Gay Follmer and Jack Busch Win Young Citizen Medals

For the second consecutive year two Central High students have been chosen as winners in the Young Citizens' contest. Gay Follmer and Jack Busch, with eight other Nebraska high school students, were awarded medals at the World-Herald banquet at the Hotel Fontenelle last Thursday night.

The medals were presented to the five boys by the king of Ak-Sar-Ben, W. B. Millard, jr., and to the girls by the queen, Miss Alice Jeannette Meyer. George Grimes, managing editor of the World-Herald, presided at the banquet.

Sponsored jointly by the World-Herald and the American Legion, the contest brought 51 boys and girls from every section of Nebraska to Omaha for two days of examinations and entertainment.

Wednesday morning after taking part in the written examination directed by Dr. D. A. Worcester, chairman of the department of psychology and measurements at the University of Nebraska, the students participated in a radio broadcast from 2:30 until 3 p.m. over radio station KOWH.

At the banquet J. M. Harding, assistant publisher of the World-Herald, told the Young Citizens in a short talk how a newspaper operates and how to read a newspaper. He reminded them that besides the features and the news, the editorial page is very important.

Hobart Corning, superintendent of Omaha's public schools, unable to attend, wired a congratulatory message to the new winners.

Last year two of the ten winners were Central's John Plank and Virginia Foote who were graduated in June.

Gay Follmer and Jack Busch were entrusted with the special duty of having charge of the 51 delegates, seeing that they attended all the programs, taking roll, and supervising them.

Central Junior Is Named City French Clubs' Choice

Billie Wilson '43 was elected Victory Queen at the French club dance held on November 22 at the Blackstone hotel. She was chosen by popular vote, and was presented with a gift by the Intercity French club.

The $25 received for the candidates' pictures which were auctioned off during intermission went to the British war relief, and the $10 profit from the various articles sold at the dance also was allotted to the war relief.

Morris Richlin was master of ceremonies and made a riotous gag team when he paired off with Burke Clements, president of Central's French club. The two were well-received by the dancers.

Music was furnished by Ross Richard's orchestra and a series of specialty acts and novelty dances were presented by Martha Randall's Dancing Debs.

Credit goes to Matsuo studios who donated nearly $150 worth of pictures. The Matsuos are always generous in helping war relief funds and school projects.

Auto Licenses? Art Museum? How Queer Central Can Be!

Apparently Central High has developed a quadruplicate personality. To most of Omaha, Central is an educational institution, but in the minds of a few, it serves an entirely different purpose.

A short time ago, a distinguished, business-like man strolled into the office of Miss Josephine Frisbie, senior counselor for girls. He stated that he would like to obtain an auto license. When he saw Miss Frisbie's puzzled countenance, he inquired if this was the court house. Assured that it wasn't, the gentleman quietly left the building.

Not long after this incident, an elderly woman entered Central and asked for a guide to show her around the building. Obliging, Miss Frisbie sent one of her student helpers. As

Robinson Is First In State Contest

Jim Robinson, winner of the headline writing contest at the Nebraska High School Press convention held at Lincoln November 21, was presented a plaque donated by the Grand Island Independent newspaper. Mrs. Anne Savidge accepted the plaque in Jim's absence.

Sixteen members of the Register staff attended the convention with Lois J. Turner and Jim Robinson as Central's official representatives.

"World Wide News Services," "Building the High School Annual," "Sports Writing and Coverage," "News Coverage and Special Features," and "Conducting a Gossip Column" were among the topics discussed at the convention. Lois Turner was chairman at the "World Wide News Services" discussion.

the lady observed the statues and trophies, her expression became more and more puzzled. Finally, she meekly declared that this wasn't at all how she had imagined the Joslyn Memorial. After correcting the error, the student directed the still bewildered visitor to the true Memorial.

As though two mistaken identities weren't enough, the climax came recently when a large family of foreigners walked into Central, declaring that they wished to take out citizenship papers!

SENIORS NOTICE

Senior Sponsor Miss Julia Carlson has announced that at 8:15 a.m. Tuesday, December 2, nomination for senior officers will take place. She has stressed especially that all seniors be on time for the meeting and that each senior should have his choice definitely in mind.

Five Central Teachers Instruct at Omaha U.

Five Central instructors are teaching evening classes at Omaha university one night a week.

Mr. Frank Rice is teaching a freshman English course on introductory rhetoric to over twenty students. His class includes several Central graduates, several teachers, and business men.

