you can make footprints in the sands of time almost as deep and as lasting as his, if you will keep on going and going in the right direction.

YES—YOU—CAN!

Any young man or young woman with the infinite advantages of the High School training that you are receiving, can go as high in the world's work and the world's worth as he pleases.

You simply have to train yourself for the future.

And, no matter what profession or what line of business you are training yourself for, the right kind of a business college training ought to be included in your preparation for a successful career.

Doctor—Lawyer—College Professor—Civil Engineer—we care not what you have in mind as your vocation, a Boyles College business training would be of inestimable value to you—is one of the things you must have if you are going to make the most of your abilities and the most money in your chosen work.

Because they knew next to nothing about business, the old school Doctor, Lawyer, etc., lost 50 per cent and more of his earning capacity.

Modern conditions won't permit you to be an old school professional man. Modern conditions point out the wisdom of obtaining the right business college training. The consensus of opinion of Omaha business men indicates as the right college for you to attend.

Send for large, handsome, free catalogue. Or, better still, pay us a visit and let us talk the matter over.

The Senior Prom.

It was the occasion of the annual Senior Prom, the social event of the year, to the Aurora High School students. This event was looked forward to by the entire school and plans were made months ahead—not to attend was indeed a cause for sorrow. Moreover, Aurora was a university town and many of the customs of the university had been usurped by the High School students; one of these customs was, that each year, an attempt was made to prevent the appearance of the class president at the annual affair.

So it happened, that after school the day before the hop, a group of boys met rather secretly, in one of the school rooms. Among them were the president of the Senior class and some of its most prominent members. Their purpose was to arrange for the safekeeping of the president of the class until the dance was in progress.

Ben Hazard, the executive of the class, and indeed of the school, called the meeting to order with a peremptory rap and spoke thus; in his quick, keen way—"You boys know that this meeting is called to devise some manner to safeguard Rob until the dance. Have you any suggestions to make?"

"Let's keep him in our coal cellar, they'll never find him there," ventured Ed Maxwell, nudging Rob, who felt very sheepish to think that he had to be taken care of.

"Let's put him in a vault at the First National bank," volunteered another.

"Let's check him at Boswell's," came from a third bright individual.

"Now, boys, your advice is certainly extraordinary, but we mean business. We have heard that the Sophs and Juniors are together determined to spoil our Prom," said Ben.

After much joking and laughing, it was decided thus: Harry Thorpe and Will Rector were to accompany Robert Arnold to school in the morning, while a few others were to straggle behind. Of course there was nothing to be feared during school hours. It was also decided that as school was dismissed at 2:10, there would be just time to get to the matinee and no danger either, as it would be broad daylight and so many students would be around. Here he would be safe until 5 o'clock, when he could go home and prepare for the dance. Four boys would see him home from the theatre.

So everything was done the next day as planned. The boys went to the matinee and on the way home were intensely alert. As nothing happened, they began to think nothing would occur and several ventured that opinion.

"By the way" said Harry "where's Ralph?" Ralph was the Junior brother of Rob.

"Oh, he said that he had to go down to the Y. M. C. A. to practice a bit," said Rob.

"Fine player the kid's going to make," said one of the boys and then began a discussion of the ins and outs of basket ball. Poor, unsuspecting boys! How were they to know the part which Ralph was to play in the events of the evening.

At the gate of Rob's home the boys, who by this time thought nothing was to happen, parted jovially, Harry calling out, "Don't forget to call for Helen, Rob!"

"You may be sure I'll not give you the chance," called back Rob.

Rob walked up to the house and as he stepped upon the porch, a piece of white paper attracted his attention. He picked it up and read this: "Dear Rob: Aunt Mary 'phoned me to come right over as she needs me very badly. Tell Ralph I am gone. Your things are all ready for you in your room. Mother." Rob whistled in surprise. "Too bad mother isn't home, but I wonder why she said 'tell, Ralph?'" Hasn't he come home yet?"

He opened the door. It was quite dark, and hurried up the stairs whistling. He came to his door, thrust it open and then—

He didn't know how it happened, poor boy, but suddenly a mass of bodies was on him and he was hurled heavily to the floor. Pandemonium reigned in that room for awhile, but soon the mass removed itself and Rob was able to breathe, but when he attempted to rise, he found his hands pinioned to his sides. He looked around to meet the triumphant glances of a few members of the Junior and Sophomore classes. In one corner his face averted, was his brother Ralph.

An uncontrollable rage seized Rob and he made a mighty effort to free himself. What should he do? He must not be absent from the dance. "Oh, that Ralph should have helped them." He refused to glance even at his brother, against whom he felt very angry.

"How do you suppose your dance is going to come off?" said one, flushed with triumph. "Who's going to take Helen? I wonder if Harry will," taunted another.