Miss Delizia Rindone teaches beginning Italian to a class of eight students which includes lawyers, radio announcers, etc., all interested in learning to speak the language as well as read it.

Mrs. Irene Jensen, with Dr. L. O. Taylor as an associate, is teaching a course in music methods to 56 students, primarily grade school teachers who must teach music in their work. Miss Mary Angood for the third year is teaching costume designing and cartooning. Mr. Don Warner teaches two speech classes with about fifteen students in each class.

My Foot! If 'Jive Is Solid' Your Vocab Ain't!

"Man, oh, man, is that goon-child ever solid!" Talk like this might be all right at a "jam-session," but unfortunately Central seniors do not know when to forget the slang and talk like intelligent human beings.

Proof that seniors' vocabularies are deficient is shown by the results of the Ingles Vocabulary tests recently given in the English VII classes. According to the standard average, a high school senior should know 87 of the 150 words in the test, but only 50 per cent of Central's seniors have this rating. The highest score of that 50 per cent is 135 words attained by Nancy Keegan, and the following have a comprehension of 120 words or more: Jack Barton, Jack Busch, Burton Howard, Richard Nordstrom, Thom McManus, Frances Harrington, Regina Hoyer, Gisa Neuhaus, Florence Rundell, and Lois Jean Turner.

Words are the tools of thought, and if you are one of those persons who has let his tools become dull, don't give up, for there are many ways to sharpen them. For your aid, the Central High school library has placed together books for vocabulary building, some of which are "Twelve Ways to Increase Your Vocabulary," "In a Word," and "Picturesque Word Origin."

All the vocabulary books are on top of the files at the south side of the library, and although it takes little effort to study one for ten minutes every day, the results are surprising. So come on, chillun, let's give with the gab.

English Learns Ya Readin' Writin' and-a-Loquacity

"To talk entertainingly and convincingly, to write clearly and effectively, to read quickly and intelligently—these are the aims in an English class," states Miss Bertha Neale, head of the English department. With the capable assistance of eighteen teachers, students are helped to achieve these ideals.

In English I, III, and V, the emphasis is placed on composition, both oral and written; in English II, IV, VI, and VII, the emphasis is on literature, its interpretation and appreciation. A survey of English literature given in English VIII is a general reading course. The chief purpose of all the courses is to develop the student's reading ability.

Why study grammatical relationship, sentence construction, and diction? One reason is to be able to say in the most effective way the idea to be put across. That idea may be one's fitness to hold a certain job; it may be information necessary to one's interests or the interests of a group; it may be the relating of a good story. Often a student wants to say something and he asks himself, "How shall I say it?" The answer is worked out in constructive English classes, I, III, and V.

The purpose of theme writing in English I is to develop the descriptive powers of the pupil; in English III, a study is made of narration, and in English V, of expository material. In all constructive work, the style book is an important tool. It gives the rules for construction and references to examples of correct usage.

In English III the student also reads novels and short stories. The work in this course includes Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" and a book of short stories. Books of expository material and essays are read extensively in English V.

The first literature course, English II, deals with adventure tales in poetry and in prose. Scott's "Ivanhoe" and "Lady of the Lake" acquaint the pupil with some of the most famous classics of literature.

In English IV, the student studies the "Ancient Marnier" and "Julius Caesar." Mythology in this course not only provides interesting reading for the student, but also is valuable in interpretation of literature.

Nine weeks of English VI are spent on American literature, including the novel, "House of Seven Gables." The other nine weeks are given to a study of eighteenth century English literature. The novels read in English VII are "Macbeth," "Emperor Jones," "The Rise of Silas Lapham," and "The Return of the Native."

This Week We Salute the Presidents

Central's most active students have figured prominently in the election of club presidents.

Walter Mallard is president of the Central High Players. Besides being circulation manager of the Register, he is a member of the Press club, a sergeant in the R.O.T.C., choir, and Junior Honor society.

Heading the Chess club is Norman Polonsky, who last year was a member of the winning chess team. He is a homeroom representative, a member of the Mathematics society, and a sergeant in the R.O.T.C.

Lois Jean Turner is the president of Colleens, the largest girls' organization at Central. Editor in chief of the Register, secretary of the Student Council, and corresponding secretary of the Central High Players are a few of her activities. She attended Northwestern Journalism Institute last summer, and is a member of the three chapters of Junior Honor society.

The president of the Discussion club is Bob Kalmansohn. Prominent in debate, he is a member of the debate team, debate squad, and is secretary of the Central chapter of the National Forensic league. Bob is also a member of the Junior Honor society, Central High Players, Chess club, Red Cross, Speakers' Bureau, and Mathematics society.