However, Sorenson, the president of the Juniors, put a stop to this by saying "Boys, no time to waste. Its getting late." At this the boys all crowded together and leading Rob in the center, went down the stairs through the back door, where stood a buggy waiting. As they left the house, Rob let out such an Indian yell as should have awakened the entire community, judging by the amount of lung power expended, for he hoped that the boys might have hovered around the house a bit and might hear him.

Instantly a dozen pairs of hands attempted to clasp his mouth and soon a muffler was tied about it to prevent another outcry. He was shoved into the buggy with a guard of three boys and as it was quite dark by this time, he could not be seen by the passers-by.

Who can describe the chagrin which poor Rob suffered as he was driven through the streets of the town, passing the home of several classmates, but unable to inform them of his plight. Despair seized him and tears of mortification which he tried hard to suppress, welled to his eyes as they passed Helen's home. He would have hurled himself from the buggy were it not for the hands which tightly grasped his arms.

He was driven seemingly many miles, but at length the buggy stopped at a considerable distance from the center of the town. It was at the home of the president of the Junior class, Sorenson. He was hustled out and into the house and Rob's hopes of escape began indeed to wane.

Meanwhile in town, the greatest excitement prevailed among the student body. Rob Arnold could not be found! And there was one girl who, all dressed for the dance, paced the floor with restless tread: Eight o'clock and not a word or sign of Rob.

Suddenly the telephone rang so sharply that it sent a nervous shudder through Helen. She hastened to the 'phone, hoping against hope that she might learn something of Rob by means of it.

"Hello!" she called sweetly.

"Hello, Helen?" She heard Rob breathing hard. "I am at Sorenson's. The boys nabbed me. Get a few fellows to come down at once in a buggy and we may get back in time for the Prom. Hurry, Helen, as I may get caught again."

Helen hung up the receiver with trembling hands. She was so weak with excitement that she sank into the nearest chair. But the weakness was momentary. In a minute, she rushed down the stairs, donning a long cloak on the way. She called good-bye to mother and rushed outside to where the cabman whom Rob had ordered was standing.

"Please drive to Edward Sorenson's as quick as possible," she said. "I'll give you $5 if you get there in 15 minutes."

She jumped in and before the allotted time, the carriage stood before Sorenson's house. Everything was dark. She sprang out and ran onto the porch. The front door opened slightly and Rob peeped out.

"Helen, oh Helen," he called softly.

"Oh, Rob, are you hurt? How did it happen?"

He grasped her hand tightly. "But we must hurry back." He closed the door with a low chuckle of glee and then they both hurried into the carriage and were driven swiftly back to town.

On the way, he told her how, after they had entered the house, from which Sorenson had managed to keep the family, the boys had gone away confident that he would not be discovered. They had left only Lee Bradley to guard him, for as Rob's hands were tied, they were very sure of him. They had intended, however, to send two boys back, for they were going to witness the excitement in town.

After they were gone, Rob began to work his brain rapidly. If he could not escape, having but one boy to deal with, he certainly must be a sissy. The gag had been removed but he was now chained to one of Lee's arms, this latter arrangement having been made before the boys' departure.

All of a sudden, Rob's free hand swept up and struck Lee a resounding blow. The boys struggled but Rob's athletic training, combined with his intense desperation stood him in good stead. Lee was thrown to the floor. Pinioning his free arm with his own, Rob quickly and deftly extracted a ring of keys from Lee's pocket and pounced upon the key to the hand-cuffs.

He inserted it in the lock, being careful at the same time, that Lee did not also take advantage of the soon-to-be-gotten liberty. There was another struggle the moment the lock snapped open, but Rob was again victorious. Quickly whipping out his handkerchief, he bound it securely around Lee's hands. The poor boy was so downhearted to think that after so much effort, he should be the cause of the failure, that he now submitted without resistance.

Then Rob had hurried to the 'phone and called up Helen. In the meantime, he had kept a sharp lookout for the return of the boys but was confident that aid would come to him first through Helen. Needless to say, he took care that Lee should not check his plans further.

They drove quickly to Rob's home where, as it was still rather early, the usages of etiquette were reversed—Rob making a hasty toilet while Helen waited in the carriage. The cabman had been despatched to Helen's home to tell of her safety.

When can picture the scene at the High School Prom when Rob and Helen made their appearance? What wild cheering ensued then in mad defiance to the laws of etiquette! And what praise and homage was bestowed on Helen for so pluckily coming to the rescue of their president!

Such was the adventure which added so much excitement to the annual affair of the Aurora High School.

ELLA S. FLEISHMAN, '11.

Grandfather's Story.

"Grandfather, please tell us a story," begged Phil.