Burke Clements, heading the French club, is sergeant at arms of the Central High Players and a second lieutenant in the R.O.T.C. He is playing the part of Preston Hughes in the fall play. Marilyn Hughes, president of the Girls' Athletic association, is active in all types of sports. She is also a member of the Central High Players.

The president of the Girl Reserves this year is Kathryn Poole, who was a delegate to the Girl Reserves conference. She is a member of the Junior Red Cross and an alternate of the intercity Red Cross council. Kathryn is also a member of Junior Honor society.

Gay Follmer is president of the Junior Red Cross and was the Central delegate to the Red Cross convention in Washington, D. C., last spring. She is literary editor of the Register, World-Herald correspondent, and secretary of the Spanish club. She is also a member of the Central High Players and the choir. Last year Gay also attended Girls' State.

Heading the Lininger Travel club is Laurel Childre, who was president of her freshman and sophomore class. She is a member of Student Council, Junior Honor society, Colleens, Central High Players, and the Latin club.

The president of the Latin club is Barbara Whitlock. In addition she is a member of Lininger Travel club and the Junior Honor society.

Bill Lambert, heading the Mathematics society this year, is a member of Central High Players, French club, and "O" club. He plays center on the football team, and is a second lieutenant in the R.O.T.C.

Dwayne Feecken, president of the "O" club, is active in sports. He set the city record in high jumping and has two letters in track. Dwayne is a homeroom representative, and a member of Junior Honor society.

Presiding over the Roller Skating club is Bob Gass, a member of the junior class. He is a corporal in the R.O.T.C. and a member of the Latin club.

Gay and Colorful Music Highlight Presentation Of Famous Operetta

With the gay and colorful music of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore," under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Swanson assisted by Mrs. Regina Place, rehearsals for the annual opera proceed this week.

In the leading feminine role of Josephine is Nellie Butera, who starred last year in Rudolph Friml's "Katinka," and placed first in the regional music contest last year in Topeka. Nellie was acclaimed a success in the title role, and is exhibiting in the rehearsals this year the same talent lauded last year by a packed auditorium. She started her musical career in Central by winning a jam session contest her freshman year.

Cousin of Opera Star

Nellie comes by her talent naturally. Annunziata Garrotto Powers, world famous opera singer, is her cousin, and last year stated that "Nellie's voice has definite possibilities."

Opposite Nellie is Richard Reynolds, who plays the part of Ralph Rackstraw. Richard, who also placed first in the regional music contest, has a beautiful tenor voice, and is proving in the first rehearsals that he is capable of taking the lead part, although he is only a sophomore. Nellie's and Richard's duets are especially good; their voices interpret excellently the mood of this nautical opera.

Dick Devenney as Captain Corcoran, Josephine's father, is especially suited to the part. He has an excellent voice and is already showing a sympathetic understanding for his part. Dick took a second award at the regional contest.

'When I Was a Lad'

Walter Mallard, in the part of Sir Joseph Porter, admiral of the fleet, is proving to be an excellent choice for this pompous gentlemen. "When I Was a Lad," telling of his evolution from a cabin boy to his present position, which he gained by his ability to polish brass knobs, write in a large round hand, and do no original thinking, is one of the most amusing arias in the opera.

Joyce Watts is giving a fine interpretation of "Little Buttercup." Particularly good is "I'm Called Little Buttercup," her entrance solo.

Bob Wells, taking the villain's part as Dick Deadeye, could not have been cast in a better part. He sneers as realistically, and threatens as fiercely as a real "flesh and blood" villain. Besides his acting, Bob has a good tenor voice.

Welcome to the Major! Major Monhollan Supervises Omaha-Council Bluffs ROTC

"The student who participates in R.O.T.C. during his high school years will be a stronger man physically for his effort and will emerge a better citizen," stated Major Joseph E. Monhollan, professor of military science and tactics of the Omaha and Council Bluffs high schools.

This high sounding title, often abbreviated P. M. S. & T., simply designates that Major Monhollan's job is to supervise the work of the sergeant instructors of the high schools of the two cities. Major Monhollan arrived recently from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, to take up his new duties as P. M. S. & T.

On November 16 Major Monhollan started the twenty-eighth year of his army career, twenty-one of which were spent as an officer. However, this is his first experience in R.O.T.C. work.