"Oh yes, please do, dear grandfather," pleaded Dorothy, "tease him for us, grandmother."

"Come, come, children, I'll tell you one if you don't bother your grandmother. Will you listen?"

"Yes! yes, indeed!"

The old gentleman settled himself more comfortably in his big chair, and began.

"When your grandmother was a girl, she lived in the old plantation home where we went last summer. Her mother died when the girl was but a baby, leaving the father to care for the two children, Richard and Margaret. Richard was now a manly young colonel of twenty years; rather young to be a colonel, but you see promotion was rapid in those tumultuous days. Margaret was a charming young girl of sixteen, the belle of the country and the pride and comfort of her father.

On this particular day, Richard, who happened to be in the neighborhood, seized the opportunity when it presented itself, and stopped in to see his sister and old father. He had intended to stay only a few minutes, but time flies when one does not know whether or not that will be the last time they will even meet. The three were quietly talking when an old negro burst into the room; his black face was almost ashy from fear and his eyes rolled about wildly as he grasped:

"Oh Marse Pen'leton, de sojers is comin'! We'll all be killed now sho 'nough."

"Be quiet, Nap," commanded Mr. Pendleton, "no one shall hurt you."

The negro, satisfied, turned to go, but his master stopped him.

"Does anyone beside you know that Mr. Richard is here?" he questioned.

"No, sah."

"Very well, if anyone questions you, you must not tell anything about Mr. Richard. Do you hear?"

"Yes, sah. Ah won't tell anything, Marse Pen'leton, 'deed Ah won't," the old negro answered as he hobbled from the room.

When he had gone, Richard turned in despair to his father.

"Father," he cried, "what shall I do? I have papers that must reach Gen. Mosby tonight, and if the Federals capture them why—why"—he paused for want of words.

Mr. Pendleton looked about perplexedly, then seeing Margaret's eager face and glowing eyes, asked:

"What is it, Peggy, have you thought of something?"

"Oh Dick," cried Peggy, "you can't get away now. Can't you trust me with the papers? I promise that Gen. Mosby will get them tonight."

For an instant Richard hesitated, but hearing the steps of someone on the porch he drew the papers from his coat and handed them to Peggy. Thrusting them into her dress, she pushed her brother behind a heavy curtain; and just in time, for the door opened and a Federal captain stepped into the room. He bowed courteously to Mr. Pendleton, who returned the salutation coldly, and to Peggy, who tilted her haughty little head a trifle higher and acknowledged the bow not at all. The captain then informed Mr. Pendleton that the house must be searched for a Confederate officer. After posting a guard at each exit from the house and sending others to search it, he with two others proceeded to search the room he was in.

Peggy had hoped that, in some way, the soldiers would not think of looking behind the curtains; but her heart sank when she saw how carefully everything was searched. She was standing in front of her brother watching the soldiers coming nearer and nearer to her. She wondered what she should do when they came to pull back the curtains and found her brother.

Suddenly she felt something pull her dress and putting back her hand, a piece of paper was thrust into it. But alas! The keen eyes of the captain saw a slight movement of the curtain, and with a sharp exclamation he strode over and pulled it aside. Richard, seeing resistance was impossible, quietly surrendered. He was searched, but of course nothing was found, so he was taken away under a heavy guard. The captain turned to Mr. Pendleton and started to speak, but Mr. Pendleton interrupted him.

"You have found what you came for," he said haughtily, "I do not care to be longer burdened with your company."

Without a word the captain turned and left the room. In a few minutes the clatter of many hoofs was heard on the drive and soon the soldiers had gone.

When Peggy could see them no longer she opened the paper in her hand and found full directions for reaching Mosby, and at the bottom was written, "God bless you Peggy." Then her pent up feelings suddenly gave way in a burst of tears.

Late that evening a very tired and disheveled young lady was ushered into Gen. Mosby's presence. His surprise at her appearance changed into gratitude and sympathy when she told her story and gave him the papers. He provided lodging for the night and the next morning had her safely escorted to her home.

"Oh grandfather," said Phil seeing the story was ended, "what became of Mr. Richard?"

"I believe he was exchanged some months after; at any rate, he got back to his own lines in some way," replied grandfather.

"And who was the captain, grandfather, do you know?" questioned Dorothy.

"My dear," was the smiling reply, "the captain was only I."

With this number of the Register, we are on our second semester. This term will probably be a marked one as far as socials and athletics are concerned. The Officers' Hop, the big social event of the year and the Alumni dance which is to be given immediately after Lent are big events to be looked forward to. With such delightful times ahead we should surely buckle down and make a record equally as good in educational lines.