"If a cadet wishes to continue his drill when he gets to college, high school R.O.T.C. will serve as a basis for his university work and will give him an advantage over students who have not had this preliminary training," stated the major.

Major Monhollan described the Central battalion as "just grand." "I do not say this just because you are interviewing me or for the benefit of the readers," added the major, "but because I believe that the unit at Central is very fine, and I have no improvements to mention at the present time."

Major Monhollan gave his hearty approval to the self-instruction system used in the drill classes in which the cadets are supervised by a non-commissioned officer and are instructed by one of their own group, instead of by an officer.

Major Monhollan congratulated the battalion for its fine showing in the Armistice day parade, and added, "Keep up that fine spirit for the federal inspection."

Art Students Excel In Intercity Exhibit

Saturday, November 22, the Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority awarded prizes for the best offerings in each division of the third annual art exhibit.

Among the 75 entries from the five high schools and Munroe Junior High, Central was well represented and took fifty per cent of the high places, including two firsts and five honorable mentions.

Maxine McCaffrey's wallpaper design and Al Pattavina's pair of book ends won first prizes in the design and handicraft divisions.

Sam Castro took an honorable mention in watercolors while honorable mentions also went to Pattavina, with a bookplate design, Judy Luecke, with a design for a stained glass window, Barbara Bussing, with a woven luncheon set, and Maurice Stamm for a leather belt.

Joslyn's director Paul Grummann, C. L. Overholser, and Quentin Moore were judges and Mrs. Peter Marchetti presented the awards.

Club Officers

Gisa Neuhaus, president of the Spanish club, is a member of Junior Honor society, Central High Players, Colleens, and is a sergeant at arms of the Lininger Travel club. She was an alternate to Girls' State last summer.

This year's organizer and president of the Stamp club is Margaret Malm. She is a member of the Spanish club and the Colleens and last year was vice president of the junior class.

Bernice Pospichal '42 has passed the 100 word speed test in Miss Marguerette Burke's first hour Shorthand III class.

Ex-Dane Minister Guest Speaker

"Democracy not only means a great deal in our own country, but it is also the salvation of the world," prophesied Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde at an assembly for upperclassmen Monday morning.

Mrs. Rohde, former minister to Denmark, ex-congresswoman from Florida, and now a faculty member at Monticello college, is the daughter of the famous orator, William Jennings Bryan. Her subject was "This Democracy of Ours."

"The unknown soldier," commented Mrs. Rohde, giving an example of the unity of America, "is only one man but he represents all of the men who made sacrifices for the good of their country."

In her congressional district, Mrs. Rohde introduced a plan similar to our Boys' and Girls' State here in Nebraska. One boy and girl from each county were elected by their classmates to go on a pilgrimage to Washington to learn about the history and government of our nation.

Fall Play Sold Out; Standing Room Only

Central, for the second consecutive year, had the "Standing Room Only" sign out for the fall play. Although last year's play drew more people, "Ever Since Eve" drew more money because of an advance in prices.

Ticket sales totaled $340. Subtracting the tax, the net so far is $296.17. This does not include a number of bills which have not been presented as yet.

The proceeds for "Ever Since Eve" will be used in many ways. Plans have been made tentatively to provide scenery for the stage of the old auditorium. The profits will also be used to repair equipment and buy new plays for the expression department. This department also pays the royalties on the plays presented and rents the costumes.

"Service, cooperation, loyalty, and leadership were the qualities for which these students were selected," Mrs. Rohde said that if democracy in America is to thrive, all the younger generation must work to secure these qualities.

Miss Stringer Dies After Long Illness; Was Former Head of Natural Science

MISS CAROLINE STRINGER

Miss Caroline E. Stringer, teacher of natural science department at Central, until her retirement in 1937, died last Saturday, November 22, at a local hospital.

Miss Stringer was described as "a born teacher, who worked untiringly for the good of her pupils, torn between her love for pure science and her love for teaching." She tried to consider each student as an individual person, becoming acquainted with and helping him as much as possible.

Born in Newcastle, Nebraska, on April 17, 1872, Miss Stringer spent most of her childhood in Wayne, Nebraska. She began her teaching career at the early age of 16, in a country school. A graduate of the University of Nebraska, she received the bachelor of science and master of arts degrees and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, honorary scholastic societies.

Miss Stringer studied under the late Dr. Charles Bessey, noted botanist, and also served as assistant to Dr. Henry D. Ward of the zoology department. On a two year leave of absence from Central, she did research work with Dr. George H. Parker, head of Harvard university zoology department.