Everyone, the Freshmen included, is starting out with a clean record. All have an equal chance to get A's. Let no one think he is handicapped by an old record which he has to blot out, but each person put his hand to the helm and do his level best. Start out right at the beginning and then there will be no need of seventh hour interviews and of study 'way into the wee sma' hours of the night, shortly before the "mid-terms."

The B. B. season is now on and our fine team deserves the loyal support of every student. So many students offer the old plea, "I haven't got time," or "I haven't got the money," but "Where there's a will, there's a way." Now every one find this way, go to every game and help cheer our B. B. team on to such another glorious victory as they won over Plattsmouth a few weeks ago.

Now the B. B. team is not the only team to be supported. We have a good strong squad of debaters out of which two are to be chosen for our annual debate with Kansas City. Let every one get in and boost debating and help make our victory in the Tri-city Debate as complete this year as it was last year.

The editor calls special attention to the column under the Alumni notes which is devoted to the research work for old Registers. It is greatly urged that every subscriber read this column carefully.

The photograph of the girls' Register staff in this issue was made at our handsome new studio. We want to be the official photographer for all groups. Heyn, The Photographer, 16th and Howard streets.

On Saturday night, January 13th, another very successful High School Prom. was given by the Junior class of 1910, at Chambers' academy. The ball was artistically and tastily decorated in the color scheme of purple and white and the many lights were covered with purple shades, which cast a soft and beautiful glow over the scene. The committee in charge were Lloyd Osborne, Brandon Howell and Charles Keller. The dance was attended by an unusually large crowd of one hundred couples.

Mrs. Wilson Lowe gave an enjoyable surprise party for her son Raymond on Friday night, January 9th. About twelve comically dressed guests were present.

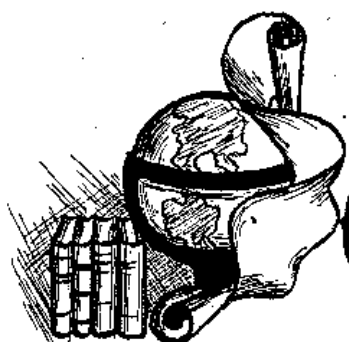

On the joyful and breezy day of Friday, January 30th, Miss Eva Turner of this school, delightfully and also kindly entertained some of the storm-bound teachers and a few of her pupils at her domestic science rooms.

Miss Henrietta Gilmore entertained informally twelve of her Junior friends at her home, Thursday afternoon, January 29th.

On February twenty-sixth the annual cadet officers hop will be held at Chambers' Dancing Academy. This is the big social event of the year and all students should attend. Everyone is requested to leave two or three dances open as they will easily be filled the evening of the dance. Committee Herbert Ryan, Sam Carrier.

An entertainment is to be held Friday, February 26th, immediately after school in Room 204, the purpose of which is to raise money to pay for the sweaters for the members of the first football team. It is to be a miscellaneous program and will be well worth the price of admission, fifteen cents. Among other things there will be an individual competitive drill between representatives from each cadet company. There will be also recitations, music, etc., and the sweaters will be presented to the team.

One of the largest dances of the season will be given by the Alumni of the O. H. S. at Chambers Academy Monday evening, April 12th. An invitation is extended to the students of O. H. S. to meet and become better acquainted with the Alumni. Tickets may be bought in advance from Harry Drucker or Lyle Roberts.

GERMAN SOCIETY.

On Wednesday, Jan. 13, 1909, the pupils of Miss Rockfellow's class gave the following program:

1. Proverbs Merle Crew
2. Gedicht "Die Soldaten"
Joseph Noone.
3. Nursery Ryme "Old Mother Hubbard"
Marie Niesman Madeline Jaskalek Marquerite Scott
4. Song "Kennst Du das Land"
Chorus (with violin obligato)
5. Abend-gebet—Robert Strehlow.
6. Nursery Ryme Marie and ihr Lamm
Libbie Masinda
7. Piano Solo—Miss Towne.

After the program the society continued with its usual singing.

LATIN.

The last meeting of the Latin Society was a very enjoyable one. The first number was a reading, "Everyday life of a Roman of wealth" by Josephine Yates, the second, a clever recitation by Marquerite Roche. A paper on the "Contrast between palaces and tenements of Rome," was read by Edith Waterman, while Edward Guyer told about the Roman Roads, illustrating his talk with pictures drawn on the board. A piano solo was given by Mabel Widing and the program was closed by a reading of the Satma Romana by Edith Schrum, which contained many clever "hits."

LININGER TRAVEL CLUB.

The Lininger Travel club held its meeting in room 205. By a vote the club colors were changed from pink and grey to pale pink and deep green. An interesting program on "Winter" was rendered.

WEBSTER.

The Webster Society held a meeting on December 18, 1908, and after the program was rendered the society voted to hold its semi-annual election. The officers elected were Claude Neavles, president; Stanton Salesbury, vice-president; Maurice Shillington, secretary-treasurer; and Joseph Noone, sergeant-at-arms. These new officers will assume their duties on February 5th. The retiring officers who have served for the last semester are: Evan Rogers, president; Leonard Larmon, vice-president; Donald Wood, secretary; Joe Woolery, Seargant-at-arms.

FRANCES WILLARD.

The Frances Willard society gave one of the most picturesque programs of the year on January 15. Under the leadership of Edna Morrow the following girls presented in pantomime a Japanese wedding.

- | | |
|---|----------------|
| Bride | Edna Ostrom |
| Groom | Marion Parsons |
| Go-Between | Lila Caley |
| Groom's mother | Edna Morrow |
| Groom's father | Edith Jacobsen |
| Bride's maids—Lenice Iluse, Gladys Daily, Inez Daily, and Dagnar Kuntson. | |

The chief feature of the wedding was the elaborate tea drinking ceremony conducted by the go-between. The entire ceremony was performed to soft Japanese music played by Elenor Gillan.

At the close of this novel performance favors of candy mice were passed among the audience. Each guest also carried away a souvenir, a dainty hand-painted program in the form of a Japanese lantern.

Miss Morrow and her division have reason to be proud of their painstaking performance.

ELAINE.

Miss Helen Blish entertained the Elaine Society at her home on Friday afternoon, Jan. 15. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent and a musical program rendered by the girls of Geraldine Gifford's division. The numbers were as follows:

1. Piano solo.....Gretchen McConnell
2. Vocal solo.....Christine Poulsen
3. Violin solo.....
4. Piano solo.....Marie Hollinger
5. Vocal solo.....Marie Gordon

After the program light refreshments were served.

PLIADAS.

Mildred McMurphy's division gave a very charming Japanese program Friday, Jan. 15th. The society enjoyed the selections greatly, especially one called, "A Japanese Love Song," which was sung by two of the girls in unique costumes.

MARGARET FULLER.

The meeting on January 15, was quite new and original, the idea of bubbles being carried out. A very interesting debate was given by two of the members, and a little play "Buddles of Fashion," followed a reading and an essay. The programs were effectively written on little clay pipes.

On January 15, a New Year's program was given under the leadership of Iola Purce. A New Year's sketch was given by seven girls titled "Resolutions for the 1910."

PRISCILLA ALDEN.

The Priscilla Alden Society held a short meeting Friday, Jan. 8. The program consisted of an essay, "New Year's Resolutions," by Mabel Conklin, a story by Wilma Damon, and a dialogue by Beth Alderson and Agnes Russell.

HAWTHORNE.

One of the most entertaining programs of the year was given in the Hawthorne Society, Jan. 19. The subject was "American Humor." After the program candy was passed around by the girls on the program.

DEBATING.

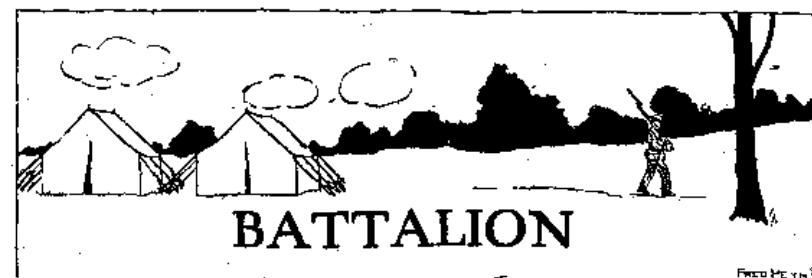

On Monday afternoon, January 18th, the first of the inter-society, Webster vs. D. D. S. debates took place in room 204. The purpose of these debates is to encourage interest in debating rather than to try to establish the championship between the two societies. The subject debated was the same as that for the coming tri-city debate. The D. D. S. taking the affirmative was represented by Lumir Buresh and Fredrick McConnell; the Webster, taking the negative, by Stanton Salisbury and Hiram Salisbury. A unanimous decision was given the affirmative.

The preliminaries for the Kansas City-Des Moines-Omaha debate were held January 22nd. 204 was filled with a large audience, thanks to the good advertising in circulars and notices on the studyroom blackboards. It is to be hoped that as large a crowd will fill Creighton auditorium at the coming debate. The judges were Mr. Dennison of the Y. M. C. A.; Mr. Charles Foster and Mr. Faulkner; fifteen boys and one girl participated in the debate. From this number the following ten were chosen for the squad:

Sigurd Larmon, Edwin Rosenberg, Will Ross, Harry Kenner, Fred Carlson, Nellie Elgutter, Fredrick McConnell, Herbert Ryan, George Sugerman and Fred Rippins.