Before coming to Omaha in 1904, she spent six years teaching in the Wayne public schools and two years as a laboratory assistant at Nebraska Wesleyan college.

An authority in the field of Planaria Agilis, an organism almost unknown to science, Miss Stringer distinguished and classified it in her thesis for her master's degree. She found this new discovery in Nebraska streams. She was also the author of a chapter on "Turbellaria" in the textbook, "Fresh Water Biology" by Ward and Whipple.

After thirty-three years at Central she retired, but spent her time in conducting researches in her natural science laboratory. She also spent a great deal of time in her garden.

Red Cross Head Commends Student Drive on Ninety Per Cent Enrollment

To see what you can do at Central to make every student do his best in helping his school, his community, and his country in national defense is the purpose of Central's Red Cross chapter as interpreted by Miss Mary Alice Nelson, head of the Douglas County Junior Red Cross.

Miss Nelson spoke here November 19 on the services of Red Cross and the parts students play. She mentioned that the classes formed in home nursing and knitting are for "British civilians that were bombed out and not for the army."

She also touched on the new organization of dividing the city into wards, precincts, and blocks, with a chairman for each district. This would be helpful during any emergency, as at least one person in each block will have a thorough knowledge of first aid.

Byron Demorest then introduced several students who talked on various phases of Red Cross. Andy Kopperud first told the history of the International Red Cross, which was begun in 1864 at Geneva, at which time the Swiss flag, a white cross on a red field, was inverted to form the symbol of mercy. The United States joined in 1884, and soon after the Red Cross changed from operating only in war time to serving an any major disaster. Andy went on to say that during World War I the Junior Red Cross was formed in recognition of youth's splendid work.

Marjorie Ogden then talked on British war relief. She explained that the nurses, who receive the greatest strain, must care for the bombed out, the wounded, and the orphaned. Marjorie stated that the American public is helping with bundles to Britain.

Water safety and first aid were explained by Marian Keller. She reported that there are two main ideas which an individual should acquire, to know the treatment of the wounded and to be conscious of safety hazards.

Harvey Sapot talked on the services to the armed forces. He stated that there are two divisions of veteran services. The soldiers must be cared for at home and in the field. Volunteer services as the gray ladies help keep the men cheerful. Recreation halls have been built at each of the 63 military cantonments. Besides storing blood plasma and making surgical dressings, the Red Cross keeps a reserve of nurses for the armed forces.

Irene Roadhouse, who took charge in the absence of President Gay Folmer, announced that an election will be held at the next meeting for all officers except the president. Following this announcement students signed up for various committees.

Central was commended on its splendid drive, in which it is estimated that 90 per cent of the student body enrolled. Miss Maybel Burns' homeroom 121, although not having the greatest enrollment, contributed the most — $4.95. Any student may still join by seeing his homeroom representative or Mr. Warner in 33B.

H. M. S. Pinafore

Joe Moore, boatswain's mate; and Lee Bernstein, midship'mite.

Two of the three parts for Hebe, cousin to Sir Joseph Porter, have been chosen. They are Barbara Boien and Nell Evans. Both of these girls have good supporting voices, necessary in trios and chorus work. Barbara and Nell, with the third choice for Hebe, will each play the part one night.

Mrs. Swanson, who has already spent many hours directing the cast to insure an opera this year equal to the top-notch performances given by the choir previously, says about the opera, "We have an excellent cast, and a timely opera. It should prove a success."

Sale of tickets for the opera, which will be presented December 11, 12, and 13, are now on sale for 55 cents.

Benson Wins Intercity
Central moved up another notch in Gregg McBride's state ratings and now occupy fifth place behind Lincoln, York, Lincoln Northeast, and Omaha Tech in that order.

Benson's Bunnies trimmed Thomas Jefferson Friday night to gain sole claim to the Intercity football title. They replace the Maroons of Tech who were last year's champions.

Cornhuskers Triumph

Last Saturday in a raging snowstorm, Nebraska's Cornhuskers finally regained a winning stride when they clipped the Iowa Hawkeyes 14-13.

This Saturday Biff's lads tackle the unpredictable Oklahoma Sooners at Memorial stadium and will attempt to add a little more luster to a heretofore dismal season.

Rifle Team

Candidates for Central's rifle team started shooting for score Monday, November 17, and finished what could be classified as the preliminary round Thursday.

The outlook for the team this year is promising, for in addition to the return of Herb Miller, John Bower, Barton Greenberg, Dick McFayden, Fred Bekins, Pete Peterson, and Bob Best, the new candidates are shooting 10 to 20 per cent better than last year's candidates.