This is a record squad since it has among its members the only Freshman who has even succeeded in getting on a debating squad in O. H. S. and also since it is the only squad in which a girl has had the honor to hold a place.

In March the Kansas City-Des Moines-Omaha debate will take place. O. H. S. will send a team to Des Moines and debate the Kansas City team at home. Let everyone show his loyalty to O. H. S. by supporting the coming debate with all his might and main. Let each appoint himself a committee of one to see that he sends at least one person to the debate. Encourage the representatives in such a way that it will be impossible for them to lose and let them repeat the victory of last year by winning from both Kansas City and Des Moines.

Drill is progressing wonderfully. The small Freshmen who seem rather overburdened with those great guns show much improvement. It is generally understood that small children grasp things quickly. The various captains very lovingly watch their Freshmen and carefully brood over them lest they should receive some injury. If drill continues to improve in the future the regiment drill will soon be on a very high plane.

The C. O. C. have been attending to some important business of late. At the first meeting the commandant recommended that a cup be purchased for company drill. The committee, Roberts (chairman), Larmon and Flothow, have purchased a beautiful cup now on display at Edholm's jewelry store. A committee was also appointed to conduct the presentation of this cup. An elaborate program is being planned and at some future date the cup will be presented to the O. H. S. military department. This cup will be contested for by the companies and will become the permanent possession of the company winning it three times.

There is another committee to decide whether Lincoln is a favorable place for camp or not. Captain Oury stated that the state fair grounds could be secured as a location for the next camp. Every boy both small and large should boost for camp on account of the pleasure afforded to the girls on visitors' day. All must co-operate and make this the most successful camp the High School ever had. It must be a success in every way and this can only be done by co-operating with Captain Oury and the C. O. C. and boosting for camp.

The following promotions have been made in the band. To be first lieutenant, George Kiewit; to be second lieutenant, Arthur Marowitz; to be third lieutenant, A. Ranie; to be drum major, Hugo Heyn; to be first sergeant, Eugene Riley; to be sergeants, Hardy, Becher and Wawerin; to be corporals, McCullough, Bruce Young, Morris Shellington. Joe Noone is to be captain of Company II.

The mid-term examinations will probably shake up the battalion somewhat. Some few officers will lose their position and must be replaced by others.

The regiment has been organized in the O. H. S. The promotions for the battalion and regimental staffs will soon be announced. The forming of a regiment in the High School places the military department on a higher plane. It takes on a broader field of work and is a distinct step in advance. This excellent idea was from Captain Oury and he is to be congratulated for it.

Fifty-four to 17 is the tune with which we started the basket ball season. It was played with Plattsmouth on January 16th at the Y. M. C. A. In the first half we piled up a big score, Plattsmouth seeming to be unable to get the ball into the basket. In the second half they had better luck so that the score was about even. The Plattsmouth fellows were handicapped in that they had had but a few practices together. For the defense of the Purple and White, two of the members of last year's team, Burdick and Neavles fought, playing up to their old records. The new members of the team bid fair to surpass last year's stars. Carrier played left forward, McWhinney, center, and Trimble, Dodds and Larmon tried out for guard.

A preliminary game between the All-stars and the second team was played which showed that we need not lack for good players, as it was fast and exciting from start to finish. The only thing to be regretted was the lack of High School students. To be sure there was a fair crowd, but a fine team such as we have should have the best support we can give them.

The first game played away from home was against the Columbus High School at Columbus, January 22. Omaha won an easy victory, although handicapped by McWhinney not being able to play and Neavles having to play center, without practise in that position. It was a very fast game and the score resulting was 50 to 22. It was played in the gymnasium of the new Y. M. C. A. building, which has a fine floor for basket ball. A fair crowd turned out to see the game and though defeated the Columbus boys showed themselves to be cheerful losers. Mr. Jones, formerly connected with the Omaha Y. M. C. A. and now at Columbus, entertained the boys royally at his home.

An especially large and enthusiastic crowd attended the Schuyler game, played on Saturday, January 23. Not only the boys loyally supported their team, but the girls also, who cheered so loudly that it was almost impossible to hear the referee's whistle. Schuyler had just defeated West Point and expected to do the same with us, but with our strong line-up we beat them 66 to 13. Much credit is due to Carrier, who made 14 goals, which greatly helped to increase our score.

On February 13 the team will be away from home; February 20 Sioux City plays here; February 27th the team will play away from home; March 5 our team will play at Lincoln.

The girls in their quiet (?) way have been doing something, practicing every week, the Seniors and Juniors on Tuesday and the two Sophomore teams on Thursday. The Juniors and Sophomore teams have not yet been chosen.

The line-up of the Seniors:

Forwards—May Roe and Marguerite Walker.

Center—Geraldine Gifford.

Guards—Katherine Lenhart and Edna Levi.

Sub.—Julia Lind.

The Junior line-up:

Forwards—Elizabeth Doud, Marie Bush, Lillian Fillenworth, Gisselle Rodman.

Center—Gladys Gifford.

Guards—Erna Hadra, Louise Herdman, Ruth McIlvaine, Ruth Sheldon.

On March 6th, at the Y. M. C. A. will be held the Athletic Carnival. The boys have been in training for some time now at the Y. M. C. A. every Saturday afternoon, about 58, under the supervision of Coach Cherrington and the Athletic captains, Neavles for the Seniors, Howard for the Juniors, and the Sophomore and Freshman captains appointed by the Athletic Board. The inter-class basket ball contest will also come off at that time. This indoor track meet will lead up to the outdoor track meet and will put us in shape to go down to Lincoln and carry off all the honors instead of being last in everything as last year.

Now let us show that we can support all this by our enthusiasm and presence and turn out a big crowd on March 6th as well as to all the basket-ball games.

SHAKESPEAR'S IDEA OF A COLLEGE COURSE.

Freshman—A comedy of errors.

Sophomore—Much ado about nothing.

Junior—As you like it.

Senior—All's well that ends well.

LOCALS.

The 25th of January being the 150th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, the members of the Clan Gordon, Order of Scottish Clans, offered a price of $10 to the pupils of the O. H. S. for the best poem on "The Mission of Burns." Miss Fredericka Swartzlander was the winner of the $10 prize (another honor for the Juniors); Miss Helen E. Robinson ranked second and Mr. Fred Heyn third.

The absence of a great number of pupils on January 29, owing to the bad weather, caused the work of given grades and assigning classes to be delayed a day. Consequently the Freshman came to join the high school ranks on Wednesday morning, February 3rd.

On February 2nd the sun shone so brightly that the groundhog could see its shadow plainly, and the high school pupils may expect more cold weather and consequently further enjoyment of the winter sports.

Miss Kate McHugh has resumed her work in the classroom this February.

Mr. Chester Baker, '09, is home from New York, where he has been attending school.

Miss Bowen left Saturday, January 30, for New York. From there she will sail for Germany.

Miss Cook was married February 2 to Mr. Will Coryell.

We are glad to see that Miss Stebbins has returned to school after her long illness.

We have always known that the High School was productive of many types, but a new one has recently been discovered. There is among us a bold brave knight, one chivalrous gallant, who froze his arm to aid a fair lady in distress.

The hand of death has once more come into the ranks of the students of O. H. S. and taken from our midst one of the most promising members of the Sophomore class. There is none whose loss could have been more keenly felt than that of Perry Lytle; and it is our most heartfelt sympathy which the Register in behalf of the students of the Omaha High School extends to his parents and friends in their bereavement.

ALUMNI NOTES

Miss Ione Bellamy of the class of '07 is a Sophomore in the University of Chicago.

Mr. Clement Chase of the class of '06 is taking an engineering course at Cornell.

Miss Lillie Berratt '05, has a position in the public library.

Miss Elsie Peterson of the class of '08 is attending the normal school at Fremont.

Miss Ramona Taylor of the class of '08 is teaching music.

Miss Edna Towne, '05, and Dr. Henry Johnson, '04, were married New Year's day and are now residing in Tekamah, where the doctor is practicing medicine.

Mr. David L. Oberg, editor-in-chief of the class of '08, is studying physics and American history at the Oakland High school, California. During the rest of the day he has accepted a position in the Men's Furnishing store.

Miss Helen Prall and Murial Johnson, '07, are taking a course in the public library.

Miss Edith Hatch of the class of '08 is going to take a post-graduate course in solid geometry, French and domestic science.

Miss Marie Howska, '07, and Thekla Egan, '07, are Sophomores at the University of Nebraska.

To the members of the Alumni and former students of the Omaha High School:

Acting on the suggestion of Doctor Senter, in September of this school year the management of the High School Register began to try to obtain a complete file of the Register from the date of the first copy in 1886.

The Register is doing splendidly in this effort but many of its yearly files are still incomplete. The Register greatly appreciates the kindness of unknown friends in sending in certain numbers which were lacking and also the kindness of Mr. Henry Howe.

But the file is still incomplete. Will you not kindly look over any old copies of the Register which you have in your possession, and see if you have any copies corresponding to the missing numbers designated below. If you have any, the Register will appreciate your kindness in sending the same to the editor-in-chief. The missing numbers are as follows:

EXCHANGES.

The School Herald is a newsy little paper, and it certainly shows enterprising management as it is issued weekly and without charge.

The Vedette, Culver Military Academy, has an excellent literary department. The other departments are also interesting and well written, and the arrangement and general make-up of the paper are very good.