Grapplers Prepare To Meet Hamburg

With plans getting under way for a match with Hamburg, Iowa, on December 12, Central's grapplers have officially opened their season.

Two of last year's squad members are not on the team this year. They are Harold Sundsboe, 145 pounder, and Jim Christensen, 95 pounder.

Central actually has two wrestling coaches, strange as it may seem. The Eagles are tutored by Allie Morrison, one-time Olympic champion, but another coach came to light this week, when it was discovered that Vernon Ekfelt, Central biology teacher, is the new coach at North.

Twenty-Eight Frosh Receive Numerals From Coach Perry

Coach Duane Perry, head of Central's freshman football squad, announced last Wednesday that 28 freshmen would receive numerals for this year's work.

The composition of a speedy backfield and a strong line produced a second year of no defeats and another Intercity title. The Eagle backfield was efficient in every department—running, passing, and kicking.

Those who were awarded numerals are as follows: backs—Weekes, Belmont, Ossino, Green, Barentson, Manvitz, Roberts, Higham, Seldon, and Von Trimble; ends—Parks, Hamlin, LaGrecia, Boker, and Clayman; tackles—Tetric, Poltlan, Steiner, Deveraux, Marer, and Lynch; guards—Anderson, Knight, Morgan, McMullan, and Rosemont; centers—Gorman, and Mangiameli.

Thrills - - Spills

Central High Football

Slush - - Mush

Hello, everybody! Greetings and all that slush! It was a great season... all except for those... censored... tie games. But, heck, we can't have everything and we'll probably have a won-der-ful basketball team... aren't I the sunshiny one? But to begin at the beginning...

We started the season gloriously enuff... by beating Benson 7-6. The Coach claimed we were lucky... but I thought we were just plain good. Joe was the outstanding member of the team... which reminds me, we've had "stars" in every game and the spotlight has really gone the rounds... first one, then another Eagle has led his team-mates.

Next came the T. J. feud... I still believe Central came in a nose ahead on that deal... but boys will be boys and referees will be referees! 'Tis said they made a touchdown in the last fifteen seconds (ahem) 'tis said. Official score: 12-13.

Time marches on! Central beat Sioux City "ditto" for the first time in sixteen years. That was the day one couldn't tell an Eagle from a mud-pie... and no one cared being as how we won. The whole game was distinctly a la Gorman which is my feminine way of saying that he was the sparkplug of the Purple and White team.

Chalk one up for those South High boys... with the supposedly poorest team in Intercity history they tied the highly-rated Eagles 6-6... and I lived to see the day. Billig said we'd win by two touchdowns and fool that I was I put my money on it... guess a woman's place is in the home!

I was bored... when? At the Tech-Central football classic. There was a swell crowd... five thousand foolish people. The Maroons made one vain attempt at scoring, but Central didn't even come close to a touchdown. Oh, well, football in general picked up the next week-end when we trekked over to Council Bluffs and...

Took advantage of a block punt to win over A. L. 7-0. Lambert and Blank proved they were worthy of being watched and Al (call me "Lover") Grove showed he was as good a runner as a kicker and passer (Fish! please note).

Another tie blighted the spirits of us Central fans at the North game... after just hours of freezing (and I did freeze... despite what Lambert thinks he knows) the brawl ended 0-0. I've never seen so many zeroes in my life as this year... they haunt me! The field was so snowy they had to wipe the ball off after every two plays. Great sport!

Came Lincoln... came our Waterloo! Miss "Mac" wouldn't let any of the fall play cast go... she was afraid we'd get "cohdns in our 'eads" the night before the big show; they trimmed us 25-0. I know there are some things that shouldn't be mentioned... but, at the moment, I'm not the tactful type. So here goes... who did what in Lincoln??? Confidentially, I have quite a few of the details and a good imagination.

All in all, Central's had a fair season... we've had our ups; we've had our downs; and we've had our ties! Disgusting, weren't they? But it's been fun... So... till the first basketball bounces off the gym floor and the season officially opens... I wanna say adios and thanks for reading this... er, a... well should I say it? Bye!

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THIS PICTURE?

Sally is surely making it tough for herself by trying to read with a lamp that's only good for decoration. She needs an I.E.S. table or study lamp to give her plenty of good light. Then she could relax, really concentrate, and get better grades, too. More important still, good light prevents early eye fatigue and eyestrain, that often leads to permanent eye injury.