We were pleased to receive a copy of the Nooz, Stevens Point. For so recent a start you are doing finely. Your cover is attractive and your different departments very good.

High School Times, you have a good exchange column. Your literary department contains two very good stories, also.

Oracle, Bakersfield, Cal., your cover seems a little plain and a few cuts would improve your appearance, but otherwise you are most excellent.

The Cogswell, San Francisco, is one of the best of our exchanges. It uses a fine quality of paper and is very well arranged. The cover and cuts are original and appropriate, and the reading matter is very entertaining. There is an especially interesting article, "My Experiences in Hawaii."

The Lakonian's literary department is excellent and it contains a great deal of material. A few more cuts would add to its appearance, however.

The Nautilus, Kansas City, is an attractive paper, and contains several interesting stories and articles. The cover and cuts are good too.

High School Record, Idaho Springs, your cover is very original and attractive. We would suggest, however, that you use a better quality of paper and increase your reading material.

The Sotoyoman is a good paper, but the appearance would be improved if the advertising matter was not mixed with the literary.

The Jayhawker contains a fine assortment of stories in the December number. The paper is well gotten up also.

ANNOUNCEMENT

A benefit will be given by charitable High School students to purchase a season ticket at the Orpheum for Howard Gates and lady. Following is the program:

1. Solo, "When I go out to Call, or Evening Shadows Lighten into Dawn"
Max Flothow.
2. Violin solo....."Each New Girl Looks Good to Me"
Jack Bowen.
3. Flute solo....."The Little Birds Sang 'De Witt, D'Witt'"
Beatrice Barnhart.
4. "Base" solo....."I am Sufficient Unto Myself."
Arthur Ayerigg.

Opinions of five prominent O. H. S. girls on the benefits of O. H. S. membership. (Apologies to the recent Y. M. C. A. pamphlet.)

Gretchen McConnell (Pres. Elaine; Editor-in-chief of "Flirtation Record") In no place is the idea of brotherly and sisterly love so impressed upon me.

Mary Phillippi (Pres. Browning Society; President of Giggles Union) In no place is there such an opportunity for serious contemplation and unmarred peaceful study.

Elizabeth Doud (Pres. Margaret Fuller Society; Leader of Gum-chewers' Glee Club) In my opinion great benefit is derived from the close association with gentlemen friends.

Agnes Russell (Secretary of the Society for Delinquent and Deficient Students) To me the High School is the embodiment of the best ideals in life, morally, mentally and physically.

Helen Blish (President of the Irish Cook's Booster's Club for the betterment of conditions in the kitchen) "Indade Oi think it's foine."

Two is company, but with father in the parlor there is a multitude.

Reflections from Senior English examinations:

This means that he would disclose the soul of Plato to show the place such as that which would hold such an undying mind as that which left her abode in this beautiful home in nature.

He wants to expose Plato, the God of the underworld. He wants to get a hold on Plato so he will be forced to expose his realm where the immortal soul is supposed to have gone. The mansion is the flesh, but not the soul of this girl. She must be a physical beauty to be called a mansion.

RECEIPE FOR DELICIOUS MARKS

(By Frederic McConnell.)

This dish though very rare with most students can be obtained by the following tried and trusty recipe: To two ounces of nerve add an ounce of cash stirring in grand opera music while pouring flowery compliments into the ear of your favorite teacher. Result—pleasant evening.

Getting Into the Game

The Ball Player who secures a place on a League Team must be an expert. Second and third rate players need not apply.

To get into the Game of Business also requires expert knowledge. If you attend a school where this year's students, or even last year's graduates are the instructors you will probably not make a very startling success.

Teachers cannot teach more than they know. This brings us right back to our original text, to the underlying principle of the

the one upon which its success has been built; namely, that the student who would attain the highest success must have expert teachers.

MOSHER & LAMPMAN

employ none but experts because it pays. It pays the student and it pays the school.

It pays the student because it qualifies him for a position in business life beyond the work of a mere Bookkeeper or Stenographer.

It pays the school because it attracts the best class of students. It has paid MOSHER & LAMPMAN because it has attracted so many students to the that at the end of a year and a half they have had more than twice as large an enrollment as any other school ever founded in Omaha had in double the time.

The MOSHER-LAMPMAN COLLEGE is, therefore, decidedly the most successful school ever opened in this City. Its enrollment of new students at the opening of the Winter Term probably exceeds that of schools that have been running for a score of years. The unprecedented growth of the MOSHER-LAMPMAN COLLEGE is one of the evidences of its superiority.

It will pay you to attend this school because the fact that every teacher is an expert will mean that your progress will be rapid and thorough. It is not too late to enter the Winter Term.
